Peace Seen as Strike Board Begins Action

Today

Caught, One Bushmaster.
Happy Mr. Hitler.
1,000 Years a Long Time.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

THE STRIKE situation seems to be a little serious, several killed, many wounded. The President has appointed a mediation committee to mediate, but it is one thing to appoint a committee, another to have workers consent to mediation. The strike leader says:

"First, all the mills in the country must close down. Then we will mediate."

You can't help admiring the devotion of the strike leader to his cause. On the other hand, you must admit that the men who have built the mills, met the payrolls, created the industry, are also entitled to defend their side if they can. It may be a little difficult before the end comes.

IT HAS BEEN said:

That is perfectly true, and labor, which is the horse, long "ridden" by capital, is discovering its power under the new era, and plans to use it.

But there is more involved in the situation than mere "power." If the horse got rid of the small boy on his back and galloped away from the small boy's father's stable, saying to himself and the other horses, "What do I need of them?" he might wake up a week later, disturbed.

He would notice the absence of oats in his manger, and the lack of anybody to "float" his teeth, when they got too long, pare down his hoofs, or pile up fragrant hay in his stall.

He might be a happier horse, after learning to plant and harvest oats and cut and dry hay, but that would take time.

SPEAKING OF HAY, farmers, amazed, are told that "making hay while the sun shines" is a mistake. Hay left scattered on the ground to dry in sunshine loses from 35 to 50 per cent of its food value. Sunlight takes out the food value, the nourishing starch from the hay, and the "stock" suffers.

The modern, better method is to cut the grass green, dry it, artificially, preserving all its value. That costs money, but this professional writer and amateur farmer proposes to try it, and will report results next year.

DR. DITMARS, of New York's big zoological garden, is happy after twenty-five years trying. He has secured a "bushmaster" six feet long, absolutely vicious. A Trinidad plantation worker found the poisonous monster, thick body, small head, no brain, called by the natives that dread it a "mapapire-z-ananna." You may see that snake in the "Bronx Zoo."

HOW PATIENT are men seeking a poisonous snake, huge turtle, more or less imaginary monster seen in a Scotch lake. Dr. Ditmars was willing to wait twenty-five years to get his heavyweight "mapapire-z-ananna."

This country, looking for a cure for its troubles, is impatient if it has to wait even a few months. The cure that we are looking for, a cure for human selfishness, greediness,—brutality, dishonesty and stupidity, will take longer in the finding than did that poisonous "bushmaster."

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS reports an agreement between Italy and France to "curb Hitler" and his reich. The first plan is to block Germany's proposed re-arming. France and Italy are also supposed to have agreed on a method of handling the Austrian situation. Perhaps marrying the little Austrian Hapsburg pretender to the Italian Princess Maria is part of that arrangement.

THE DETERMINED, loud-speaking Hitler, apparently not worried, says that his national social leadership is "unswerving and unshakeable," and will last one thousand years and "revolution in Germany is at an end."

That is what you might call optimism. No government scheme has ever lasted for a thousand years.

It is true, as Chancellor Hitler says, that:

The revolution in France removed power from the king, nobility and clergy to the pocketbooks of the merchants.

Nothing is final but evolution. According to scientists, it changed the tiny three shrew to the gigantic whale, changed a small five-toed creature into the horse with one hoof for

Brushton Man Accused Of Selling 'Numbers' To School Girl

The accused operator is Michael Butera, proprietor of a shoe repair shop at 8024 Frankstown avenue, who was arrested by Constable George Kerchner on a warrant sworn to before Alderman Samuel McKinley.

Kerchner obtained the warrant, he said, after he saw a 13-year-old seventh grade student emerge from Butera's shop with a numbers slip.

TELLS OF GAMBLING

The pupil told Kerchner, the constable said, that she had been buying numbers from Butera for nearly a year, making purchases for her mother. She said she had won $54.10, but could not recall how much she had spent during the year.

She told of other children who played the numbers.

3 WOMEN HELD AS 'SEERS'

Telling fortunes with tea leaves may be interesting, but is it legal?

Police Inspector John Vincent wants to know.

So he made out informations against three women in two Fifth avenue tea rooms charging them with telling fortunes. They were arrested yesterday and released on $100 bail each, pending a hearing in Central Police Court tomorrow.

Fortune telling is forbidden by ordinance if a fee is charged. But the tea room fortune tellers charge no fee, it seems. The price of a meal pays for a "reading." Consequently Inspector Vincent wants a ruling to clear it all up.

Those arrested were Maybelle E. Rockwell, 57, of 5742 Northumberland street, and Mrs. Ayajah Kiss, 34, of 208 West North avenue, representing the Gypsy Tea Room, 207 Fifth avenue, and Mrs. C. Kostich, 37, of the Mystic Tea Room, 241 Fifth avenue.

1,200 Back on Jobs In Aluminum Plant

ALCOA, Tenn., Sept. 7.—(AP.)—Approximately 1,200 men returned to their jobs today at the Alcoa plants of the Aluminum Company of America as operations were resumed following settlement of the aluminum strike.

Huey Long Besieges N'Orleans

International News Service.

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 7.—The march on New Orleans of 2,200 state militiamen, mobilized secretly in the dead of the night by United States Senator Huey P. Long's state administration, took on all the aspects of a state of seige today.

Through the night and on into the day khaki-clad combat troops, armed with war-time paraphernalia, converged on this harassed municipality from nearly 20 towns and cities throughout Louisiana.

Approximately 1,000 troops had poured into the Jackson Barracks National Guard reservation on the outskirts of the city.

None of the guardsmen entered the city where another heavily-armed force of 1,300 men, the loyal police department of Mayor T. Semmes Walmsley, prepared to defend the city against invasion.

Armaments of the police force rivaled those of the military. Fourteen modern submachine guns and nearly 200 automatic rifles, sawed-off shotguns and gas grenades were in the police arsenal. Police Chief Reyer said:

"We're well protected, but I am hoping there will be no trouble.

"No mobilization of troops will intimidate or stop the honest citizens of New Orleans from casting their ballots next Tuesday. They cannot be scared by this show of armed force."

Why the troops were so hastily summoned into this city in the largest military concentration in Louisiana since the World War remained an official mystery.

Gov. Oscar Allen on whose authority alone the troops could be mustered refused to comment on or explain his action on the eve of the crucial September 11 Congressional primary.

Senator Long, whose dictatorial power over the destinies of this state became supreme at noon today, as usual spoke for the Governor.

The Kingfish, in the role of moral crusader, issued the following statement:

"The legislative committee and its witnesses are not going to be further molested, the open vice dens are going to close and New Orleans is going to have a peaceful election. That is all I know about anything."

Explorer's Father Dies in Train Crash

Neal Sobs Denial of Guilt In Campus Queen's Death

NORMAN, Okla., Sept. 7.—(AP.)—Neal Myers, white and shaken, told the jury trying him on a murder charge today that he had nothing to do with the death of Marian Mills, the 19-year-old University of Oklahoma beauty queen he is accused of killing.

In halting sentences as his mother, Mrs. P. B. Myers sobbed bitterly 15 feet in front of the witness chair, the university pharmacy student denied:

That he ever saw an instrument that might have been used in a criminal operation at the home of Mrs. Hazel Brown (fraternity house cook) where his co-ed sweetheart died last July 10.

That he ever saw Marian take the medicine she had come to the apartment to take.

That he wanted her to prevent motherhood.

His attorney asked:

"As a matter of fact, Neal, you loved the girl and wanted to marry her, didn't you?"

Neal replied:

"Yes, sir."

The youth, occasionally wiping his eyes with a folded handkerchief, declared that Mrs. Brown called Marian into a bedroom a few minutes before her death and closed the doors while he stayed outside.

Repeatedly, the youth declared, he asked Marian to marry him and tried to dissuade her from taking medicine to prevent maternity, but was unsuccessful.

He said Marian was the only girl he ever loved.

REDS AGAIN DEFIED BY LYSLE

Police Guard Mayor As He Turns Down Permit for Rally

He told 17 men and one woman who sought a permit to hold a meeting next Thursday in Diamond Park:

"If the President of the United States came to McKeesport, he would not be permitted to hold a meeting in the Diamond."

His final word was:

"This is my ultimatum. You will hold the meeting where I told you—by the river front—or you won't hold it."

Rioting attended a meeting last Saturday night, resulting in the arrest of 24 Communists. They were jailed in default of bail, pending a court trial, on charges of inciting to riot. Judge Ambrose B. Reid, flaying Communists, reduced the bail from $2,000 to $1,000.

Mayor Lysle's action today was condemned in a statement by Carl Schmitt, secretary of the Unemployed Councils of Allegheny County, and Louis Vaga, of the Young Communist League, McKeesport. They declared that Lysle had "again refused the right of free speech in the city of McKeesport."

EDITOR SLAYING LINKED HERE

MINNEAPOLIS, Sept. 7.—(AP.)—Howard Guilford, former Minneapolis editor and publisher of sensational Minneapolis weekly newspapers, was shot down last night by assassins "hired by Communists," Jay M. Near, former partner of the murdered man asserted today.

Near said he had received a letter threatening him with bodily harm, scrawled with indelible pencil and postmarked "Pittsburgh." Near refused to make public the name, but said he received two previous notes from the same author which attacked him for "anti-Communistic writing," but did not threaten him.

Guilford and Near achieved national prominence several years ago when their publication, Saturday Press," was suppressed under the Minnesota "gag law," which later was held unconstitutional by the United States Supreme Court.

Guilford, shot down by two gunmen while driving to his home in South Minneapolis early last night, at one time also published the Pink Sheet in Minneapolis.

Pilot Lost in Fog, Passengers Snore

LOWELL, Mass., Sept. 7.—(AP.)—Lost in the fog and fuel low, a Newark-Chicago bound plane of the American Airways, made a safe landing at Lowell airport early today.

Pilot Winfield Shannon said he became lost in the fog due to a defective radio beam and that his three passengers slept through it all. The passengers were still asleep after the plane had landed here.

'Crash' With Goose Downs Police Plane

MINEOLA, N. Y., Sept. 7.—(INS.)—Forced down by collision with a goose, was the story told today by the crew of the Nassau County police plane.

The pilot said the plane had struck a goose in flight, and had killed the bird. The plane was jolted but undamaged.

Mrs. Pinchot Won't Seek Election as Governor

Promises Statement, As Friends Deny She'll Run

Mrs. Cornelia Bryce Pinchot, according to positive statements she has made to friends within the last 24 hours, will not be a candidate for Governor.

This was learned here today.

However, in Harrisburg, Mrs. Pinchot told the International News Service:

"I think I'll keep you in suspense until late this afternoon."

Petitions to put the name of Gov. Pinchot's wife on the ballot had been circulated in industrial districts. In Allegheny County they went out under the direction of County Commissioner C. C. McGovern.

While McGovern made arrangements to fly the petitions to Harrisburg this afternoon, county employes flocked into the Commissioners' office, carrying petitions filed during working hours.

These are the same county employes McGovern previously has told to refrain from political activity on the county's time.

Secretary of the Commonwealth Richard J. Beamish today announced that the deadline for accepting independent nominating petitions will be extended until midnight tonight.

In the event that the Allegheny County petitions are filed, it is expected that Mrs. Pinchot will withdraw her name before September 17.

The vigorous wife and outspoken political teammate of Gov. Pinchot last night said she will have "a statement" today.

With a broad smile she refused to say more.

Postoffice Dedication Plans Set

Pittsburgh's new $8,000,000 postoffice and federal building at Seventh avenue and Grant street will be dedicated on Saturday, October 13, with Postmaster General James A. Farley serving as master of ceremonies.

The new Federal Building is to be dedicated despite the fact it will not be ready for occupancy until late October or early November, and this has given rise to reports that the Democrats of Allegheny County are staging the exercises to bring Farley, their national chairman, here for a big party rally three weeks before the November elections.

Announcement of dedication plans was made today by Postmaster William M. Turner.

The building has been under construction for more than three years.

Mystery in Phone Calls for Actress

HOLLYWOOD, Sept. 7.—(AP.)—Cary Grant, husband of Virginia Cherrill, disclosed that the actress' mother, Mrs. B. C. Cherrill, had received a number of mysterious telephone calls inquiring about her daughter.

Grant said different persons apparently had called asking if Miss Cherrill were there and declining to give their names. He said no demands had been made and he had no fear it was a kidnaping plot.

ALGIERS, Algeria, Sept. 7.—(AP.)—Five persons were killed and 20 injured when a violent earthquake rocked the town of Orleansville today.

Bring Your Own Grub To Pinchot's Picnic

MILFORD, Pa., Sept. 7.—(INS.)—Neighbors of Gov. and Mrs. Gifford Pinchot today were invited to the annual basket picnic given by the state's first family at the Pinchot estate here on Saturday.

Invitations were in the form of newspaper advertisements printed in northeastern counties. Guests will bring their own lunches. Entertainment will be provided by performers brought to the Pinchot estate by the Executive and his wife.

UNION CARRIES STEEL POLL

HUNTINGTON, W. Va., Sept. 7.—(AP.)—The nation's first government-supervised steel labor election has resulted in a victory for the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers.

The election was ordered at Pittsburgh on August 16 by the recently-created national Steel Labor Relations Board on a complaint of the association that the company refused to recognize it, although a majority of the employes at the West Virginia Rail Company plant were members.

At the conclusion of the election last night, John F. Dewey, United States Labor Department conciliator, who supervised the election, announced the vote for representation was:

Amalgamated Association	227
Huntington Steel Workers' Association	134
Other persons or organizations	7
Discounted ballots	25

On the election board with Dewey were two representatives of the Amalgamated; two of the "company union" and two neutral workmen. Under the Labor Board's decision, the election will stand for one year.

TEXTILE WAR SHUTS MORE FACTORIES

Roosevelt Peacemakers To Call Labor Heads And Employers

BULLETIN.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 7.—(AP.)—Both Francis J. Gorman, chairman of the textile strike committee, and George A. Sloan, president of the Cotton Textile Institute, agreed to meet immediately with President Roosevelt's new textile strike board.

The Strike in Brief

Associated Press.

The textile strike today:

WASHINGTON—President Roosevelt's textile strike board went into action today, and Secretary of Labor Perkins forecast settlement of the huge walkout.

SOUTH CAROLINA—All National Guard units on strike duty, Gov. Blackwood "considering declaring certain areas in a state of insurrection."

MASSACHUSETTS—Strike groups reported ready to picket mills in Lawrence, where 20,000 at work. Roads to Mt. Hope mills in Dighton guarded against picket invasion.

NEW YORK—Tension increases at Cohoes on reports two mills plan to import out-of-town workers.

PENNSYLVANIA—William F. Kelly, vice president textile workers, forecasts early settlement of strike differences. Minor outbreaks bring increased police protection.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 7.—(AP.)—President Roosevelt's textile strike inquiry board went quickly into action today with an announcement it would meet representatives of strikers and employers "as rapidly as is practical."

Meanwhile the estimated number of idle workers increased 10,000 to a total of almost 370,000.

The board made the announcement after a conference with the Labor Relations Board, and just before calling on Secretary of Labor Perkins.

Secretary Perkins expressed confidence that the board would be able to arrange a settlement of the huge walkout.

At the same time, strike leaders said a decision on adding workers in the rayon, synthetic yarn, dyeing, hosiery and other miscellaneous divisions to the general textile strike would be made at a series of conferences over the week-end.

BOARD OUTLINES PLAN

The President's board, in its announcement, said:

"The first duty of this board, under the President's executive order, is to assemble as quickly as possible the principal facts bearing on the causes of the strike.

"We plan as rapidly as is practical to meet with representatives of the textile workers, representatives of the employers, code authority members, the Cotton Textile Na-

Staff Correspondent.

ABOARD THE COMTE DI SAVOIA (Via Radio), Sept. 7.—Mayor McNair sighted the Rock of Gibraltar today and couldn't believe his eyes. He said:

"Well, there you are—no signs there. Imagine such a fake!"

When His Honor sighted the Spanish town of Tariffa, he declared:

BULLETIN.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 7.—(INS.)—King George V, of England, intervened to prevent sale of arms to Poland by the Driggs Ordnance and Engineering Company, the Senate Munitions Committee was told today.

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 7.—New evidence that governmental departments assisted munitions firms in disposing of their wares abroad was presented to the Senate Munitions Committee today.

The War Department, it was disclosed, assisted the Driggs Engineering Company in making available to Poland certain secret patents for anti-aircraft guns.

The disclosure followed evidence that the Navy Department, State Department and American admirals and ambassadors aided American submarine builders in their world-wide sales campaigns.

DEFENDS POLICY

Louis L. Driggs, company president, defended the War Department's policy on the ground it aided gun manufacturers to maintain their establishments so they would be available to this country in war time.

A letter from Driggs to his Polish agent, Florjan Ziemba, dated January 24, 1929, said:

"As you know the United States War Department is now co-operating with us 100 per cent. They have even changed the policy to a more favorable one to us than when you were here.

"The Ordnance Department officials said that the department was now more concerned in having our plant get work than government plants."

Anti-aircraft gun designs were developed both by Army and company engineers, Driggs testified. Senator Vandenberg (Rep.), of Michigan, asked:

"Are secret American gun designs always available to foreign countries through sales by your company?"

Driggs answered:

"I suppose so, but the foreign countries could copy them anyway."

Vandenberg commented:

"Then for the sake of American business, the War Department is ready to rob itself of designs developed by its own engineers."

FACE SUMMONS

Driggs said it is impossible to "keep gun secrets from other nations."

Heads of these departments probably will be called before the committee. President Roosevelt notified the Senate last spring that the executive departments would co-operate in the probe.

The Driggs Company also sold guns to Turkey, Denmark, Greece, Lithuania, Venezuela, Colombia and Guatemala.

The Navy Department was even more co-operative than the Army, according to a letter Driggs wrote to Herbert F. L. Allen, his representative in Turkey.

LANDS BIG ORDER

When the Army balked for a time about allowing the company to use certain gun patents, Driggs wrote:

"The Navy Department has not pussyfooted in this way as you will see from the letter we have just received from the chief of the Bureau of Ordnance, of which I enclose you two photostatic copies.

"For your information I also enclose you a certified copy of the recent decision, of the Court of Claims, which shows that the Army gun was taken bodily from the Navy gun."

After landing a Polish order for 70 three-inch guns, totaling $1,800,000, Driggs wrote to Maj. Gen. Samuel Hoof, on January 21, 1932, saying:

"Except for the support of your department, we have for several years carried on this fight for foreign business entirely singlehanded."

BIG NOVEMBER VOTE LOOMS

Associated Press.

A heavy vote at the polls in November is forecast by first day registrations in Philadelphia and third-class cities of Pennsylvania.

Scattered reports showed an apparent gain in Republican strength, although the Democrats denied this would be the case when all the figures are in.

In Philadelphia, the Republicans claimed a 3 to 1 edge on the basis of incomplete reports, and the Democrats insisted they had cut down the ratio of Republican supremacy from 2¼ to 1 on the first day last year to 7 to 5 yesterday.

Most complete returns came from Allentown, where 45 of 47 districts showed 3,663 Republicans and 3,622 Democrats in comparison with last year's 2,031 Republicans to 2,648 Democrats.

In York, where the Democrats had an advantage of 126 on the first registration day of 1933, registrars reported a Republican lead of 474.

Democratic gains were reported from Harrisburg and from Meadville, where the minority party cut into the usual 2 to 1 Republican lead.

Evangelical Church Selects 3 Officers

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., Sept. 7.—The Rev. G. A. Collin, of Somerset, has been elected district superintendent of the Pittsburgh Conference of the Evangelical Church at the annual convention in session here. The Rev. E. L. Nicley, of Oil City, was named conference secretary and editor of the conference journal. The Rev. A. B. Hosbach, of Ligonier, was elected budget treasurer for a four year term.

SPOKANE, Wash., Sept. 7.—(AP.)—Striking street car and bus operators last night rejected a compromise offer by Frank I. Post, president of the company.

W. J. Gellatly, international organizer for the carmen's union, said after a four-hour session the union rejected the compromise without a vote.

Noted Director 'Haunted' by Bath Tubs

CECIL B. DE MILLE

DeMille, it seems, during his career in the movies, has earned for himself quite a reputation as a maker of "bathtub" scenes.

During his recent airplane tour of the nation, the director frequently discussed the "clean movie" campaign. More than once some questioner put to the director, with a smile, the question:

"And what about bathtub scenes, Mr. DeMille?"

The director finally developed such a resentment for bathtubs, he requested, whenever he stopped at a hotel, that the only bathing facilities be a shower.

The director asked the other members of his party if they would mind driving past a certain address. He explained:

"Thirty years ago, in a house at that address, I became engaged to my wife. I haven't seen the place since."

They drove past the address, but the house was gone.

"I quit selling numbers several days ago. The student came in yesterday to get another number for her mother, but I told her I didn't write them any more. If the constable found a slip on her it was an old slip."

TWO WOMEN FINED

Meanwhile, District Attorney Andrew T. Park has conferred with Judge William H. McNaugher, who has taken the lead in the fight against the numbers. Park emerged from the conference with the announcement that he was prepared to wage his own war.

Park was believed to be impatient with the open defiance of his appeal to magistrates to hold numbers writers for court.

Two Negro women were fined in North Side Police Court today on charges of operating a lottery. Mrs. Lulu Jackson, 26, of 1110 Decatur street, was fined $65 or 30 days in jail, and Mrs. Viola Turner, 38, of 1112 Decatur street, was fined $50 or 30 days. Police testified that they had found numbers slips in their homes.

Watson T. Wysocki, proprietor of the Arlington Inn, Lincoln highway, was sentenced to 30 days in jail by Judge McNaugher today for maintaining a slot machine.

Boy, 17, Held in Theft Of 12 Cents, Cigarets

A 17-year-old boy was held today in South Side Police Station in connection with the alleged holdup of Thomas Herismuk, of 40 South Nineteenth street, at midnight, Monday. Twelve cents and a half package of cigarets were stolen. The youth said he was Frank Fordychi, of 1210 Muriel street. Three companions are sought.

STRIFE FEARED IN LEAGUE PARLEY

Rumors of Attacks On French, Russians Upset Geneva

GENEVA, Sept. 7.—(AP.)—Extraordinary police precautions will be taken to protect the French delegation to the League of Nations and also later, the Russian delegation if Russia is elected to the League of Nations, it was revealed today.

Local authorities were advised by the central government at Berne of rumors that manifestations were being prepared by Fascist elements against both the French and Russian representatives.

These manifestations, it was said, would be directed against France because of that nation's activities seeking Soviet Russia's admission into the League, and the manifestation planned against Russia would be because Swiss conservative elements opposed the entrance of Russia into the League and Switzerland will vote against Russia at the assembly.

VALLEE QUOTES LOVELETTER

NEW YORK, Sept. 7.—(AP.)—Rudy Vallee filed in court today a love letter written him by Frances Singer, of Denver, Col., who is suing him for $250,000 breach of promise damages, to support his contention that she "needs a physician rather than a lawyer."

The letter, which said "I love you" and "I belong to you," was attached to an affidavit filed in Supreme Court in which he declared that "professional artists such as myself are constantly subjected to annoyance on the part of cranks."

The singer cited a suit "commenced against me not so long ago by a lady of more than 70 years of age who alleged the obviously absurd charge that I made love to her over the radio," which was thrown out of court. The statement added:

"In this instance, however, this is a young lady's aberrations that have been made the subject of a law suit."

EDDY'S RADIO BACKFIRES

HOLLYWOOD, Sept. 7.—(AP.)—Nelson Eddy, baritone, turned movie actor, lay awake last night grumbling dire threats against the neighbor whose radio was blaring full blast.

He didn't want to complain, but he did want to sleep.

Finally he could stand it no longer. He went to the telephone and called the neighbor, a physician. He began:

"Doctor, I don't like to complain, but your radio is keeping me awake. Would you mind toning it down a bit?"

Came a voice over the wire:

"I was just going to call you. If you'll investigate you'll find that's your own radio."

Fascists From U. S. Pay Visit to Pope

CASTELGANDOLFO, Sept. 7.—(AP.)—Pope Pius today received a group of 1,000 young Fascists from abroad, including members from the United States and Canada.

He spoke to them briefly, congratulating them on their high spirit in making the long journey and imparted his special blessing upon them, their families, and their nations.

Duce Directs Verbal Blow Toward Nazis

BARI, Italy, Sept. 7.—(AP.)—Premier Mussolini's advice to Italians is to scorn the foreign doctrines of a people which "did not know how to write when we had Virgil."

He enunciated this doctrine in an address yesterday opening the Levantine Fair. It was assumed that his contemptuous reference was to Germany and Naziism.

MAX SCHMELING STEALS SHOW FROM HITLER

Forced to Fight Mob As Nazis Hold Congress

By H. R. KNICKERBOCKER

International News Service.

(Copyright, 1934, International News Serv.)

NUREMBERG, Sept. 7.—Another 175 special trains arrived in Nuremberg today, pouring another 150,000 Nazi party officials into the city to participate tonight in a torchlight procession 10 miles long and to carry 21,000 flags past Reichsleader Hitler.

These figures give some idea of the truly colossal dimensions of the party's congress, which is intended by its huge size to prove again that enthusiasm for the Nazi idea has not waned.

Schmeling appeared before the Wuertemberger Hof and in a trice several thousand Storm Troopers had surrounded and marked him for autographs.

He fled inside the hotel, and there, too, was almost suffocated and compelled to use his pugilistic ability to rescue himself.

He finally broke and ran with hundreds of storm troopers chasing him.

Fuel for the congress enthusiasm is being poured out in many hours of speeches by party leaders and today Walther Darre, minister of agriculture, assured the congress that Germany's new crops would suffice for the food needs of the population without calling on foreign countries.

Darre reiterated that it is the Nazi intention to make Germany economically independent and to put her in a position where "if for any reason the outside world is unwilling to put its resources at our disposal" Germany could get along without them.

Darre cited figures showing that food imports under the Nazis have sunk to a fraction of their prewar value.

DENY MENDIETA WILL QUIT POST

HAVANA, Sept. 7.—(AP.)—Cuba's government emphasized its united front against student and Leftist demonstrators today as disorders appeared to be spreading throughout the island.

Reports that President Carlos Mendieta had resigned or was about to step out of office, were denied vigorously by his secretary, Agustin Acosta. It was rumored that Mendieta and Fulgencio Batista, head of the army, had disagreed on matters of policy.

Bombs damaged the homes of Pedro Arauz, an army captain, and Manuel Arnaz, former chief of Police, in Santiago last night. No one was injured. Spectators fled in terror from a Santiago theater when an unexploded bomb was found among the seats.

Comparative quiet was restored to Camaguey, after soldiers and students fired at each other for an hour yesterday. Two persons were injured.

EARLE HAS NEW MELLON VISION

POTTSTOWN, Pa., Sept. 7.—(AP.)—Referring to his refusal to confer with Gov. Pinchot on relief questions, George H. Earle, Democratic nominee for Governor, said today the Governor spent $160,000,000 without asking a single Democrat's advice.

Earle assailed the Republican record at a rally of 2,500 persons, and described Andrew W. Mellon as "the only Secretary of the Treasury that three Presidents served under." He asserted:

"The only difference between Mellon and Alexander Hamilton is that Hamilton found an empty Treasury and filled it, while Mellon found a full Treasury and emptied it."

'Golden Horseshoe' Rivalled at Radio City

NEW YORK, Sept. 7.—(AP.)—"One Night of Love," the latest motion picture of Grace Moore, blonde Metropolitan Opera soprano, had its premiere in Radio City Music Hall last night in a setting as brilliant as that in which Miss Moore made her operatic debut seven years ago.

Notables in society, the stage and the city's public life attended a reception which preceded the performance and then filled the reserved-seat mezzanine to form a counterpart of the metropolitan's "golden horseshoe." Many friends from Tennessee, who had known Miss Moore as a choir girl in the Cumberland mountain village of Jellico, were there.

Among those who attended the reception were former Gov. Alfred E. Smith and Mrs. Smith, Nelson Rockefeller, Mr. and Mrs. M. H. Aylesworth, Lawrence Tibbett, Gladys Swarthout, Rear Admiral Yates Stirling, Jr., Mayor F. H. La Guardia and Mrs. La Guardia and Miss Amy Vanderbilt.

TOKIO DEMANDS NAVAL EQUALITY

TOKIO, Sept. 7.—(AP.)—Japan definitely committed itself today to a policy of being second to none in naval armament.

The empire determined to renounce the present scheme of naval limitation, and demand in naval matters a ranking in all respects equal to that of the United States and Great Britain.

The formal policy received the approval of the nation's highest authorities.

First the cabinet adopted unanimously a statement of a naval program which Admiral Mineo Osumi, Minister of the Navy, said incorporated the recommendations of high naval officers.

Then Premier Keisuki Okada proceeded to the palace with the program, and it was reported that it received the imperial sanction.

Later naval members of the supreme war council, among them the highest admirals, convened to hear and aprove Osumi's report.

'LITTLE EVA' CALM FACING DEATH CHAIR

Friendly Farewell for Friend Suitor Who Failed Her

COOPERSTOWN, N. Y., Sept. 7.—(AP.)—Two women of murder—Eva Coo and Martha Clift—pondered today the profit of killing a man for his insurance.

"Little Eva" Coo was convicted late yesterday of murder in the first degree and sentenced to death in the electric chair at Sing Sing. She dies, if no agency of law intervenes, the week of October 15.

Martha Clift, 27-year-old mother of two children, pleaded guilty to second degree murder and was sentenced to serve 20 years to life.

It was the testimony of Martha Clift, co-conspirator with "Little Eva" in the murder of Harry Wright, that clinched the fate of the middle-aged Mrs. Coo, yet today Mrs. Coo said she held no malice. She said:

"I bear no grudge."

Kissing each other goodby, Mrs. Coo and Mrs. Clift separated today, the former to be driven to Sing Sing prison to await execution and the latter to imprisonment at Bedford Hills prison for women. They were taken in separate motor cars.

Mrs. Coo also bade goodby to Harry Nabinger, her suitor, who also testified against her.

Nabinger, who has been held in jail as a material witness, is to be released today. As Mrs. Coo passed his cell yesterday after hearing the verdict condemning her to death, she handed to Nabinger, through the bars of his cell, an autographed photograph of herself surrounded by news photographers. She said:

Nabinger, swallowing hard, took the picture. He was quite pale.

The jury, it was understood, took seven or eight ballots, and on each were 10 to two for conviction, until the final ballot.

Both Mrs. Coo and Mrs. Clift waived their rights to delay of two days before hearing sentence.

DIES IN CHAIR DENYING GUILT

OSSINING, N. Y., Sept. 7.—(AP.)—Alphonse Brengard has paid with his life for the slaying of a policeman on a lonely Long Island road nearly six years ago. He denied his guilt.

He was electrocuted at Sing Sing Prison last night for the murder of Patrolman John Kennedy, Nassau County policeman.

The Rev. John McAffrey, Catholic chaplain, led him into the death chamber at 11:03 p. m. Six minutes later he was dead. As he sat in the chair he said:

"Goodbye, mom."

Brengard, a former state policeman, was arrested almost a year after Patrolman Kennedy was wounded while investigating a parked automobile on a road between Woodmere and Valley Stream, L. I., July 2, 1928. Kennedy, paralyzed by a bullet in his spine, lived four years after the shooting.

One of the doomed man's last requests was for 12 cigars and 10 packages of cigarets and he smoked almost continuously during the hours preceding his execution. He continued to maintain his innocence until the end, saying:

"I never had anything to do with that crime."

Minimum Wage Set for Performers

WASHINGTON, Sept. 7.—(AP.)—NRA ruled today that vaudeville and other performers appearing in motion picture theaters should receive at least $7.50 a day. Interpreting the motion picture code, NRA held the minimum wage of the pact applied regardless of the number of acts given by the performers.

COUNTY MEDICS MOVE TO BAN TREATMENT

Few City Drugstores Sell Dinitrophenol; Overdose Fatal

More than 100,000 persons in the United States have risked their lives trying to reduce weight by taking dinitrophenol, a new—and potent—reducing aid, according to a spokesman for the Allegheny County Medical Society.

Physicians, he said, are becoming alarmed at the spread and use of this drug and a ban against it is now under discussion by Pittsburgh doctors as well as those in other parts of the country.

Only recently one well-known Pittsburgh physician, after treating a woman patient with dinitrophenol stopped using the medicine because the results were unsatisfactory and he became alarmed at the great risk.

FEVER FATAL

The medical society spokesman said the two most healthful ways of reducing are by exercise and by diet. He said:

"So far the only known use for this drug is in medicine as an aid in weight reduction and it is extremely questionable whether it should be used for this purpose, even on a physician's order.

"In doses which, although poisonous, are not dangerous to life, it results in no greater weight loss than can be accomplished by cutting down the diet to four-fifths or three-quarters of what is normally taken.

"Excessive amounts of dinitrophenol cause death by producing a fatally high fever and causing a large skin rash. Therefore, it should not be dispensed by druggists without an accurate prescription by a reputable physician."

POISON CONTENT

A survey of 13 Pittsburgh drug stores revealed today that dinitrophenol is not commonly known and those who do sell compounds containing it are either unaware of its presence or sell only upon a physician's order.

The two most popular weight reducers do not contain dinitrophenol. The majority of drug stores including several chains know of its poison content and because of this refuse to stock it.

'TRUCK-DRIVEN' TOMMY

Wed Truck Driver For 'Spite,' She Declares

The following article was written especially for International News Service by Colette Mulvihill, Pittsburgh girl, who told of her plans of obtaining an annulment of her marriage to Tom Creen, 31, truck driver, in order that she may wed Sam Punturert, son of the proprietor of a night club near Grove City, Pa.

By COLETTE MULVIHILL

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 7.—I want the people who read this article to know that I am not as irresponsible as the papers have painted me.

Tommy is a very fine man and one worthy of a very fine wife, and I sincerely hope he wins the girl he really loves.

COLETTE IN MEDITATION

Tom really deserves happiness and I hope he finds it.

Sammy has tried to protect me from publicity and therefore I think his love is sincere, and I hope that some day I may be his wife and deserving of his love.

My life has been entirely happy as long as I stayed with my mother. I know that she has faith in me and would never fail me. I sincerely hope that Sammy meets with her approval because I am sure that he would love her as much as I do.

FAR-FLYING COLETTE

Mom has never questioned my judgment and if I really love him, which I do, she will be my matron of honor and wish me all the happiness in the world. That is a real mother.

My marriage to Tom was done purely through spite. Sammy and I had quarreled and I agreed to marry Tom thinking it would hurt the man I really loved.

I think the fair thing to do is to have my marriage annulled and go back to Sammy and be free to marry in the church to which we both belong.

My trip to San Francisco may cause trouble, but I refuse to live with Tom when in my own mind I love and belong to another man.

Furthermore, I won't marry Sidrian Paredes, my wealthy Philippine ex-fiance or anybody right now, although I may change my mind.

I want to have two children and pursue my professional career. I'm a dancer.

I'm going to sail for Honolulu Saturday to see my mother. Well, maybe I will. I might get a job in San Francisco. I like it here. Everybody's been so kind to me.

I don't love Tommy, that was all a mistake. I think I'll see a lawyer today and get an annulment. Well, maybe I won't.

That marriage in Shanghai. That was five or six months ago and I don't remember much about it. Just a lot of music and everything. His name was Felice Alberta. I haven't seen him since.

My ideal man must be a big, handsome Irishman, at least 6 feet tall with black curly hair, dark eyes and pretty teeth.

Max Baer might answer the description.

Who do I love most? Well, Sammy's first; Steve (Wild Man) Strelich, second; Sid Paredes, third; Ernest Mouroux, fourth, and that football player at Pittsburgh—I won't tell his name, but he's big and handsome—is fifth. No, I think he's first.

What do I think of the New Deal? I don't play cards.

And I haven't seen the drought, either. Where is it? Oh, you mean the big dry spell. Well, I'm not dry and that's all I care about.

MAN HURT IN 15-FOOT FALL

Harry Brickett, 35, of 1640 Sawmill Run boulevbard, was in St. Joseph's Hospital today with a possible skull fracture, several broken ribs and lacerations suffered, police said, in a 15-foot fall from a footbridge into a creek near Edgebrook avenue and Sawmill Run boulevard, last night.

Questioned at the hospital by Homicide Detectives Frank K. Morgan and James O'Kane, Brickett was unable to account for his injuries, saying he remembers nothing after a drink from a pump near the scene, they reported. Two witness, however, told the detectives Brickett fell from the bridge into the creek.

TEARS OF BLOOD BAFFLE SCIENCE

Accompanied by severe head pains and tears of water, the flow of blood, about 10 cubic centimeters each time, generally occurs at night. Physicians who have examined the patient, Mrs. Eula Santa Maria, said the blood does not come from the tear ducts. Physicians tests have provided no clues to the cause.

Mrs. Santa Maria said she first wept blood about six months ago. Physicians said she is nervous, easily excitable and cries frequently.

Ice packs and medicines are used to stop the flow of blood and ease the pain, which originated in the back of her head and followed the curve of the skull to the forehead.

BREMER KIDNAP SUSPECT FLEES

CLEVELAND, O., Sept. 7.—(AP.)—Detective Inspector Cody, of the Cleveland police, announced he had information indicating that Arthur R. Barker, sought as one of the leaders of the Edward G. Bremer kidnaping gang, had occupied a "hideout" here, and fled yesterday after three women were arrested in a downtown hotel.

Cody said pictures of the three women were being sent to St. Paul police along with fingerprints found in the house here occupied by three men.

A small girl's tip sent police to the hideout last night. Neighbors reported that the three men had left the house in haste. One neighbor was reported to have identified Barker through a picture.

Department of Justice agents and police redoubled their efforts to obtain information from the three women, who were arrested after a fight in the grill room of the hotel.

Cat Plunges Five Stories, Runs Away

PHOENIX, Ariz., Sept. 7.—(AP.)—The United States Weather Bureau here claimed the mythical title for high-diving alley cats.

When a stray invaded the office on the fifth floor of a downtown building the janitor tried to corner it. The cat leaped from the window, clawed at the wires to break the fall, dropped to the sidewalk and scurried away.

Ill Woman Summons Police, Then Faints

Falling unconscious from a heart attack a few minutes after she had called police for help, a woman believed to be Rose Skipp, of 1009 Blackadore avenue, was in a serious condition in West Penn Hospital today. East End police, who took the woman to the hospital, had responded to her appeal with pulmotors. She told them she was subject to heart attacks.

Grenfell Nurse Ends Life at Lonely Post

ST. JOHNS, N. F., Sept. 7.—(Universal.)—Miss Jane Mitchell, of Princeton, N. J., 20-year-old nurse at the Grenfell mission at St. Anthony, Newfoundland, committed suicide 12 days ago by cutting her throat with a razor blade, authorities disclosed today.

Details of Miss Mitchell's death, officials here said, had been kept secret by New York officials of the Grenfell mission because of the illness of the young nurse's mother. Miss Mitchell had suffered a nervous breakdown.

Weather Conditions

High pressure covers most of the country this morning, with its crest over Western Ontario and extending southwestward to Texas. Lows are centered in the Far Southeast and in the Northwest. There is a rain belt over the Ohio Valley states, extending from the lower lakes down to Tennessee and another along the Atlantic coast, from Massachusetts to North Carolina. Temperature changes were slight over the eastern half of the country, with a tendency towards cooler over the lake region and the Ohio Valley states while over the northern plains there was a marked rise in temperature.

TOURIST 'LOSES' WIFE IN PARK

Harry Weber, en route by auto to Gloversville, N. Y., from a visit in Chicago, stopped at North Side Police Station early today to report the disappearance of his wife, Clara, 28, during a pause in their trip in West Park, near West North avenue.

A short time prior to the disappearance they had quarreled, Weber told police, his wife leaving the auto with the statement "she would come back when you cool off." They quarreled, he said, because Weber reprimanded their 6-year-old daughter, Isabel.

Police in a radio car searched the North Side and later went to Lake Elizabeth.

At 4 a. m. Weber apparently quit the search, police said, and disappeared. Mrs. Weber, who is 5 feet 5 inches tall and weighs 115 pounds, was still reported missing at the North Side Police Station.

CHICAGO, Sept. 6.—(AP.)—Wiley Post, 'round-the-world flier, left by automobile today for New York to obtain a new part for the engine of his airplane, the "Winnie Mae," in which he plans to try for a new altitude record. His trip East is expected to delay his stratosphere flight at least a week.

SAMMY DENIES COLETTE LOVE

International News Service.

GROVE CITY, Pa., Sept. 7.—Colette Mulvihill's latest "lover"—Sam Punturert of this city—doesn't share her love!

Reached by telephone he told International News Service when asked whether Colette was going to marry him:

"Not that I know of."

"Well, she claims that she loves you and that you love her. Do you?"

"I don't love her. I've never been out with her. We never had a date."

International News Service.

MANILA, P. I., Sept. 7.—Nothing is known in Manila about the mysterious Felice Alberta, whom Colette Mulvihill, talkative Pittsburgh heiress, said she married in Shanghai five months ago.

And a checkup today revealed the voluble young blonde's mother, Mrs. Thomas J. Mulvihill, former wife of a Pittsburgh oil man, had not departed from the Philippines for Honolulu to meet her daughter, who now is in San Francisco.

BIG WRESTLERS THRILL COLETTE

The 15-year-old heiress, who said she hoped to arrange an annulment of her marriage to Tom Creen, 20-year-old truck driver, said:

"I'm just nuts about wrestling."

Though four magazines and a hatbox were all her baggage when she arrived by airplane Wednesday, the blue-eyed Mrs. Creen managed to equip herself with a black-and-white ensemble and a suede jacket to attend a wrestling program in Vallejo.

She was escorted to the auditorium by Hardy Krushcamp, former Ohio State football player. Between matches, she chatted with a traffic officer, who she described as a "very handsome boy," and then left with Krushcamp.

Mrs. Creen was scheduled to sail for Honolulu today. She indicated she may continue to Manila if her mother, who returned there from Hong Kong recently, fails to meet her midway.

BLIND PASTOR MOURNS DOG ESCORT

'Dot,' Killed by Auto, Served As Cleric's 'Eyes' for Nearly Six Years

And everywhere the pastor went, the dog was sure to go!

For almost six years "Dot," specially-trained German shepherd dog, was the "eyes" of the Rev. Robert A. Blair, blind pastor of the Reformed Presbyterian Church, Parnassus.

"DOT"

"Dot," guiding her master safely through the mazes of Pittsburgh's downtown traffic, was a familiar sight to thousands. Never a mistake, never did the faithful animal lead the blind cleric into danger.

And on Sundays the dog nestled at the minister's feet as he preached to his flock from the pulpit.

But today the Rev. Blair is mourning. "Dot" is dead, run down by an automobile in New Jersey while the Blairs were visiting there.

The Rev. Blair can get a new "seeing dog" from the Nashville (Tenn.) school where he obtained "Dot," but he said he will miss "Dot" as a loyal friend.

STEEDLE FEUD BEFORE STATE G.O.P. HERE

The steering committee of the Republican State Committee, consisting of the state candidates and sectional representatievs, will determine at a meeting tonight whether the committee shall go on record as supporting County Chairman William H. Coleman and Joseph H. Bialas acting chairman of the Allegheny County Independent Committee, in their repudiation of the candidacy of Representative Joseph G. Steedle for re-election to the Legislature in the Twelfth District.

The subject was not discussed Tuesday in Harrisburg when a tentative draft of the platform was adopted, but today there were expressions which made it certain the matter would come before the steering group. There has been some hesitancy about engaging in local conditions.

One prominent Republican today urged that the state and couonty committee rules be changed to permit the removal of a candidate upon conviction of an offense against the election laws, a charge on which Steedle now is under sentence to two years in Federal Court.

REED TO BE NAMED

The committee at its meeting tomorrow will elect Senator David A. Reed as Pennsylvania's national committeeman, succeeding the late William S. Vare. Reed has not sought the job, but his selection was agreed upon as the best way to avoid strife.

Attorney General William A. Schnader, Republican candidate for Governor, arrived in Pittsburgh today with State Chairman M. Harvey Taylor, Senator Harry B. Scott, candidate for Lieutenant Governor, and other state leaders. A series of conferences regarding the platform, to be adopted at tomorrow's meeting, and party affairs in the western end of the state were held.

Taylor conferred with representatives of the Pittsburgh Real Estate Board on taxation planks for the platform, the Pittsburghers being eager for some assurance of reduction in real estate taxes.

PLATFORM STUDIED

The platform was discussed at length today in Senator Reed's office, with Schnader, Taylor and Bialas participating.

It was learned that Schnader talked with Gov. Pinchot over the telephone in a further effort to persuade him to confine his special legislative session call to unemployment relief.

In return for this, the platform makers are disposed to suggest some liberal planks in the party's platform. Gov. Pinchot was assured that such suggestions would include minimum wage and hour legislation for women, unemployment insurance, old age pensions and similar social legislation.

CONFERS WITH WOMEN

Miss S. M. R. O'Hara, vice chairman of the state committee, met with women leaders, including Mrs. Della Hershey, of the independent committee, and Mrs. A. G. H. Frazier, vice chairman of the Republican County Committee.

Schnader during the day conferred with Allegheny County Republicans who were associated with Attorney Charles J. Margiotti in the latter's primary campaign for the Republican gubernatorial nomination, but it was understood that no final commitments were made. The Margiotti group insisted its members first wished to see the platform.

POLITICS :: By Mark Shields

Mr. Shields

The Republican platform committee, with the candidates for state office paramount in its composition, will meet tonight at 8:30 to draft finally a document to be presented to the state committee when it meets tomorrow.

The platform as drafted will be adopted.

There is not the slightest chance that a revolt will develop in the committee meeting to upset any of the decisions of the platform carpenters. There may be some planks which will not meet approval. There may be some omissions which will be equally unsatisfactory, including the refusal to go all the way with a flat declaration for a constitutional convention, but this dissatisfaction will amount to no more than sulkiness tomorrow and the platform will go through like greased lightning.

Today Mr. Joseph Bialas, acting chairman of the Independent Republican Committee, is delegated to write most of this column. Mr. Bialas required no urging. In fact, he wrote it without knowing he was doing so through the medium of a statement he made last night, and which is entitled to full exposition.

Mr. Bialas and his committee as yet not named, urge Gov. Pinchot to restrict his special legislative call to relief.

He charges the Democrats of the state with connivance with Federal Relief Administrator Harry Hopkins in forcing a special session of the Legislature. He points out that Pennsylvania has been carrying its load, up to the last two months, but that the federal government suddenly stepped from under and demanded a special session.

Lest We, Mr. Bialas, Forget Senator Reed

It may be unfair to rake up past history, but it is in memory that three years ago Senator David A. Reed, the ace candidate of the Bialas committee, was assailing Gov. Pinchot because he asked the federal government—then headed by Mr. Hoover—to contribute to Pennsylvania.

It was then said by Mr. Reed and numberless other organization Republicans in Pennsylvania that the duty of relief fell upon the state or local government and not upon the administration at Washington.

It seems now that the picture has changed.

But it is only fair to let Mr. Bialas tell the story, which he does in the following words from now on it being understood that Mr. Bialas has become the author:

"Antics of the Democratic state organization in Pennsylvania with its gubernatorial and senatorial candidate along with the state chairman backed up by all the force of the Democratic national administration in forcing a special session of the Pennsylvania State Legislature now have resulted in the most revolting spectacle of political chicanery ever attempted in this state.

"Never before has human suffering and relief ever been used as a political football to such an extent.

"The Democrats will pay dearly at the polls in November for the selfish and purely political moves made by them in the past month."

Scolds Democrats As Unjust, Insulting

"The compulsory calling of an expensive special session of the Legislature, urged by the Democratic candidates and state leaders and demanded by the Democratic national administration in support of the plot, is an insult to every citizen of Pennsylvania, a rank injustice in taking advantage of threatened suffering and privation for those on relief.

"The Democrats had the effrontery to throw into the faces of the people of Pennsylvania an 'either or else' demand despite their promise that 'no American should go hungry' and despite the lavish outlays to non-reciprocating other states.

"We witness the sorry spectacle of our Governor being forced to call a special session which will cost anywhere from $300,000 to $500,000. And that amount of money would do much worthy relief work.

"And now on the eve of the special session not a single Democrat has come forward with a single plan for taxes for raising the relief funds which the government demands.

"They don't want this special session for the cause of relief but for a political hurdy-gurdy in the vain hope some ammunition will come out of it for the fall campaign.

"It is sincerely to be hoped the Governor limits the session strictly to relief.

"In the first place, it is a "lame duck" legislature. Some of its members were eliminated in the spring primaries or were not candidates. Others, mostly the Democrat members who accidentally slipped in two years ago, will be unseated this fall.

"The records of all who are again candidates on all subjects are well known and their positions made plain in the past session."

G. O. P. TOPPING DEMOCRATS IN REGISTRATION

Republicans outnumber Democrats in Pittsburgh by 14,880, according to the latest figures announced by the Registration Commission. However, another registration will be held October 4 and residents of the city can still register up until the afternoon of October 9.

There were 100,009 Republicans eligible to vote in the spring primaries and since that time there have been 2,282 additional Republicans register. The spring registration showed there were 86,068 Democrats on the rolls and since that time there have been 1,443 Democrats added.

The total registration to date of the two major parties is Republicans, 102,291; Democrats, 87,511. Other party members bring the total registration to date to 190,521.

The additional registration since the primaries indicates that the additional Democrats are but approximately 37 per cent of the total new registration.

FIGHT GAS TAX FOR RELIEF

Gov. Gifford Pinchot was in receipt today of letters from the Pittsburgh Motor Club and other organizations, voicing vigorous protest against any attempt at the coming special legislative session to divert $14,000,000 from the motor fund, or increase the state gasoline tax to provide relief money.

Raiding the motor fund or boosting the gas tax for even such a worthy purpose as relief would be unfair discrimination against motor car users, C. H. Roth, secretary of the motor club, stated in his message to the Governor.

RELIEF BOARD ACTS TO SPEND 11 MILLIONS

International News Service.

HARRISBURG, Sept. 7.—While continuance of direct relief for 1,500,000 needy Pennsylvanians was assured through September, speculation over the scope of Gov. Gifford Pinchot's call for the special legislative session to finance relief was but whetted by delay today.

The state Emergency Relief Board, at its monthly meeting, acted to keep the state's vast jobless aid machinery functioning in high gear by pouring out $11,283,951—all but $37,729 of its available funds to meet demands for the month.

Gov. Pinchot, however, continued his non-committal attitude over the scope of his proclamation calling the Legislature into session next Wednesday at noon.

CRISIS FACED

The Assembly must meet the relief crisis brought about by refusal of the federal government to continue furnishing the state money for relief without a matching appropriation by the commonwealth. The belief gained ground that the call will be delayed until Monday.

It was reported from sources close to the executive offices that Gov. Pinchot will not decide finally whether to limit the special session to the subject of raising money for relief or throw its deliberations open to a variety of social legislative topics until after the Republican state campaign platform is adopted Saturday.

These same sources explained that if the Governor was satisfied with the G. O. P. platform he probably would issue a limited call; that if he was not satisfied he would keep his promise of July to hold a "wide open" session.

EMERGENCY FUND

A flat sum of $1,320,000 was earmarked by the Relief Board out of its allocations of $11,283,951 to meet possible emergencies of increased relief rolls or to provide a reserve to carry needy aid into October if an agreement has not been reached by the Legislature at that time.

The board appropriated $6,852,779 to counties for direct relief but made no allocation for work relief to start the new works program which had been expected to get underway the middle of this month.

OTHER GRANTS

Other grants made by the board were $829,200 in additional food allocations to counties for August; $1,000,000 to the clothing fund, $508,012 for administrative expenses; $640,000 to purchase government-canned beef from drought-killed cattle; $218,118 to the bureau of transients; $150,000 to the medical fund; $81,853 for work relief workmen's compensation premiums, $50,000 for college students' work relief program, and $2,000 for transportation charges in moving several score unemployed miners from Clearfield county to new homes and jobs in Tioga County.

M'GOVERN QUITS RELIEF BOARD

The resignation of County Commissioner Charles C. McGovern from the Allegheny County Relief Board was the first of several moves to "supplant certain members with those who can give more time and interest to the task of administering public relief," John W. Lawrence, chairman of the county board, explained today.

Announcement of McGovern's resignation was made yesterday in Harrisburg, at which the state relief board alloted $1,398,325 to Allegheny County for September.

Lawrence said he had notified each of the nine members of the board of the state's attitude and "Col. McGovern generously resigned."

COLBY BRANDS BRAIN TRUST AS RED

Universal Service.

PORTLAND, Me., Sept. 7—Bainbridge Colby last night lashed the Roosevelt "brain trust" as one which "out-Russias Russia," and by inference criticized the President for listening to such counsellors.

Speaking on the eve of the Maine elections under the auspices of the American Coalition of Patriotic Societies, Colby flayed Under Secretary of Agriculture Rexford Tugwell as a "Bolshevik chatterer," and denounced Upton Sinclair, Socialist-Democratic nominee for Governor of California, as a "pandering demagogue."

Colby, Secretary of State in the Wilson administration, charged that President Roosevelt's pledge to adhere to the Democratic platform "one hundred per cent" nad been "ignored and repudiated" nearly to that extent.

LIBERTIES PERILED

Constitutional guarantees have been flouted, and the very liberties of Americans are endangered, Colby declared, urging Maine to send to the next Congress "self-respecting representatives rather than rubber stamp men."

He pictured the government as intruding in nearly every field of private enterprise under a huge bureaucracy, and said that the government is using its vast power in destructive competition with its own citizens.

He lamented the "wanton and nearly complete destruction of the national credit." Colby declared it is "openly charged and indeed admitted" that a substantial number of the President's immediate advisers are not desirous of a business revival, "feeling that to prolong the depression will produce a better psychological background for the prosecution of their revolutionary designs."

SOVIET CONCEPT

He predicted that "collective farming, state operations of factories and gradually the entire Soviet concept of a regimented life" are to be set up on American soil. He said that America is becoming the "land of the oppressed," like regimented Germany and regimented Russia, "from whose sodden and prostrate life the New Dealers draw so large a part of their inspiration."

He appealed to the Maine citizenry to vote as patriots, to re-establish their endangered liberties. The issue he said is "whether the freedom which Americans have enjoyed for generations is to survive or perish."

Among the broken promises of the present Democratic leadership he said are the unbalanced budget, fostering of monopolies by suspension of the anti-trust laws, unsound money, and contempt for individual freedom, personal security, the right of free contract, the right of protection in property, and the right of appeal to the courts. He lamented that "imposed regimentation and bureaucratic control are to take the place of American ingenuity and enterprise."

Sinclair to 'Shelve' State Legislature

NEW YORK, Sept. 7.—(INS.)—Upton Sinclair, Democratic nominee for Governor of California, announced today that if elected on November 6 he intends to ignore the State Legislature and place his Epic program directly before the people for approval by invoking the system of initiative and referendum.

Sinclair said he saw no reason why his Epic policy—so called as an abbreviation of his campaign war-cry to "End Poverty in California"—should be submitted to the Legislature.

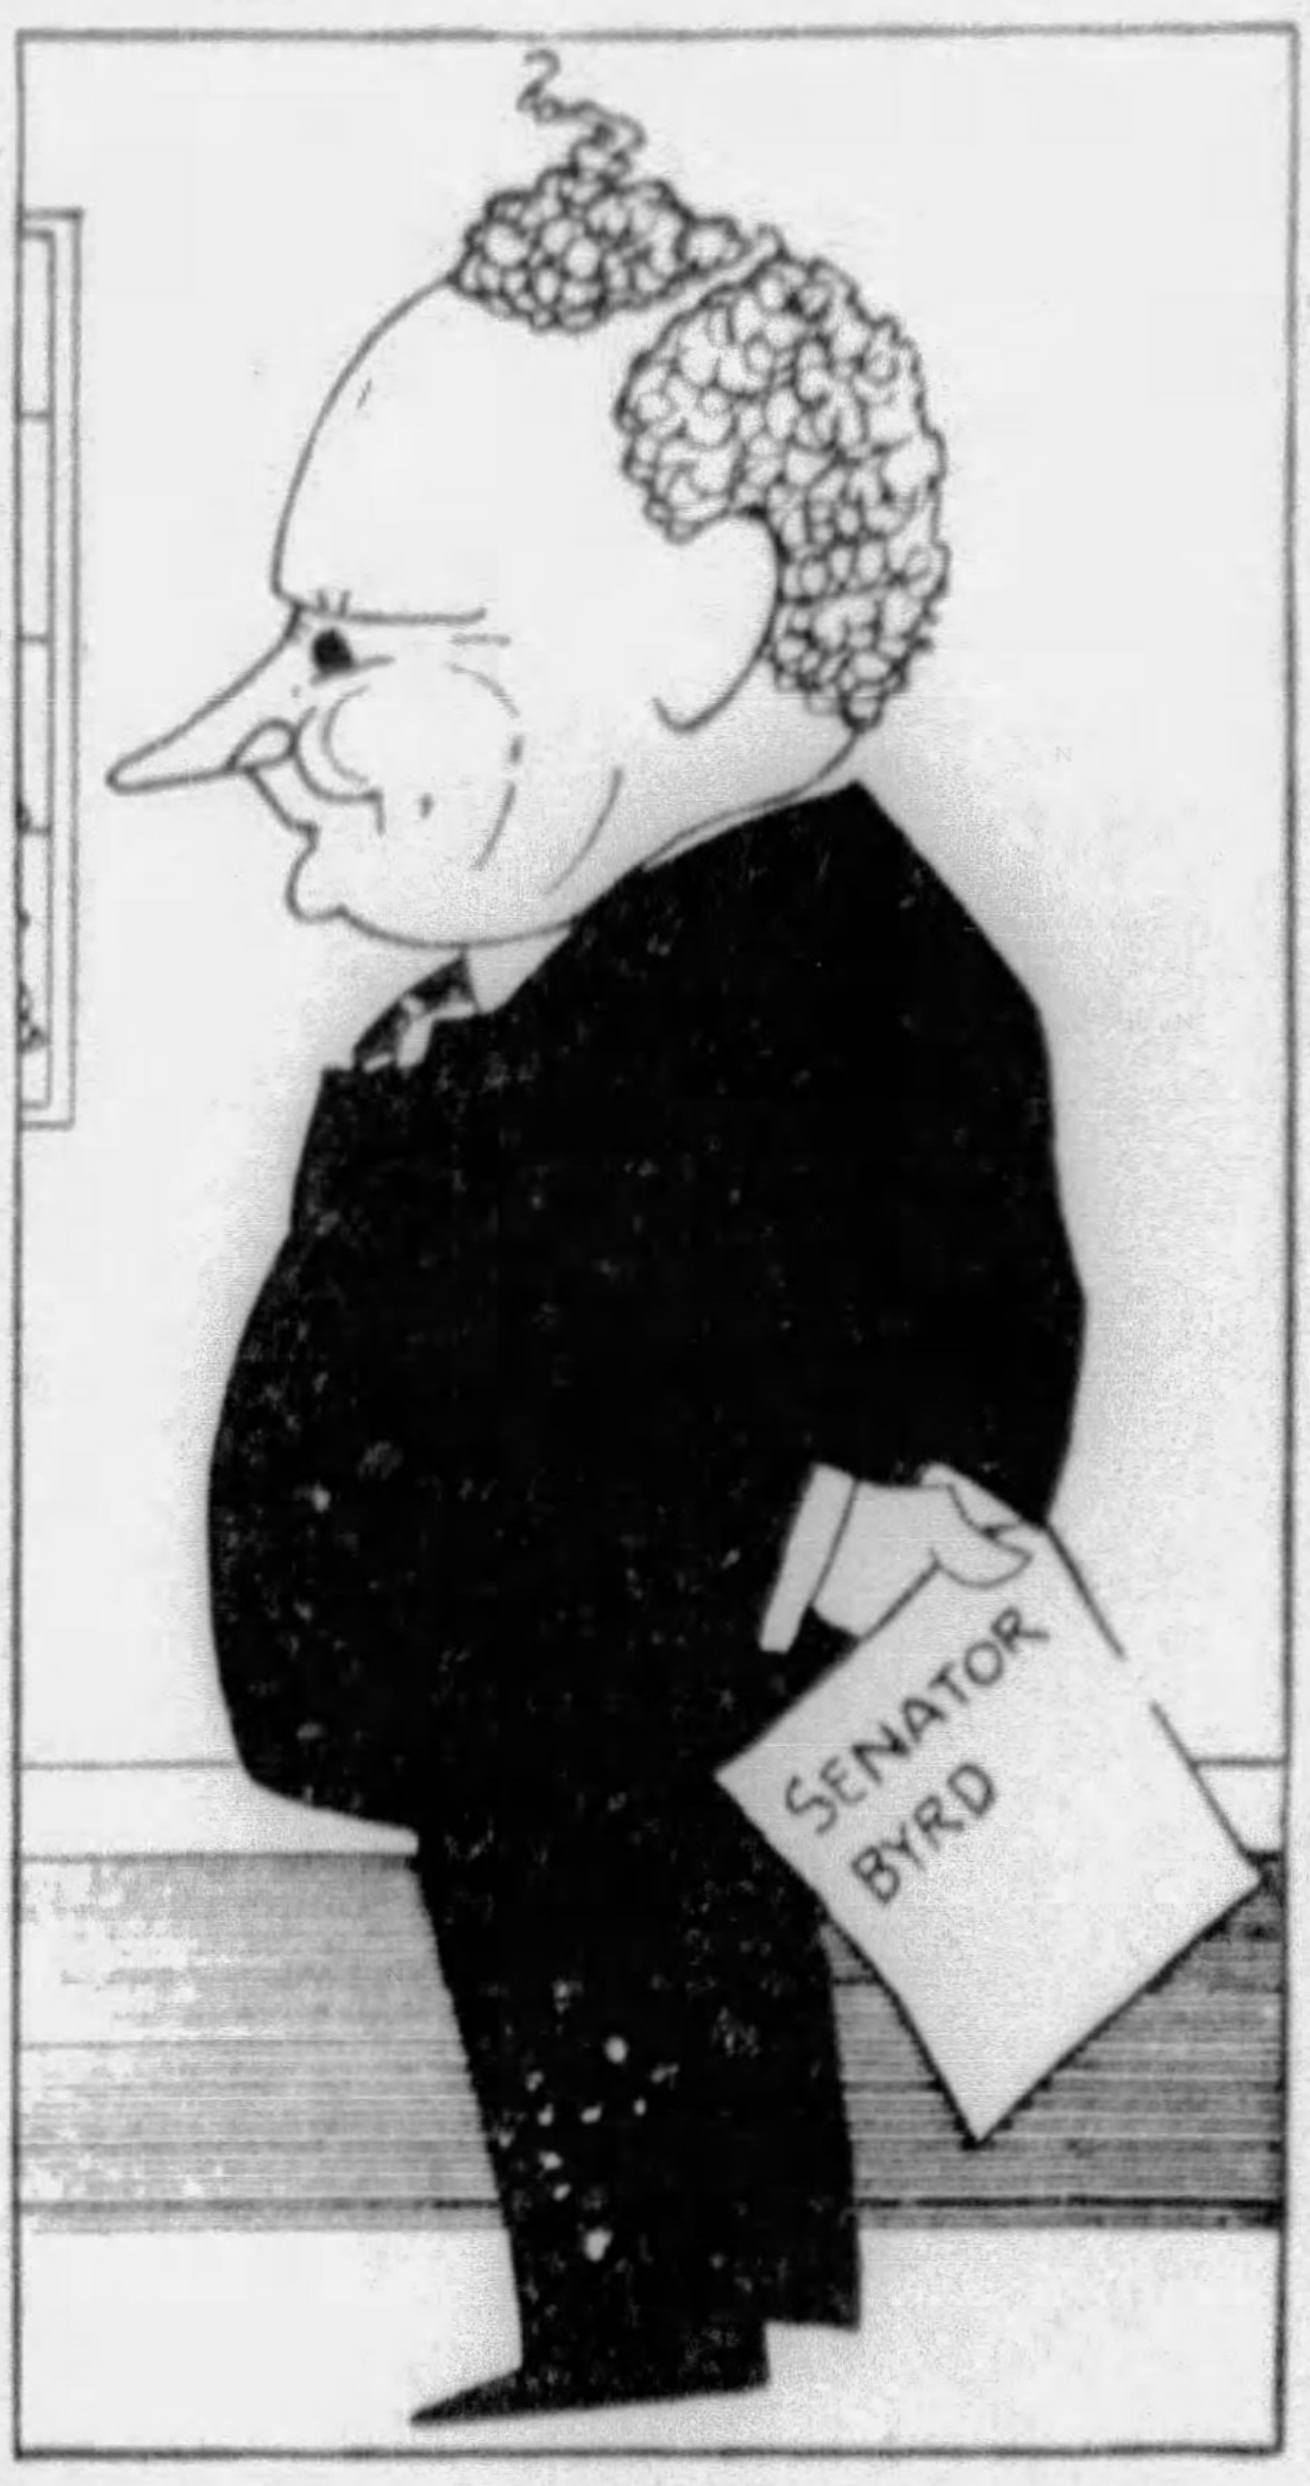
Mercer Bankers Escape Indictment

MERCER, Pa., Sept. 7.—Although they found officials of the closed Colonial Trust Company at Farrell were shady in some of their business, a Mercer County grand jury today ruled there was no basis for criminal action. The bank failed to open after the national bank holiday.

Revolt Against 'New Deal' To Get Spurt In Congress

AAA, NRA Face Big Barrage

Revolt against brain trust policies in the New Deal is expected to reach its climax at the coming session of Congress, according to a survey of important resignations from the Roosevelt administration.



Caricature by Malone

VIRGINIA'S U. S. SENATOR BYRD

Universal Service.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 7—Revolt against the "New Deal" by "New Dealers" extends from the Capitol into almost all federal departments, but the full force of the uprising is expected to be reached when Congress convenes in January.

At that time, congressmen who have remained silent as they watched policies formulated which they secretly disapproved, are preparing to cut loose. Many who have already revolted publicly are ready to renew their attack.

AAA and NRA will bear the brunt of the fire. When some senators who have privately berated the "New Deal" step into the open the list of names is expected to be astounding.

SENATOR McCARRAN

Byrd, of Virginia, is ready again to open fire on AAA, with McGill, of Kansas, joining him in the fight against "Brain Trust" proposals to let AAA license every farm product sold, whether a single carrot or a calf.

Smith, of South Carolina, chairman of the Agriculture Committee, is ready to battle again against general "Brain Trust" dictation over how a farmer shall handle a plow.

McCarran is going to swing his guns into action again on the "New Deal" air mail legislation. King, of Utah, if re-elected, may join the Nevada Senator.

Men like Reynolds, of North Carolina, heretofore silent, may step into the open against NRA, while J. Hamilton Lewis, of Illinois, chairman of the Democratic Congressional Campaign Committee and Senate whip, already has openly attacked features of NRA, "New Deal" keystone.

Morocco Shuts Out German Newspapers

CASABLANCA, Morocco, Sept. 7.—(AP.)—Authorities here ordered the exclusion of certain German newspapers from Morocco, charging the publications had attempted to incite the natives against France.

The Deutsche Algemeine Zeitung and the Lokal Anzeiger were barred from the North African protectorate.

Oregon Woman Dies From Sting of Bee

NEW DEAL TEST IN NEBRASKA

LINCOLN, Neb., Sept. 7.—(AP.)—Nebraska is destined to become the battleground for a clear-cut test of the New Deal versus the Old Deal, and the result will be determined by ballots cast in the November election.

This was assured yesterday at the state party conventions, in which the Democrats pledged renewed loyalty to the New Deal.

LIBERTY LEAGUE ATTACKS NEW DEAL

By GEORGE R. HOLMES

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 7.—Blunt notice that the newly organized American Liberty League, Al Smith, John W. Davis, et al., intends to fight many features of the Roosevelt New Deal was served today in the form of a statement further outlining the purposes and intentions of the league.

Combined with mounting attacks on the New Deal in other quarters, it now seems crystal clear that the so-called radical aspect of the Roosevelt recovery program are in for a thorough going over in the approaching congressional campaign, and, more importantly, in the general election of 1936, when Mr. Roosevelt as well as a new Congress are to be elected.

In its new statement, the first it has issued since President Roosevelt chided it for "loving its property more than its neighbors," the league disclaimed being anti-New Deal or anti-Roosevelt, and, indirectly, it retorted to Mr. Roosevelt by saying the league movement "will not be settled by the wise-cracks of politicians and partisans, or epithets that come from those unfamiliar with its solemnity of purpose."

The league stated that due to lack of time and organization it will not really be in a position to function effectively in the November campaign, but with two years to go it will be ready for the fray of 1936. It is on 1936 that the league and its distinguished sponsors really have their eye.

M'ADOO SILENT ON SINCLAIR

HYDE PARK, N. Y., Sept. 7.—(AP.)—Senator William Gibbs McAdoo (Dem.), of California, called at the summer White House today to consider with President Roosevelt the California political situation. He declined to state just what his attitude was toward Upton Sinclair, Democratic gubernatorial nominee.

TEXTILE STRIKE GROWING; PEACE BOARD MEETS; TEN LIE DEAD

tional Industrial Relations Board, and such other agencies and individuals as may be helpful."

The members of the President's board—Gov. John S. Winant, of New Hampshire; Raymond V. Ingersoll, Brooklyn Borough President, and Marion Smith, chairman of the Atlanta Regional Labor Board—were joined by Charles Wyzanski, Labor Department solicitor, and A. J. Altmyer, Second Assistant Labor Secretary, in the conference with the Labor Board.

GORMAN SEES SUCCESS

Francis J. Gorman, chairman of the textile strike committee, said his prediction of an 85 per cent tie-up of the industry before the end of the week already had been achieved, with the cotton textile industry completely closed and the silk and wool industries to be almost completely shut down by nightfall.

He denied a general strike of all labor unions was imminent and asserted "our quarrel is with the textile industry alone and with no other. It is not within our province to interfere in any way with other international unions."

Yesterday, in a formal statement, Gorman said there might be a general strike of other unions if the employers' attitude "continues to be that of middle-age feudal barons."

Gorman renewed his denunciation of use of National Guard units in the South and asserted "these units are being used against the strikers and in behalf of the mill owners." He said:

"In the face of this action, we propose to ask the federal government to use its military forces wherever it may be necessary for the protection of textile workers who in this strike have acted within their rights under the law."

FATAL RIOTS HALTED

The situation in the South was comparatively quiet after yesterday's violence resulting in the killing of seven strikers and sympathizers. Rain helped to curb the enthusiasm of pickets and "flying squadrons."

In New England the ranks of the idle increased more than 2,800 to an estimated 142,628, with 82,492 still employed. In some parts of New England mills were closed because of strike activity and in others workers and mill owners successfully resisted efforts of strikers to force shutdowns.

At Lawrence, Mass., a "flying squadron" was turned back by police who deployed across the highway and warned strikers that they would face serious trouble if they entered the city.

A dozen or so members of the "flying squad" who slipped past the police cordon were taken into custody and held at police headquarters.

ANOTHER MILL CLOSING

At the Lawrence mills of the American Woolen Company, where 6,300 are employed, it was announced that the plant would be closed for two weeks beginning today because of lack of business, in accordance with a previous announcement.

Additional plants in the Pawtucket, R. I., area closed, increasing the number of idle about 2,000, and union leaders planned a drive on Rhode Island finishing and bleachery plants.

In Pittsfield, Me., 500 pickets failed to close the plant of Lancey D. Milliken, Inc., as workers entered under guard of state troopers and police officers.

Some 1,500 strikers were picketing the American Thread Mills in Willimantic, Conn., where 1,500 employes have remained at work. Local and state police were on duty.

2 Danger Spots Watched In New England Strike

BOSTON, Sept. 7.—(AP.)—Attention in the textile strike in New England turned today toward Lawrence, where approximately 20,000 textile workers have been plying their trade, untouched by the general strike.

Dighton, in Southeastern Massachusetts, also drew attention as the first private armed guards reported in New England paced before the gates of the Mount Hope Finishing Company's plant.

Apparently, United Textile Workers of America groups were intent on picketing the mills at Lawrence, once a storm center in any textile unrest, but at present the most peaceful and content of any large New England mill community.

There were reports that Horace Riviere, New England strike director, was planning to throw his "flying squadron" picketers into the peaceful city.

The situation at Dighton was unprecedented. Roads to the mill area were blockaded and no one was admitted without first satisfying the guards he had business there. The 150 armed private guards were brought from New York last night. Dighton selectmen declared an emergency and swore in 75 workers in the Mt. Hope mills as special deputies to the six regular police officers.

It was believed the first instance where armed mill workers have been employed to protect their owner.

Gov. Joseph B. Ely last night said he was not considering the use of state police or National Guardsmen in the strike situation.

7 Dead in Carolinas And Machine Guns Set

CHARLOTTE, N. C., Sept. 7.—(AP.)—Bristling bayonets and machine guns in the hands of nearly 50 National Guard units were posted along the textile front today to preserve order in the wake of clashes which cost seven lives in the preceding 24 hours.

The activities of cruising "flying squadrons" of pickets, sometimes numbering several thousand men and women, were virtually at a standstill today after swelling the ranks of strikers to 71,500 in North Carolina and to 36,000 in South Carolina.

While armed troops pitched camp in dozens of mill communities, Gov. Blackwood, of South Carolina, said he was "seriously considering declaring certain areas in a state of insurrection." He said he had received many requests for martial law. Action on these requests, he said, would depend upon further developments in the strike zones.

GOV. BLACKWOOD

Although picketing subsided in the Palmetto State yesterday following the killing of six members of a "flying squadron" of pickets at Honea Path, S. C., and a bystander at Greenville, S. C., the situation was described as tense in many mill communities.

North Carolina troops today had been sent into nearly ever sector of the strike front; and many mills, which had previously closed down as a "precautionary measure" prepared to open under their protection.

Sympathy Strikes Loom In Pennsylvania Field

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 7.—(AP.)—Threats of sympathy walkouts from other lines of the garment industry are the only apparent gains of the textile strike in Pennsylvania.

Neither progress nor loss in the field now covered by the tie-up was reported by the strikers last night at the end of the walkout's third day.

Blue Eagle Officials Salute Girl As Boss When NRA Johnson's Away

GEN. JOHNSON AND NRA'S "THE BOSS"

Message to Aide Cited In Proof That's So

MR. BERRY

WASHINGTON, Sept. 7.—(AP.)—Col. G. A. Lynch may be NRA's executive officer, but to a lot of Blue Eagle officials Miss Frances Robinson is "the boss" during Hugh S. Johnson's absence.

Newsmen were questioning George L. Berry, division administrator, about the employment as deputy administrator at $6,800 a year of John Wilsheares, brother-in-law of Miss Robinson, who is Johnson's personal assistant, when a messenger interrupted to say "the boss wants you."

"Is she back?" Berry asked, ending the interview.

During the conference he had defended the appointment of Miss Robinson's brother-in-law by saying:

"Miss Robinson had no more to do with the employment of Jack Wilsheares than my office boy. I didn't know he was her brother-in-law. If I had it wouldn't have made any difference."

"There are enough two-fisted men around here to attack without picking on a little woman. I'm not accustomed to issuing statements, but I want that one to go. If anyone doubts my high regard for Miss Robinson's ability and loyalty, they are mistaken. I think she is one million per cent in every detail."

PRESIDENT MUM IN STRIKE CRISIS

International News Service.

HYDE PARK, N. Y., Sept. 7.—Reports of violence and unrest in connection with the general strike failed to get a verbal rise from President Roosevelt here today.

Mr. Roosevelt felt that the present was no time for him to step in. He has already named a special mediation board. He continued to keep himself informed as to every move made, but further than this, he would not go.

When and if—the strike reaches such violence and proportions that the President considers it necessary to step in personally, it was assured here, he will do so. Until then, according to word here, he will remain quiet.

Methodists Name Group on Merger

NEW YORK, Sept. 7.—(AP.)—Officers of the Methodist Episcopal Church here announced today that a committee of 15, headed by Bishop Edwin Holt Hughes, of Washington, has been named to draft a unification plan for the church.

The committee was named at a meeting of representatives of the Methodist Episcopal Church, the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, and Methodist Protestant churches held in Chicago, August 28 and 29.

North Side Woman Fined After Raid

Mrs. Anna Kuds, 40, of 1309 Franklin street, was fined $50 or 30 days in jail in North Side Police Court today for keeping a disorderly house. Police testified that they found more than a gallon of illegal liquor in her house last night.

NRA Chief's Son Given Promotion

WASHINGTON, Sept. 7.—(AP.)—Second Lieut. Kilbourne Johnston, aide to his father, NRA Administrator Hugh S. Johnson, was promoted today to first lieutenant of infantry.

Lieut. Johnston

Picket, 5 Policemen Hurt in Milwaukee

MILWAUKEE, Sept. 7.—(AP.)—Disorders broke out among 300 pickets at the Geuder, Paeschke & Frey Enamel Ware plant and resulted in the injury of five policemen and a picket, and the arrest of four men.

The picket and two policemen were bruised when the strike pickets overturned a police patrol wagon. A third policeman was pushed through the glass of a plant door. Another officer was kicked in the groin and a fifth was cut on the hand by glass.

PRICE FIXING LAID TO REED

WASHINGTON, Sept. 7.—(AP.)—United States Senator David A. Reed, New Deal critic, has been dubbed by an NRA divisional administrator as an ardent supporter of a "flagrant case" of price fixing.

Reed says he is "in accord" with wholesale confectioners' demands for a 25 per cent minimum "mark up" provision in their code, the NRA official, Armin W. Riley, declares.

ACT TO REOPEN ALUMINUM PLANTS

Making equipment ready for a general return to work Monday, after a strike of 3,500 workers lasting a month, more than 200 men are on the job in the New Kensington and Arnold plants of the Aluminum Company of America today, union officials estimated.

A force of about 100 millwrights, oilers and furnace men started reopening preparations last night.

Headed by J. Paul Howlett, Aluminum Workers' Union No. 18356 president, union officials went directly from the meeting at which workers voted to accept the "peace pact" agreement and return to work, to the office of Ralph Ferry, mill superintendent.

Ferry, it was said, supplied the list of men the company would need to resume operations. The union then posted these lists on union bulletin boards at 5 p. m.

Some of the strikers at their meeting in Moose Temple, New Kensington, late yesterday, did not accept the peace terms agreed upon between their leaders and company officials without a bitter argument.

Reporters, forbidden to enter the secret session and waiting outside the doors, heard alternately at times the approval of handclapping and the rumble of revolt.

The vote to return to work, however, according to David Williams, Pittsburgh representative of the American Federation of Labor, was overwhelming.

A demand for a secret ballot was voted down, he said, and the vote taken merely by a show of hands. More than 1,500 workers, including many girl workers, were present.

Steel Socialization Proposed in Britain

WEYMOUTH, England, Sept. 7.—(AP.)—The British Trades Union Congress today unanimously adopted a report approving a scheme for the socialization of the British iron and steel industry.

By this plan, an act of Parliament would set up a British Iron and Steel Corporation to take over all enterprises manufacturing iron and steel products from pig iron to finished articles.

DYERS LOCKOUT AIDED BY UNION

CHICAGO, Sept. 7.—(AP.)—Chicagoans today prepared to clean their own suits and dresses—or wear them spots and all.

All but four of the city's major cleaning plants were reported closed and 3,000 employes idle as the result of lockouts protesting "chiseling" by cut-rate cleaners.

Charging price and wage cutting by some establishments had created "impossible operating conditions," the Chicago Cleaners' and Dyers' Association ordered the shutdown to bring the situation to the attention of city officials and the National Recovery Administration.

Members of the Cleaners, Dyers and Pressers Union announced support of the lockout and began picketing unorganized plants in an effort to enforce a complete tieup.

2,400 Gotham Cafes To Quit Selling Rum

NEW YORK, Sept. 7.—(INS.)—Of the 6,000 restaurants in New York City, where liquor may be obtained legally, about 2,400 or 40 per cent will not file applications for renewal of their licenses, Paul Henkel, president of the Society of Restaurants, Inc., reported today. High taxes, the cost of operation and the cost of licenses were the reasons, he said.

CREAM SEIZED AS U. S. DRIVE BEGINS HERE

A government survey to stop shipments of unsanitary and unwholesome cream from other states to creameries in the Pittsburgh district is under way by food and drug inspectors of the Department of Agriculture. The State Board of Food and Chemistry and city authorities are co-operating with the federal agents and will stop such shipments made within the state.

Suits seeking seizure and condemnation of three shipments of cream from West Virginia have been filed in the Federal District Court by United States Attorney H. S. Dumbauld, on complaints made by F. L. Wollard, chief of the Food and Drug Inspection Station, Buffalo, which has supervision over Western Pennsylvania.

City authorities, at the request of the government inspectors, placed embargoes against 28 other interstate shipments, pending the filing of libels in Federal Court, as well as a number on shipments within the state, for prosecution in the state courts. Four thousand cans, containing approximately 28,000 gallons of cream, were examined yesterday by the federal, state and city inspectors.

The investigation is part of a nation-wide survey being made by the government. Chief Wollard came to Pittsburgh with Walter Greene, of Washington, a cream expert, and a force of 10 food and drug inspectors.

"We found in our first day investigation only about 2 per cent bad product. Investigations in some other cities disclosed that as much as 10 per cent of the cream was unfit for use.

"The government survey pertains only to interstate shipments and our first reports disclosed that approximately 65 per cent of the cream received in the Pittsburgh district comes from shippers in Ohio, West Virginia, Virginia and Maryland."

The libel suits were instituted against "one five-gallon can, more or less, of cream," shipped from Walkersville, Huttonsville and Mannington, all West Virginia towns.

Judge R. M. Gibson, before whom the libels were filed, directed the seizure, and set September 21 for a hearing.

GREASE TRAPS HIT-RUNNER

International News Service.

BOSTON, Sept. 7.—Smart police work, reminiscent of the methods employed by fiction's arch-sleuth, Sherlock Holmes, resulted in a $16,761.25 verdict against a Boston firm in connection with the death of Mrs. Mary J. Treen, of Cambridge, who was struck and fatally injured by a truck early one morning.

All police had to work on was the evidence that Mrs. Treen was struck by a large red truck while she was crossing Massachusetts avenue to board a street car.

The truck was traced to Arlington and then to Ayer, where police questioned the driver.

He was waved aside and police, producing one of Mrs. Treen's shoes with grease on it, demonstrated that the grease on the shoe had come from the radius rod of the truck.

4 SLAIN IN FIGHT FOR GYPSY GIRL

BUDAPEST, Sept. 7.—(AP.)—Four minstrel gypsies, two of them women, were killed and 14 others were wounded at Miskolc, near here, in a fierce battle between rival gypsy caravans for possession of a 17-year-old girl regarded the beauty of the clan.

Knives, daggers, pistols, hammers and scythes were employed indiscriminately for the bloody encounter, in which the nomadic women took a leading part. Six of the wounded gypsies were expected to die.

Injured by Shotgun Discharged in Fall

SANTA [illegible], Cal., Sept. 7.—(AP.)—A freak accident yesterday cost P. M. Thompson, 45, the loss of his right foot and left hand.

With a shotgun in hand, he stumbled and fell. The gun was discharged, and the charge shattered his hand.

BRAWL BRINGS RIOT CALL

A fight started in a North Side spot last night was resumed at Stanwix street and Liberty avenue early today. Fists of a score of men and three women flew thick and fast for several minutes, the melee ending after a riot call had been radioed to police summoning patrols from Central, Center Avenue and North Side police stations and 15 patrolmen.

When police arrived the crowd had dispersed. Witnesses told police four men had been attacked by 15 men and three women who came from the North Side.

REPEAL REVIVES GROUNDHOG FEAST

PUNXSUTAWNEY, Pa., Sept. 7.—Folks used to ask, "How much wood can a woodchuck chuck?"

Today they are asking how much woodchuck can a good man chuck, and the answer, boys and girls, is plenty.

One hundred yearling woodchucks, "groundhogs to you", gave gastronomical delight yesterday to some 500 or more hardy Punxsutawnians and their friends. Yes, they ate them. It's an old Indian custom.

The occasion was the thirty-sixth annual groundhog hunt, revived last year after a lapse of 11 years due to prohibition. The reason for the lapse, well it seems that groundhog isn't such a tasty dish without good beer. It was extra good this year, the beer being what it is, at least 5 per cent.

And when the groundhog was finished there was chicken, corn on the cob, cold cuts and more beer. And groundhog punch for everybody including the groundhog.

The groundhog, well he seemed to enjoy it too, although it is to be admitted he appeared a bit backward at first.

First off, he wouldn't come out to greet the boys, so with a band and Dr. Frank A. Lorenzo at their head, the boys trooped back into the woods to meet him.

Board Will Hear Becks Run Protest

A hearing on protests of residents of the Becks Run district on the abandonment of the Becks Run School, will be granted by the Board of Public Education, H. G. Masters said today. It will be held September 18, he said, adding that if arrangements could be made an earlier date might be named.

Under arrangements made by the board when it was decided to abandon the old building, pupils were to be transported from their homes to the Wickersham School, on Carson street, in taxicabs furnished by the school board.

MOVIES FINISH DICKENS TALE

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Sept. 7.—(AP.)—Dickens' unfinished novel, "The Mystery of Edwin Drood," has been finished—by Hollywood.

Stored away in a vault at a local film studio is a solution of the mystery left unsolved by the famous novelist. Written by studio scenarists, the conclusion of the story will be kept strictly secret until it is flashed upon the silver screen.

Claude ains and Heather Angel, English actress who recently became the bride of Actor Ralph Forbes, will be featured in the film.

The same studio today filmed the last sequence of another Dickens story, "Great Expectations," starring Henry Hugl and Jane Wyatt, Broadway stage players.

Three Men Freed In Park Robberies

Three men arrested as suspects in petty robberies in Schenley Park were freed by Magistrate John B. Kearney in Oakland Police Court when no one appeared who could identify any of the three.

URGE FREE CARE OF DISEASES

Approximately 8 to 12 per cent of all city dwellers in the United States are infected with one of the two so-called major "social diseases," according to estimates by medical authorities here.

The prevalence of these diseases was disclosed in a statement of the Community Fund, in which Dr. W. W. McFarland, former city health director, urged free treatment for needy persons suffering from them.

Dr. McFarland, chairman of the General Health Council's committee studying the situation here, quoted a report of Federal Investigator Douglas P. Falconer, who found that facilities of the County Relief Board for free care in such cases were "extremely meager."

The doctor stated that compulsory treatment for relief clients afflicted with such illnesses would be a significant step forward in the fight to stop the spread of the diseases.

ELECTRIC MEN HEAR EMERY

BEDFORD SPRINGS, Pa., Sept. 7.—(AP.)—James A. Emery, general counsel for the National Association of Manufacturers, today called for greater confidence as the driving force needed to restore "the day of economic recovery" in America.

Speaking to the Pennsylvania Electric Association, Emery said:

"Within a year and a half, the business practices and political concepts of the nation have passed through a period of revolutionary change. The last Congress enacted a variety of measures exciting wide disagreements in principle and policy. The indications are that its successor will be urged and will itself originate equally novel proposals."

In the cup—that's where the delicious difference shows up. That smoother, richer, extra-fresh difference—because Kroger Coffees are hot-dated at the roasting ovens—rushed direct to the stores—and taken off the shelves before they have time to get stale.

What does this tell you? That Kroger Coffees are the freshest you can buy. Where other coffees begin their store "time limit" with the delivery date, Kroger Coffees begin theirs with the roasting date. (And you'll see this roasting date symbol stamped on the bottom of each sealed bag of Kroger Coffees.) While other coffees are ground in advance, Kroger grinds its coffees at the time of purchase (except vacuum-packed Country Club). Yes, Kroger goes the limit in bringing coffee to you at its freshest, fullest flavor.

Already the coffee lovers in this town are passing on the good word that Kroger's Hot-Dated Coffees are better in the blend, better in the cup. Yes, and better for you. They perk you up—pick you up—as only the freshest coffee can do. Get a pound at your nearest Kroger Store. Be amazed that such marvelously good coffee costs so little.

DILLINGER CASH STRONG BOXES HUNTED

CHICAGO, Sept. 7.—(AP.)—The hunt for the fortune in Dillinger bank loot turned today to the safety deposit boxes of Louis Piquett.

Piquett, the late desperado's attorney, and the reputed paymaster for the mob, was one of seven persons reported named in true bills accusing them of harboring the outlaw, and his lieutenant, Homer Van Meter.

Federal agents said all financial transactions by the gang passed through Piquett's hands. The lawyer is accused of having paid $10,000 to Dr. William Loeser and Dr. Harold Bernard Cassidy, who were indicted following their confessions that they performed facial surgery on the two gangsters.

'WOMAN IN RED' HELD INNOCENT

ERIE, Pa., Sept. 7.—(AP.)—It was Lady Luck, and not a "lady in red" who led Bank Robber John Dillinger to the grave, says Capt. Tim O'Malley, of East Chicago (Ind.) police.

O'Malley, credited by some with firing one of the fatal shots which downed Dillinger in front of a Chicago motion picture theater, refused to discuss who actually did the shooting.

"The girl in red was innocent. We had other information regarding Dillinger."

The luck element in Dillinger's death, said Capt. O'Malley, was contained in the fact that Dillinger was deserted by several girl friends on his fatal day. He asserted:

"Dillinger was to have taken a red-dressed girl for a ride that day in an automobile. However, Homer Van Meter, now dead also, borrowed the automobile, and then the tip came out on Dillinger's intentions to visit the movie."

Dillinger Moll Gets O. K. for Fair Show

MARY KINDER

Will Sign Articles On Life as Lesson Against Crime

DETROIT, Sept. 7.—(AP.)—The Michigan State Fair Board today will decide whether Mary Kinder, who spent four months with the John Dillinger gang, will be permitted to appear in connection with a concession at the State Fair here, autographing articles she has written on her life.

John N. Anhut, attorney for the board, said Miss Kinder has assured him she was appearing as an "object lesson against crime" and was not exploiting her association with the Dillinger mob. Anhut said she would be permitted to appear until the board makes a final decision.

The board considered barring her because of recent city action prohibiting Dillinger's father and members of the family from appearing at local theaters.

HANNAH AND JACK :: On Radio With Globetrotter :: OLDSTERS SING TONIGHT

Jouett Shouse Airing Liberty League's Objectives

MR. AND MRS. JACK DEMPSEY

Here's a premier for Pittsburgh! And premiers are what we need more of in our home town. Hannah Williams (cheerful little earful) and Jack Dempsey (new papa) will be interviewed at 12:15 Saturday on WCAE. Louis Kaufman, the Globe Trotter, will ask the questions.

Saturday's broadcast will be the first in which Jack Dempsey and his wife have co-starred (it's the first time Hannah has ever consented to broadcast). Hannah Jr., shyly refused to comment when interrogated by Mr. Kaufman.

Jack is expected to say a few words appropos of the big fight. Hannah is going to talk about the baby . . . if . . . Miss Dempsey permits her mother to attend. You know how babies are . . . changing their mothers' plans at the last minute the way they do.

* * *

Jouett Shouse speaks tonight at 10 (KDKA) for the American Liberty League. That is the new anti-New Deal group of prominent men who are opposed to the President's policies. Mr. Shouse is expected to discuss the objects and purposes of the league.

* * *

That old-timers' program on KDKA tonight (8:30) is featuring songs from way back when you dated letters 1915. Sherman MacGregor, production man, is going to sing a song from those by-gone days entitled "I Can Dance With Everybody!" Do you suppose kilts have anything to do with such popularity?

* * *

The Vass family . . . the air feature of Saturday morning's schedule . . . is branching out. Emily, the youngest member, plays a star role in the Billy Batchelor sketches and Mrs. Railing, an aunt, recently completed a special engagement in London for the BCC. The Vasses, the non-theatrical family of a college professor, started in radio two years ago for the thrill of getting on the air. (WCAE tomorrow morning, 11:15.)

* * *

Believe it or not, lovely Jane Froman used to be one of those athletic girls. When Jane was in college . . . (she has two or three degrees, one of which is a master's) . . . she was on the basketball and swimming teams. Jane wanted to be a writer and studied to be one. Music lessons were a side issue suggested to cure Jane of a speech impediment. The stammering was never corrected . . . that is why one of the most beautiful girls in radio . . . with one of radio's most beautiful voices, must have a "stand-in" read her lines in the new radio show soon to break for her in Chicago. Orchids aren't half good enough for girls like that.

Globe Trotter

Hello, Ladies and Gentlemen!

Now the County Fair is over I am thinking seriously of rivaling the South Park exhibits of Commissioner McGovern with a Globe Trotter fair.

I am led to that consideration by the receipt, today, of a radish from Gibsonia, grown by Ray Schmidt, a Sun-Telegraph carrier boy.

It is of enormous size, weighing over five pounds, and it isn't hollow, either.

Ray says that they have grown bigger ones in the family garden.

It should be called the Globe Trotter radish. Can't you imagine what a lot of "talking back" one of that size could do?

* * *

Mr. and Mrs. O'Keefe's letter, thanking me for the birthday announcement on little Maureen, is one of the nicest I have ever received. Every now and then I wonder whether the children really eagerly wait for their birthday announcements.

* * *

Mrs. H. H., of Mount Washington, whose child is a pupil at the Cargo School, is deploring the lack of proper protection for children at street crossings.

She says that there are many automobiles and that yesterday a tragedy was narrowly averted.

I am sure that Supt. Dorsey will look into it.

Laetitia Margherio, Leechburg—Thanks for telling me that the broadcasts have made you a regular reader of the Sun-Telegraph. I know that you have made no mistake in changing.

Tell your friends about our paper.

Don't forget that the Globe Trotter broadcasts each day, except Sunday, at 12:15 and 2:15. I'll be "looking" for you.

ENNA JETTICK PRESENTS America's Smartest Walking Shoes

YOU'VE never worn shoes like these! They're brand new . . . Enna Jetticks through and through so far as their fitting qualities are concerned. Like all Enna Jetticks, designed first of all to keep you in comfort . . . But something has been added . . . smartness . . . beauty . . . new details . . . new leathers . . . an unmistakable "in-the-trend" character. The result is a walking shoe that we'll match with any of the toe-pinch-beauties for fashion . . . and with any house slipper in the country for comfort . . . At last . . . a combination of all the things you want in a shoe to bring real joy to your life afoot. No matter how large or small your wardrobe is, it should include at least one pair of the new Enna Jetticks . . . You will find the Enna Jettick line still replete with those friendly fitting shoes that years of grateful acceptance have endorsed. X-Ray fittings help you select right shoes for your feet.

WAR ON CRIME NOW HAS OWN NEW DEAL

America's crime problem is nearing an end and the late John Dillinger has aided in crime detection.

These are the opinions expressed by Rupert Hughes, novelist, writing in the current issue of Cosmopolitan Magazine.

Dillinger, the novelist writes, was responsible for new acts of Congress empowering federal officers to make arrests without waiting to secure local warrants and which remove the old embargo against their carrying weapons.

Mr. Hughes says the federal government is now instituting a New Deal in fighting crime by striving to stop the profits of crime based on local political conditions which not only hamper the prevention of crime, but make use of criminals for purposes of corruption and political power.

Today

each leg. It will do a great many things to Chancellor Hitler's form of government in considerably less than one thousand years, very probably in a good deal less than ten years.

A YOUNG MAN from New England remarked yesterday:

"Racing is a great success in New England. The pari-mutuels betting has taken in twenty millions this year already."

And:

"Of course, you know five per cent of that goes to the governmen', so, thanks to the restoration of racing, the government gets one million dollars."

Of course it does, and horse race owners, touts, gamblers and other riffraff of the racetrack get NINETEEN million dollars.

What would you think of a father if he allowed criminals to take his children's money if they gave him, the father, five cents of every dollar taken? What do you think of a state like Massachusetts, that permits racetrack gambling on a "steal all you can, but give me five per cent" basis?

AGAIN THE United States is having trouble with Russia about debts. Why is the United States so much worried about a trivial debt owed by Russia, thanks to the foolishness of private financiers, and apparently so little disturbed about a gigantic debt of ten thousand millions which our dear "allies," or "gallant allies," as they used to call themselves, ignore so completely?

Arizona Militia Drills in Relief War

PHOENIX, Ariz., Sept. 7.—(AP.)—Two national guard companies began special drill today as an aftermath of a savage battle between police and picketers in front of Federal Emergency Relief Headquarters here.

Twenty persons were injured in the fighting which saw pick handles, iron pipe and rock used as weapons by 200 agitators against the clubs of police in a pitched battle.

Peasant Types Predicted in New Styles

Universal Service.

NEW YORK, Sept. 7.—Debutantes who are presented at Buckingham Palace "with their badly proportioned trains and stumpy bunches of bobbing ostrich feathers," might well take a lesson in costume from the peasant women of Hungary, says Lee Simonson in the September Harper's Bazaar.

Predicting that the next French and American fashion inspiration will come from Hungary, Mr. Simonson writes:

"There is probably no lovelier sight than the Sunday morning parade at Mezokovezsd—a village that only a Hungarian can pronounce, in the undulating puszta outside of Budapest.

"It is difficult to convey all the charm of the Mezokovezsd costumes . . . the accordion-pleated skirt of flowered chintz, its flounce accentuated by a narrow line of black velvet ribbon and held out at the hem by more edgings of velvet ribbon—how easily it swayed as these women walked, how rhythmically it flared and contracted, keeping its line as very few of our flimsy modern trains manage to do."

HAWAII HAILS FIRE GODDESS

HILO, HAWAII, Sept. 7.—(AP.)—A spectacular eruption of Kilauea volcano was the signal to Hawaiians today that the terrible Fire Goddess Pele was pleased with them and had returned to her home in Mauna Loa.

A plume of white and green sulphur fumes rising high above Halemaumau, fire pit in Kilauea crater, carried the message for miles to the natives who paradoxically believe an eruption is an indication of Pele's pleasure.

The floor of the crater boiled with molten lava more than 50 feet deep as 30 fiery fountains spurted high in the air.

Kilauea's long quiescence was broken by an earthquake early yesterday morning.

The trembling earth split open a 600-foot crack in the walls of the great fire pit, and a flaming Niagara roared and hissed for hours as it cascaded 500 feet to the bottom of the crater.

Volcanologist T. A. Jaggar said the eruption would be confined to the 1,200-foot deep fire pit.

4 YOUTHS HELD IN BURGLARY

Four young men were being held and four others were being sought by Millvale police today in connection with the burglary of a store at East Ohio street and Maryland avenue, Millvale, in which tobacco and confections were stolen.

Those arrested gave their names as Robert Frederick, of 153 Evergreen avenue, and William Conlon, of 129 Vagman alley, both of Millvale; Jack Mans, of 3423 Ligonier street, and Carl Simon, of 3457 Ligonier street, according to the police report.

They were found in a car parked on Samples Hill, Millvale, by Lieut. Leo Kleber shortly after the burglary, Lieut. Kleber said. The confectionery is managed by Edward Imgrand.

3 Pints Down, Jimmy Still Stood Up

WHEELING, W. Va., Sept. 7.—(AP.)—In the opinion of Jimmie Negley, a man isn't intoxicated until he's down. Arraigned before Judge Charles H. Bonnesen, his defense was:

"Well, judge, I was still up with three pints down."

ROSENBAUM'S

X-RAY CAUSES WOMAN'S DEATH

NEW YORK, Sept. 7.—(AP.)—Dr. Thomas A. Gonzales, medical examiner, in a preliminary finding, reported that Mrs. Sophie Hollpte Berger, who died Wednesday, was accidentally electrocuted while about to have her head X-rayed in a Manhattan doctor's office.

Her husband, Abraham Berger, said he heard a scream. Then, he continued, the physician, Dr. Samuel Friedman, rushed out, crying:

"I didn't do it."

When the husband entered the room his wife was dead.

Dr. Gonzales said he did not regard Dr. Friedman as being at fault.

Mother Seeks Child Held for Board Bill

BARTOW, Fla., Sept. 7.—(AP.)—A mother today asked court action to be come reunited with her 4-year-old daughter she says is being held in lieu of a $565 board bill.

Mrs. Lucy Sewox claims she placed her child in the care of Mark Collins at Winterhaven when the little girl was 16 months old. Mrs. Sewox said Collins has refused to give up the child until he is paid $565 which he claims is due for her board bill.

COMPETE FOR AN Art SCHOLARSHIP

Copy this girl and send us your drawing—perhaps you'll win a COMPLETE FEDERAL COURSE FREE! This contest is for amateurs, so if you like to draw do not hesitate to enter.

Prizes for Five Best Drawings—FIVE COMPLETE ART COURSES FREE, including drawing outfit. (Value of each course, $190.00.)

FREE! Each contestant whose drawing shows sufficient merit will receive a grading and advice as to whether he or she has, in our estimation, artistic talent worth developing.

Nowadays design and color play an important part in the sale of almost everything. Therefore the artist, who designs merchandise or illustrates advertising has become a real factor in modern industry. Machines can never displace him. Many Federal students, both men and girls who are now commercial designers or illustrators capable of earning from $1000 to $5000 yearly have been trained by the Federal Course. Here's a splendid opportunity to test your talent. Read the rules and send your drawing to the address below.

RULES FOR CONTESTANTS

This contest open only to amateurs, 16 years old or more. Professional commercial artists and Federal students are not eligible.

1. Make drawing of girl 4½ inches high, on paper 8 inches wide by 7 inches high. Draw only the girl, not the lettering.
2. Use only pencil or pen.
3. No drawings will be returned.
4. Write your name, address, age and occupation on back of drawing.
5. All drawings must be received in Minneapolis by Sept. 25th, 1934. Prizes will be awarded for drawings best in proportion and neatness by Federal Schools Faculty.

NEED MORE ENERGY?
Get a LIFT with a Camel!

FROM LONG KEY TO NOVA SCOTIA, the famous sportsman and writer, REX BEACH, has matched his skill and vitality against the big game fish of the Atlantic! Sailfish... marlin...tuna—he's caught them all! Below he tells how he lights a Camel after fighting it out with a heavy fish—and soon "feels as good as new!" And Camel smokers in every walk of life agree with Mr. Beach about smoking Camels to increase energy.

PHONE OPERATOR. Miss Marion Erickson says: "I smoke a lot! I enjoy a Camel every time I can catch a minute away from the board. Since I changed to Camels, I find I never have to think about nerves. And Camels are so mild and taste so good, too!"

RODEO CHAMPION. Eddie Woods says: "Believe me, I'm plenty tired at the end of a tough contest. And boy, does a Camel taste good when your energy is low! A Camel chases away that 'all in' feeling and in a few minutes I'm ready for the next event. Furthermore, I find that Camels don't upset the nerves."

SALESMAN. Kenneth B. Logan says: "The selling game calls for healthy nerves. Meeting people all day long...trying to turn prospects into customers...certainly tell on nerves. I smoke most of the time—but I smoke only Camels, and I'll tell you why! Camels don't upset my nerves—and no cigarette can match Camels on flavor, either."

OLYMPIC S... in "I've ...g Camels a ...ne. I can definitely say that they don't interfere with my nerves ...I enjoy Camels' mildness and they give me a refreshing 'lift' in energy when I feel tired out!"

"I have taken my share of big sailfish, marlin, and tuna," says Rex Beach. "I know what a rod-and-reel contest with these heavy fighters does to a man's vitality. When I've gotten a big fellow safely landed my next move is to light a Camel, and I feel as good as new. A Camel quickly gives me a sense of well-being and renewed energy. As a steady smoker, I have also learned that Camels do not interfere with healthy nerves."

Thousands of smokers will recognize from their own experience just what Mr. Beach means when he says that he lights a Camel when tired and "feels as good as new." And science adds confirmation of this refreshing "energizing effect."

That's why you hear people say so often: "Get a lift with a Camel." Camels aren't flat or "sweetish." Their flavor never disappoints. You can smoke Camels steadily—as many as you want—their finer, MORE EXPENSIVE TOBACCOS do not get on the nerves!

WIDOW ACCUSED IN THEFT OF $5,000,000

SEATTLE, Sept. 7.—(AP.)—Mrs. Sadie R. Brown, widow of Reeve B. Brown, mysterious business adviser of the eccentric and wealthy Mrs. Sarah E. Smith-Scollard, stood accused today of having stolen $5,000,000 from the estate of Mrs. Smith-Scollard.

The charge was made by Attourney George H. Rummens at a probate hearing in Superior Court. Rummens, representing Denton G. Burdick, lawyer for Mrs. Smith-Scollard's sister, who had cited Mrs. Brown of taking the property examination about the dead woman's missing fortune, accused Mrs. Brown of taking the property when he answered an objection by her attorney to introduction of one of Brown's letters. Rummens told the court:

"There is a charge of the suppression of $5,000,000 worth of property by this witness. You can't prove fraud by a single act. I charge in open court that she is guilty of stealing this property and we are therefore entitled to the letter for what information it may contain."

PROTESTS CHARGE

Counsel for Mrs. Brown protested the accusation. He said:

"She hasn't stolen a cent. The only purpose of this line of examination is to pursue a scandalous lead which has no bearing on any property right."

The letter, however, was admitted to evidence. It was a copy of a letter Brown wrote in 1930 to Fred W. Sheppard, of Richmond, Va., in which he said he was sending "a bunch of yellow and green babies valued at about $110,000" and instructing Sheppard to purchase certain Virginia road bonds and send them to Miss Grace Summers at Jackson, Miss.

MYSTERY LINKED

Other letters produced by Mrs. Brown showed Miss Summers had been in Brown's employ 14 years, had received a salary of $1,000 a month, carried keys to his safe deposit boxes and had blanket authority to dismiss anyone in his employ.

Explaining her husband had not made her a business confidante, Mrs. Brown said she had never seen or heard of Miss Summers.

Questioned concerning a trip she made to Montreal after Mrs. Smith-Scollard's death there in July, 1932, Mrs. Brown said she and her husband had had a safe deposit box there under the names of Harley A. and Sally Stroupe.

The administrator of Mrs. Smith-Scollard's estate, seeking the fortune that was estimated at $10,000,000, contends Brown "absorbed" the money and is questioning Mrs. Brown and Brown's son, Ted.

Squirrels Not Worth Big Fines Imposed

HUNTINGTON, W. Va., Sept. 7.—(AP.)—The squirrels shot out of season are not worth it.

The Conservation Department says Homer Mason and William Howell, of Huntington, arrested in Putnam County with four squirrels each, were fined $20 for each squirrel and costs, totaling $87.70 each.

So Cornstalks Save the Old Homestead!

OMAHA, Neb., Sept. 7.—(AP.)—Frank D. Himberger, who holds a mortgage on the farm of Marinus Nelsen near Millard, told the District Court that Nelson last year obtained a moratorium under which he was to turn over two-fifths of this year's corn crop to Himberger.

But the drought ruined Nelson's corn crop.

On Himberger's request, the court ordered Nelson to turn over two-fifths of his cornstalks. Himberger said they are worth $6 a ton.

FINDS BROTHER ON HITCH-HIKE

GETTYSBURG, Pa., Sept. 7—(AP.)—Jacob Suders, 21, of Chambersburg, stood along the highway, near Caledonia, "thumbing" each passing motorist for a "lift."

"Don't I know you? Your face looks familiar."

He did and it was.

They had not met for 15 years.

USE OF REASON URGED IN WAR ON DISEASE

CHICAGO, Sept. 7.—(AP.)—By the proper exercise of reason, Dr. George W. Crile, noted Cleveland surgeon, believes man should have the power to ward off nervous breakdowns, goiter, stomach ulcers, gall stones, one variety of diabetes, certain diseases of the heart, and protruding eyes.

These ailments were described by Dr. Crile last night at the World's Fair program of the American College of Surgeons, as the "diseases of civilization," which are rarely found in the lower order of man or in lower animals.

"EXECUTIVE ORGANS"

Their relatively high presence in civilization, he said he believed, resulted from the high development of the "energy system," consisting of the brain and thyroid gland. He explained:

"The brain and thyroid gland supply civilized man with his power of sustained energy and activity—mental, emotional and physical. The adrenal—sympathetic system, which in turn is maintained at a constant level of activity by the thyroid and is given outbursts of activity by the brain—is the most active in the expression of emotions.

"This group of executive organs is primarily responsible for the state of civilized man. Therefore the diseases which are peculiar to civilized man we can trace clearly."

These diseases may be primary, as when the brain maintains too high a state of activity and when a nervous breakdown results, or when the thyroid "runs wild," and exophtalmic goiter results, he explained. But when the brain and thyroid stand the strain of high speed civilization some weaker organ may give way. In this class, he said, falls certain types of heart disease, diabetes and stomach ulcers.

USE OF SURGERY

He said surgery could bring a cure sometimes, when the sympathetic nerves connected to the adrenal gland is servered, thus preventing it from serving as an emotional whip to the body.

But he suggested what he termed a more hopeful and general non-surgical remedy. He said:

"Man cannot lessen his brain capacity, he cannot lessen his glandular power, but he has at his disposal the use of the finest tool civilization has wrought—namely: His reason. The civilized fraction of man should be able to control the wild fractions inherited from his long past."

Dr. Crile said Elizabeth Barrett Browning and other "brilliant invalids" of history were victims of a disease of civilization—neurocirculatory asthenia—where the person is brilliant in mental effort, although subject to symptoms of the ailment.

CHURCH RALLY HEARS PITT MAN

The third session of the annual Methodist Protestant conference which opened at Grace Church, Sharpsburg, Tuesday, was in full swing today with several Pittsburgh clergymen scheduled to speak.

The Rev. Dr. S. S. Franklin, of the University of Pittsburgh's department of religious education, will talk tonight on religion in its relation to young people. Other speakers are the Rev. F. W. Stephanson, secretary of the Methodist Protestant Board of Education, and the Rev. S. L. Gibbs.

At yesterday's meeting Miss Ethel Hempstead, of Beaver Falls, told delegates that Western nations were responsible for the Japanese invasion of China, since Japan was not a "pioneering nation, but had patterned her policies after other countries."

SURVEY HOMES IN MT. LEBANON

Owner occupied dwellings make up about half of the occupied dwellings in Mt. Lebanon Township, according to the report of the Bureau of Business Research of the University of Pittsburgh, issued today. Of these homes, 83.6 per cent were reported mortgaged.

Seventy per cent of the rented homes carry a rental of $50 or more. Almost all are under 10 years old.

Of the 4,563 dwellings, all but 62 have bathtubs or showers, and all but 108 have central heating systems. More than 71 per cent have mechanical refrigeration. There are 3,962 automobiles, or one car each to 90 per cent of the occupied dwellings.

Offers Dollar To Pay Debts Of Million

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 7.—(AP.)—Charles W. Clemens, building contractor, told the United States District Court he has exactly $1 with which to pay debts of $1,137,084.

The dollar, his voluntary petition in bankruptcy explains, is the value of a single share of stock in Charles W. Clemens, Inc.

SON MAY SEE MRS. MOONEY

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 7.—(AP.)—Tom Mooney's hopes of a farewell look upon the face of his mother before her burial today rested on success of a plan to carry her body within San Quentin Prison where Mooney is serving a life sentence for the 1916 Preparedness Day bombing.

The Mooney Molders' defense committee announced the plan after acting Gov. Frank F. Merriam reiterated it was legally impossible to release the prisoner temporarily to attend the funeral of Mrs. Mary Mooney tomorrow. James B. Holohan, San Quentin warden, said:

"I haven't been asked yet, but I would not be inclined to permit such a thing if I were asked."

Public funeral services for Mrs. Mooney will be held in the San Francisco Civic Auditorium.

Remember Movie Evils Longest, Educator Finds

NEW YORK, Sept. 7.—(AP.)—Children's morals are either raised or lowered by movies, but going downgrade is easiest and they remember the bad things longer than the good, the American Psychological Association heard today.

The studies were made on seventh grade children by Dr. Vernon Jones, of Clark University. The pictures were those of the regular movie theaters.

Dr. Jones said:

"Some of the changes noted were in the direction of more desirable standards; somewhat larger chances, however, were found in the direction of lowered or less rigid standards.

"The influences of the pictures were most pronounced in connection with those test items which dealt with issues in which definite solutions were strongly and consistently praised or condemned."

The changes in the children's attitudes were not large, but Dr. Jones reported that they "were found very consistently." After six months the youngsters forgot an average of 75 per cent of these movie impressions.

Auto Victim, 7, Dies; Girl Held Blameless

BEAVER, Pa., Sept. 7.—Seven-year-old Billy Wallace, son of William Wallace, 814 Turn Pike street, Beaver, died early today from injuries received yesterday when he was struck by an automobile driven by Miss Gertrude Smith, of 871 Third street, Beaver.

Miss Smith was absolved of blame after witnesses said the boy darted from behind a building directly into the path of her car.

WANTS OF U. S. ABOVE OUTPUT

WASHINGTON, Sept. 7.—(AP.)—Despite evidences of overproduction in this country, the Brookings Institution reported today its studies showed the United States cannot yet produce "more than the American people would like to consume."

The institution, an independent economic research agency, said the wants of the nation are "large enough to absorb a productive output many times that achieved in the peak year 1929." It added:

"The study indicates that even a relatively minor increase in family incomes would be sufficient to create a consumptive demand in excess of the potential productive capacity of the country in 1929."

The institution's statement was headed "Permanent Prosperity Cannot Be Achieved Through Restriction of Output."

SLEEPS IN PARK, HAS FORTUNE

READING, Pa., Sept. 7.—(AP.)—Park police pitied the tattered, aged man found sleeping on a bench.

He was found on the bench again. Taken to city hall with the intention of having directors of the poor provide for him, he was searched.

The police found $52.50 in gold, $300 in bills, $100 in liberty bonds, savings account books showing $10,000 deposits.

Struck by Auto, Butler Man Dies

BUTLER, Pa., Sept. 7.—(AP.)—Struck by an automobile at a downtown street intersection Charles F. Cale, 68, of Butler, died soon afterwards in a hospital.

WATER FATAL TO CHAMPION DRUNKARD

International News Service.

VLADAYA, Bulgaria, Sept. 7.—Tavern keepers of this village are mourning the loss of their best customer, Gheorgieff Sando, the town's "human sponge" and probably the best two-fisted drinker in all Bulgaria.

Gheorgieff died the victim of his own grim jest. He used to shout, as he banged his glass on the bar, that if he ever drank water it would kill him. It did, although the water was forced down his throat against his will. He was drowned.

Gheorgieff in search of a drink was the nearest thing to perpetual motion ever seen here. They thought the fellow had hollow legs. If the day seemed propitious for drinking, and it frequently did, he would shuffle into the tavern as soon as it opened and stay at the bar until they started piling the chairs on the tables late at night.

Then his wife and children would come and drag home the body on their ox cart.

Gheorgieff didn't work steadily because he was a five-handicap man in both drinking and working. Sober, he could do the work of five men in his job as cartwright, then repair to the tavern and drink as much as all five put together. He earned plenty of money, but he parlayed it all into a cask of wine.

The other day Gheorgieff consumed 51 bottles of red wine to win a bet. He was just working up a respectable thirst when they closed the joint, so he staggered to the basement of his shop and went to work on his private stock.

A few hours later a torrential rainstorm flooded the streets and basements of the village. Gheorgieff, plastered to the eyebrows and out like a light, was drowned—but he died with his boots on. When they found the body in the morning, one arm was flung around a cask of wine in a last fond farewell.

SLAIN REBEL'S SHIRT FOR HIM

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Sept. 7.—(AP.)—James Wong Howe, Chinese, who ranks among the ace film photographers of Hollywood, today wore a shirt tailored for the late Gen. Augustino Sandino, the Nicaraguan rebel.

While he was "on location" with the "Viva Villa" company in Mexico recently, Howe ordered half a dozen shirts from a small factory.

A note carried the explanation:

"These shirts were made for Gen. Sandino. But, as he will not need them now, and as they are exactly your size, we thought you might accept them."

Market Stand-holders Protest Improvements

A protest against elaborate improvements in the North Side Market House, which would cause large increases in rents for the stand-holders has been made to City Council by a small group of the tenants. The majority of the tenants at a hearing yesterday favored the improvements. Conferences are to be held with the objectors.

Bank Holdup Trial Testimony Continued

GREENSBURG, Pa., Sept. 7.—(AP.)—Testimony was continued today in the commonwealth's effort to convict Joe Plezarski, 25, and Vance Carter, 35, of Vandergrift, on robbery charges arising from a holdup of the Avonmore First National Bank on May 21, in which $9,700 was stolen.

Jean Harlow's Novel Out by Christmas

JEAN HARLOW

By HARRISON CARROLL
International News Service.

HOLLYWOOD, Sept. 7.—Jean Harlow's first novel, "Today Is Tonight," probably will be a Christmas gift to her fans.

The screen's platinum blonde has made final revisions on her manuscript and today was talking business to four interested publishers. One of her chief terms is that the book reach the stands before the first of the year. The star said today:

"Writing the story has been the hardest work I ever did, but I want to keep on doing fiction. Wouldn't it be swell too, if I did my own novel in the movies?"

"Today Is Tonight" is purely imaginative, Jean wants it made plain.

She said:

"None of the characters were taken from living people, but I think they are real. Anyway, I have poured my soul into the book."

Locale of the novel is New York and it has three central characters.

Jean described her heroine as:

"A girl with an abundance of love who weakens now and then, but who clings to an ideal that finally emerges triumphant through her great love of her husband."

COWARD SAVES MANUSCRIPT

NICE, France, Sept. 7.—(AP.)—With the water-soaked story of his life clutched to his bosom, Noel Coward came back to civilization today.

All his clothes, except the suit he wore, were in the sea-swamped cabin of the yacht Mairi, stranded on a shoal off Corsica in the Mediterranean. His money was there, too, and he was traveling on funds cabled him by his London bankers. The only thing he had salvaged was the manuscript of the book which he intends to call "My Biography."

The shipwreck was a novel affair to Coward, for although another playwright named Shakespeare had done quite a bit with plots based around shipwrecks, the man who wrote "Private Lives," "Design for Living," and seven other hit plays had never, except in "Cavalcade," touched upon such old-fashioned methods of getting his characters in and out of jams.

Coward was ashore when the yacht went down, and the crew of the yacht, owned by an English friend of Coward, escaped with slight injury.

RUSS COLUMBO RITES HELD

HOLLYWOOD, Sept. 7.—(AP.)—Funeral services for Russ Columbo, radio and movie singer, were held yesterday from the Church of the Blessed Sacrament here and the body then returned to a mortuary there to await the outcome of the illness of Columbo's mother before burial.

The mother, Mrs. Nicholas Columbo, who bore 12 children, has not yet been told of his untimely end. She is ill with a heart ailment and for several days has hovered between life and death. Physicians feared to tell her of her son's death.

Columbo was accidentally slain last Sunday when an old dueling pistol exploded in the hand of his best friend, Lansing V. Brown, Jr., portrait photographer, who was at the funeral. Brown was exonerated by a coroner's jury yesterday of all blame.

One of the pall bearers was Columbo's contemporary — Bing Crosby. The others were Lowell Sherman, Walter Lang, Stuart Peters, Gilbert Roland and Sheldon Keate Gallaway, all film notables.

Crushed to Death As 2 Cranes Crash

Two cranes crushed Thomas Flaherty, 50, to death today at the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company, East Pittsburgh, the Coroner reported. Flaherty, a crane repairman, who lives at 115 Ninth street, Turtle Creek, was said to be on top of a crane repairing it when another crane crashed into it.

FIANCE EVASIVE ON SUBJECT OF DEFINITE TIME FOR MARRIAGE

Beau Gave Her Diamond But Refuses to Set Date for Wedding

By Marion Brunot

A young man has been coming to see Blue Eyes for four years. And he has given her a diamond ring. Yet when she broaches the subject of marriage, he has no definite answer for her.

Dear Miss Brunot:

I have been going with a young man for four years and naturally I am fond of him. But he is the strangest young man. When he makes an engagement with me, he doesn't arrange it positively, but only says maybe.

I am 30, and think it is time that I knew what my future is to be. He has a car and he has promised to take me riding, but has not. He has given me a diamond ring, yet when I mention marriage, he always changes the subject. It is his people. He takes them everywhere, and always waits to give them their chance of him first. Do you think he is serious, and really loves me? BLUE EYES.

It is not a question whether this young man loves you or not. He has catered to his family so long that evidently they are first with him. And I fear marriage with him for you would be a continual giving up of him to them.

You are 30 and have not the time nor the opportunities to allow for too much dallying. Tell him so. And mean it. Maybe he will be more anxious to set the day for the wedding, then. I do not admire a man who promises anything and then fails to fulfill his promise.

Dear Miss Brunot:

I am taking the courage to write to you upon a very serious matter. I am a girl of 18, and go with a young man of 23. We have been going together for five months. Yet I decided I was too young to have any one so steady. I told him so, and he admired me for my frankness. We had a quarrel or two, but have adjusted them.

He came over to our house one night when I was out, and my step-father turned him out of the house. Naturally, I did not see him for awhile, and then he began telling mutual friends, he did not hold what had happened against me.

He met me coming home one night from a sewing, and walked to the gate with me. My step-father was watching, and when I came inside both he and my mother talked terribly to me. I said little, and went to bed.

But the next morning I told them I loved this young man. Yet they keep saying I cannot see him, although they have nothing against him, and my step-father threatens both him and me. They have always acted this way when I have company. BROKEN-HEARTED GIRL.

Your stepfather is not a kind man or he would not act the way he does, and humiliate you. Your mother, perhaps, is afraid of him, and that may answer for why she also acts as she does. It is natural for a girl of your age to have men friends, and if there is nothing against the young man, and he has work and is reliable, I must say your parents are wrong to take the stand they do.

It takes much tact, much gentleness, and all of one's determination, to manage to live as you must do. Sometimes the only outlet where such a home is too unpleasant, is marriage. You must be of age to do this however. And also be sure the man is the right one.

Dear Miss Brunot:

I am a very pretty blonde, good height and everything. Yet the trouble comes in whenever I really begin caring for any young man. He immediately senses it, and leaves, or acts queer. I can get along forever with the ones I don't especially like. I am in love with one young man now, and I fear to see him as often as he would like and go the places he asks me, for the next thing, I'd be losing him. Please tell me what is wrong with me? LAURA JANE.

Such a pretty flower as you, Laura Jane, should bloom happily. Perhaps you become very self-conscios when your heart is really touched. You may not act at all like your sweet charming nature meant you to do. And it may be then the young men leave you.

The very fact you tell me that you can get on forever with the ones who mean nothing to you, indicates this solution. As a rule if a man really cares he enjoys being a little sure that he is desired. The too tricky girl is seldom if ever popular. Yet you can overdo this . . . With this new suitor, accept his invitations and let him come to see you.

Be as charming as you know how, never talk too much about attentions you receive from others, and I feel positive, all will come out as you would have it.

Dear Miss Brunot:

I am 18 and the man I love is 28. He is married, and separated from his wife, has been for two years. My people do not allow me to go with him. So I see him at his own sister's house. His people are friends of mine. They think me wonderful.

He still sees his wife, and all she seems to have to do is snap her fingers, and he goes to see her. He has even broken engagements with me to do this, and explains when he sees me in a matter-of-fact way, as if he had done the right thing. I always fear he will go back to her.

I tried to stop seeing him, but we were both so miserable that we went back again. It would kill me to give him up. My parents cannot see this, though. SECOND FIDDLE.

Your signature indicates you have accepted such a position in this man's life. I cannot blame your parents for thinking the way they do. They are right. To do the wisest thing for yourself.

Have this man at his sister's house and talk to him. Tell him he will have to choose between you or his wife. Cease seeing her altogether, or cease being with you. The fact that you have the friendship of his people should be an aid to you.

Bride's Mother Sends Out Invitation Letters

By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1—I am planning to write just informal notes inviting our relatives and close friend to our wedding, and would be very grateful if you would give me a suggested form or two for these notes. I expect the wedding to be in the late afternoon and just a small dinner for our respective families, and then we want to invite the others for the evening. Do you think this is a good plan?

2—What is the proper way to address my fiance's relatives—uncles, aunts, and so forth? C.

1—It is the best form for the mother of the bride-to-be to write these informal notes of invitation, since she is to be the hostess of the occasion:

Florence and Tom are to be married informally in the chapel of the United Church on Tuesday, the first of October, at five o'clock, and we want very much to have you and Jack come to the ceremony. After the ceremony we are having a dinner just for the two families, but later, at about half after eight, we want to have a group of our close friends come to give "best wishes" to the bride and groom and to speed them on their journey. So would you and Jack plan to come to the ceremony at five, and later for the informal party? Do say "yes."

Cordially,

2—Until you know these relatives of your finace well enough to be given the privilege of addressing them as he does—Aunt Mary, Uncle Jim, and so forth—you should address them as Mrs. Atwater, Mr. Robinson.

R. S. V. P.

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Recently I received a wedding invitation enclosing a card with the notation, "Please respond." Is it necessary to write something on the card or just fill in the name and address? B.

Just fill in the details indicated on this card, the name and address.

New Strapless Gowns Give One That Dramatic Look

By Alice Alden

A chance to look dramatic is given us by the new dresses without shoulder straps. Pieces of whalebone sewn into the bodice at strategic places do the trick. One such model, with a heart-shaped, strapless bodice, is of black panne velvet. It has a scarf of yellow chiffon across the throat and falling to the floor in back. There is a bunch of yellow chiffon poppies on the bodice in front.

A little bird says that it is going to be everywhere in the millinery world this autumn. Many of the newest hats have bird trims. A new model, a wide, shallow Breton sailor in brown velvet, has the flat, round crown covered by three birds, one coral, one brown and one beige.

Get ready to look at fur coats, for before we know it cold weather will arrive. A lovely coat of fine black caracul has deep armholes, almost to the high waist. The cuffs are very wide bands of silver fox which when put together make a lovely muff. The high, upstanding collar and the front are fastened with large black clips.

One on Grandma

Our little granddaughter, aged 5, would not eat soup. I told her if she did she would grow up to very beautiful. She toyed with the spoon, looked at the soup, then at me, and said: "Grandma, did you eat soup when you were little?" "Sure," I replied. "Well, it didn't help you much," she answered.

THE ETERNAL TRIANGLE IN HATS

By Prunella Wood

YOU CAN always depend on our French designers to provide us with the most entrancing thing in tricornes, when it comes to a change of hat seasons. They are perfectly willing to include cartwheels, Russian caps or Watteau tip-tilts in their collections, but they will usually put in two variations of the tricorne for each one of every other type of bonnet they produce.

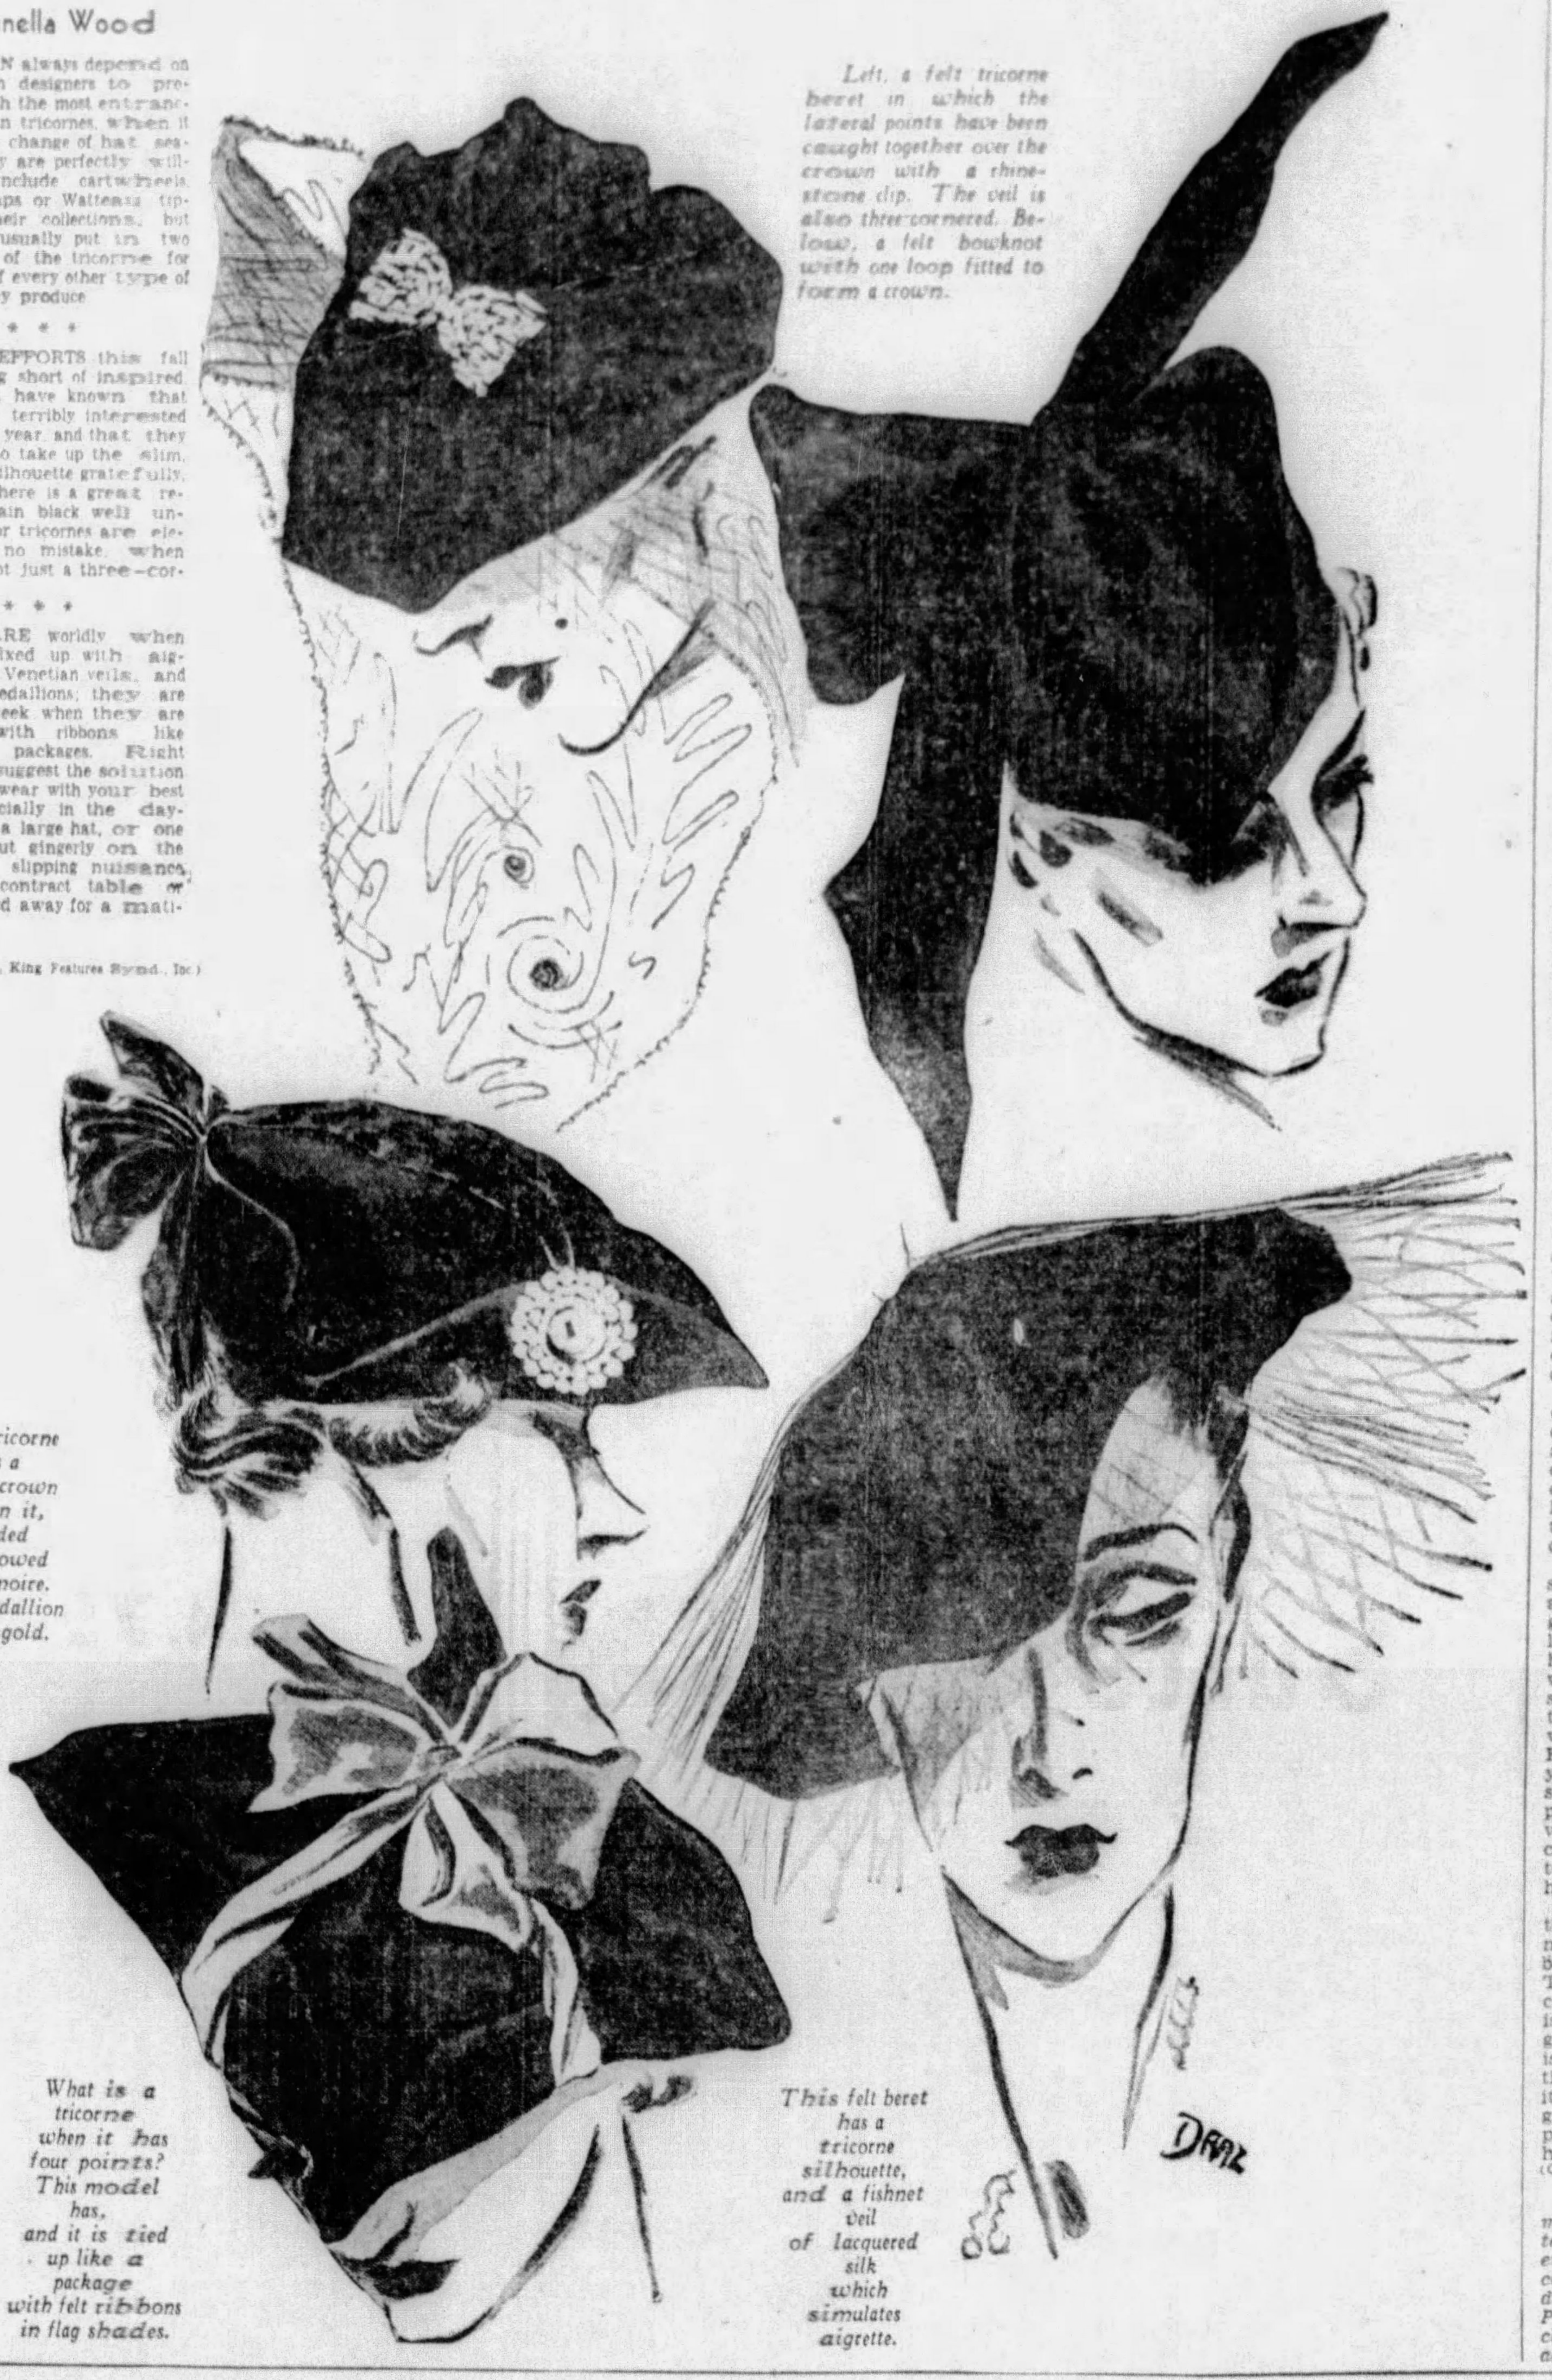
* * *

THEIR EFFORTS this fall are nothing short of inspired. They must have known that women are terribly interested in furs this year, and that they are going to take up the slim, lithesome silhouette gratefully, and that there is a great revival of plain black well underweigh for tricornes are elegant, and no mistake, when they are not just a three-cornered hat.

* * *

THEY ARE worldly when they are fixed up with aigrettes, and Venetian veils, and jewelled medallions; they are chic and sleek when they are tied up with ribbons like lovely gift packages. Right away they suggest the solution of what to wear with your best dress, especially in the daytime when a large hat, or one that sits but gingerly on the head, is a slipping nuisance, over the contract table or knees tucked away for a matinee.

(Copyright, 1934, King Features Synd., Inc.)



Left, a felt tricorne beret in which the lateral points have been caught together over the crown with a rhinestone clip. The veil is also three-cornered. Below, a felt bowknot with one loop fitted to form a crown.

This tricorne has a square crown within it, banded and bowed with moire. The medallion is old gold.

What is a tricorne when it has four points? This model has, and it is tied up like a package with felt ribbons in flag shades.

SPYGLASS VIEWS THE UNUSUAL

By Dorothy Randall

We've peered out to the horizon and now we cry "a sale! a sale!" (In fact there are so many that to keep up with them all would would keep us hopping!) This time the hue and cry is about the whole shelf-ful of refrigerator dishes that you can get nowadays for $1.00 (just 25c less than usual!) Consisting of one large flat dish that makes the foundation for the others . . . two oblong dishes to set upon this . . . and 4 small square ones that roost upon these in turn! Of green glass . . . all with covers, which is an important feature in any refrigerator dishes or the like.

* * *

And next in importance . . . the decorated ovenware casserole . . . complete with a lid and plate to match on which it sits, or from which servings can be made. One and one-half quart size . . . ample for even a generous family . . . and priced $1.00 (generous in savings, too!)

* * *

All silk satin tailored robes . . . for traveling . . . or dormitory life away at school. We have n-ever seen their e-qual, we warble! Not for $5 anyway! With two pockets . . . tailored revers . . . cuffed sleeves (sewed down flat) double-faced sash . . . and in all wanted shades. Mannishly feminine, and MUCH in demand among the young things that know what they want in this line!

* * *

Curtains! . . . it's curtains for you all if you know what's the easiest and best way to freshen up your windows for their fall outlook! Dotted marquisette curtains as fresh and dainty as their name . . . and the new effect of candlewicking all 'round the edges, with a tiny ruffle. A nice idea for any bedroom . . . especially if you have the popular candlewick spreads on your beds. And these "wicks" are nice fat ones . . . fluffy blobs of them in color . . . red, green, blue, yellow, or orchid. On the tie-backs and the ruffled valance at the tops as well. Size 68 inches by 2¼ yards . . . and priced . . . $1.59.

* * *

Be a smart child! Follow through an idea like so many girls are doing these days of fur trimming! Get yourself a plain and thrifty frock . . . and with the assistance of a yard of fur trimming . . . or a few tails . . . elevate it to the ranks of its more fashionable sisters! Jap mink tails run 25c each . . . and four to an ascot is usually plenty! You can get banding as low as $1.50 the yard . . . lapin, this, and 3 inches wide!

From Russia . . . from Mexico . . . from the Balkan regions come the inspirations for these new smocks that are laying the town (the feminine part of it anyway) by the heels! For who ever thought that a mere SMOCK would go as Russian as a samovar? Or who ever dreamed that she would trip about her dusting clad in a mandarin-like coatee? In one with a troubadour tie under the chin . . . or with "soapbubbles" blown helter-skelter across it? We ask you . . . now who would?

But apparently everyone is liking the idea . . . according to the hubbub they're creating! For these are broadcloth smocks . . . and printed crash . . . in plain colors or with plain colored borders . . . with pockets and buttons . . . and frogs allee-samee-chinee-style! Wear them over pajama trousers and have a pair of lounging pajamas! Wear them 'round the house! Wear them on informal evenings when your best friend drops in for a chat! They're only $1.98 . . . they wash . . . wear . . . and come in sizes for everyone — small, medium, large . . . 14 to 20!

* * *

You little shoppers who want to learn the names of the shops whose items are listed in this column day by day . . . call GRANT 6500 . . . and ASK FOR THE SPYGLASS. Or send in a stamped, self-addressed envelope for your reply. THE SPYGLASS is always on the alert, peering out new "finds" . . . and you will be answered promptly!

Boudoir Gowns Sumptuous

By Dorothy Roe

Universal Service.

NEW YORK, Sept. 7.—It's smart to be sumptuous, even in your own bedroom this season.

Satin brocade is one of the fabrics presented for negligee wear, just to pick a random example. Shades of grandmother's flannelette nightgown! Can you imagine anything more devastating than, say, a trailing robe of magnolia white satin brocade, to add ceremony to the cold-creaming and hair-brushing hour?

Sometimes the white brocade is lined with scarlet in the same fabric, just to make it more dramatic.

And again it is used as a sort of choir-boy coat, with full sleeves gathered into a cuff and a flaring collar, worn over black velvet trousers.

Then it's used in tailored Chinese robes and severe housecoats. Besides white, the colors run to bright tones, such as turquoise, lime green, lacquer red and flame.

Velvet also enters the boudoir this season, in dashing lounge suits and trailing robes.

There is, for instance, a costume of lapis blue velvet jacket, with balloon sleeves and trimming of multi-colored woolen ribbon shot with silver, worn with citrous velvet chichi trousers like cowboy chaps.

And there is a hostess gown of black treebark velvet with a pointed train and an underskirt of lace-trimmed white chiffon. Seductive is the word for it.

Pause Held Natural in Children

By Angelo Patri

Pauses are essential elements in any scheme of action. The pause in a musical composition are not breaks, not mere empty spots. They are a part of the continuous whole and have their value in the composition. Without them the composition would not be the perfect thing it is.

These pauses occur in all expressions of life and growth. They occur in children and must be appreciated and understood if the child is to be interpreted correctly.

Little children show these pauses when they are learning to master a new process. They begin walking and for a time progress well. Then comes a pause in their advance. They make no further progress until one day, they seem to be charged with power and they begin again.

Learning to talk they repeat this pattern. For a time they add to their vocabulary easily and rapidly. Then they slow down. They are not interested in saying their rhymes, repeating new words. This is a pause in the process of growth. Accept it as cheerfully as you did his spurt of growth. It will come to its normal end and the child will begin active growth again.

Adolescent children have marked pauses in growth. These annoy the teachers and parents beyond reason. The child has little or nothing to do with this pause. It is an expression of the process of natural growth. Wait patiently for it to pass and for growth to begin once more. Watch for the slowing down and be ready to change the plan of work. Other processes are in full swing while this one or that one pauses. Keep the lively ones to start anew.

The teacher will find that her class slows down after a burst of activity. The curve of achievement falls. Instead of drilling and scolding take another tack, a new approach, and let the old one lie fallow for the time. It will rise again and come into full bearing.

Children's behavior shows the same rhythmic rise and fall. For a time all goes well and then the gradual falling off. They pay less attention to the work in hand. Teeth are not brushed with enthusiasm, clothes are not smoothed and laid neatly away, tones are not as smooth as they were, manners are not so fine. Hold on to the standard while you hold your tongue. Work softly and by suggestion. The pause will pass and the behavior will pick up again. It will come back faster if you can be tolerant and wait while you hold on.

The adolescent children sometimes have long pauses in mental activity. The high school boys and girls often sag badly. They are lazy to the bone. This cannot be cured in a minute. It is caused by this pause in growth. Some part of the child is growing at the expense of this other part. Keep calm about it. Keep the child growing where growth is active and wait. The pause is a phythmic one and has its value in the composition.

HOW TO WIN BEAUTY

By Charmion Penn

Make your perfume complement your type . . . and you'll be doing as much for yourselves as you do when you buy a new, becoming hat! Now with fall on our doorstep, we can all slide into the habit of using more seductive, heavier perfumes than we have done through the summer. For cooler days and heavier costumes and furs all are in keeping with the more sophisticated scents.

Even so . . . if you're a dainty, dependent type of blonde, you'll not choose the same one as the sloe-eyed sophisticate on your right! That is . . . not if you're a chic woman, or want to be! On the other hand, you can accentuate your type by your perfume . . . and therefore take care! A dry "cocktail" of perfume has a fairly voluptuous effect on the senses . . . a wise choice to steer clear of, if you are already that type. Use a pleasant, sharp, clean flower odeur . . . or a spicy one with a heady tang! It will give an edge to your personality . . . sharpen up the picture of yourself and keep the edges of it from becoming blurred.

On the other hand . . . exceedingly active types (especially angular ones) would be wise children of Eve if they in turn kept away from perfumes that stimulate too much. Choose a more "lethargic" type, if you can call it such. You can stand it, you with your can't-sit-still attitude on life. Get yourself a dram of one of the many heavy, dreamy fragrances, and it will smooth off the corners of your personality . . . soften you up . . . give an illusion of calm demureness.

Probably, one of the reasons why one perfume on one person is so "good" and stays so well, is due to the effect of its "base" upon that person's skin. For the best perfumes are made with animal oils as their bases . . . musk ox, civet cat, and whale (ambergris). One of the ways of getting the perfume from flowers is to coat one side of a "press" with one of these oils . . . lay the flowers on the other side, and by pressing them together, draw out the perfume into the oil, which has a peculiar affinity for it. After this, the oil is taken and distilled down until the pure flower odeur is reached. Amusing . . . when you stop to think that we are dependent upon such a surprising source for that "glamour" which is our birthright.

Prize Roosters?

Last summer, together with some friends from the city, I spent a day visiting a poultry farm. Having completed four lessons of my correspondence course in poultry raising, I proceeded to explain the characteristics of a good laying hen, using the birds in one of the pens as examples. "Notice the red combs, alert expressions and broad backs. These," I explained, "show that these hens are shelling out lots of eggs." My friends were rather impressed with my knowledge and I was about to continue when we were joined by the farmer's 12-year-old son, who greeted us with "Howdy, Folks; how do you like these fine looking birds? They're dad's prize roosters."

RECIPE FOR CUSTARD EN CASSEROLE AWARDED TODAY'S PRIZE

Crab Dish Ideal in Summer

By Prudence Penny

Today's first prize winning recipe, Crab Custard en Casserole, is ideal for Sunday supper. It is suggested that it be served with a salad, hot rolls, coffee or tea, strawberry preserves and cake.

Surprise — we have a male contributor in our prize list today. Dick Richardson sends in and wins a prize for Frozen Prune Whip. It is hoped that the appearance of this recipe will encourage other men to contribute. There is no reason why the men in the family, many of whom are good cooks in their own right, and all of whom ultimately benefit from good recipes, should not send in their favorite recipes to Prudence Penny.

Six prizes are awarded daily, a $5 first prize and five $1 prizes. Write on only one side of the paper, with your name and address at the top of each sheet. No recipes can be returned. Here are today's prize-winners:

Five Dollar Prize Winner

MRS. LORETTA DWYER,
7819 Hamilton avenue.

CRAB CUSTARD EN CASSEROLE

One can crab or one cup flaked crab.
Three and one-half cups rich milk.
One teaspoon salt.
One-half teaspoon white pepper.
One tablespoon grated onion.
Three-fourth cup cracker crumbs.
Four eggs.

Beat eggs, add milk and seasoning. Beat. Add onion, cracker crumbs and flaked crab meat. Pour into buttered individual casseroles or into a well-buttered ring mold. Dot generously with butter on top. Place in a pan of hot water. Bake in a slow oven (350 degrees F.) for about 40 minutes, or until the custard is firmly set. Serve with the following sauce:

Four tablespoons butter.
Two and one-half tablespoons flour.
One and three-fourths cups milk.
One teaspoon salt.
One-fourth cup salted cooking sherry.
One-half teaspoon Worcestershire sauce.

Melt butter. Remove from fire and add flour. Smooth carefully. Add milk gradually. Stir until sauce boils. Add seasoning and mushrooms. Place over a double boiler for an hour. Just before serving add sherry.

Five $1 Prize Winners

MRS. T. H. QUEER,

STEAK SAUCE DE LUXE

Rub a thick steak with garlic and broil. Do not salt. When steak is done put on a hot platter, salt it slightly and serve with the following sauce:

Melt one-fourth pound butter or margarine in a small saucepan. Blend one tablespoon each of catsup and Worcestershire or similar sauce. Add one teaspoon paprika. Mix in one-half teaspoon dry mustard. Then add two teaspoons vinegar or lemon juice. Place pan over a low heat and stir the butter and condiments until sauce is smooth and rich. Do not overheat or it will curdle. When done, pour over steak. Mix meat juices with sauce as individual portions are served.

DICK RICHARDSON,
1103 Ross Avenue, Wilkinsburg.

FROZEN PRUNE WHIP

One cup prune pulp.
One-half cup orange juice.
One tablespoon lemon juice.
One egg white.
One-half cup sugar.
Pinch of salt.
One cup whipped cream.

Mix prune pulp, orange juice and lemon juice. Add half the sugar and chill. Beat salted egg whites until stiff and beat in remainder of sugar. Fold into prune mixture, then fold in whipped cream. Freeze in mechanical refrigerator or hand freezer.

MRS. ANNA LABIK,
328 South First street, Duquesne.

CARPATHO-RUSSIAN LITTLE ROLLS

Two pounds flour.
One pound butter.
Five teaspoons baking powder.
One teaspoon salt.
One and one-half boxes powdered sugar.
Six eggs.
One pint sweet cream.
One cake yeast.
Two teaspoons vanilla.

Cut butter into dry ingredients as for pie crust, until very fine. Beat eggs until very light. Dissolve yeast in sweet cream; add eggs, cream and vanilla to first mixture. Rinse the cream container with two tablespoons of water and add the liquid to the above. Work the dough until it does not stick to the hands. Make a roll and keep for two nights in a cold place. After two nights roll out dough and spread thickly with butter. Place one end over on the other and roll with rolling pin. Continue folding over until all the butter has worked itself into the dough. Then roll up again, put away for one or two more days, or until ready to use. Roll out a little at a time one-fourth inch thick. Cut into three-inch squares and spread with nuts, jelly or cottage cheese. Then roll as for jelly roll. Put on a baking sheet and brush with top milk. Bake in a oven (not too hot) until a golden brown. Remove from sheet and sprinkle with powdered sugar. Do not use too much flour on the board, as it will give it too much of a floury taste. Must bake very quickly. Dough may be kept and used as wanted. The longer these rolls stay after baking, the better they are.

NUT FILLING

Chop and grind nuts. Mix with powdered sugar, milk and vanilla. Use your own judgment for taste. The filling must be thick.

COTTAGE CHEESE FILLING

POPPY SEED FILLING

Grind poppy seeds very fine, cook with milk, powdered sugar, ground almonds, chopped apple and vanilla. Cook until thick. Honey may be used instead of sugar.

MRS. FLOYD ELLINGER,
Masontown.

NEW CARROTS IN TOMATO JUICE

Two bunches new carrots.
Six cloves.
One can tomato juice (about two cups).
One-half teaspoon salt.
One-half teaspoon sugar.
One tablespoon butter.

Remove tops from carrots. Scrape carrots and place in a saucepan with seasonings. Add tomato juice, cover, and simmer until carrots are tender (about 35 minutes), and ready to serve. If desired, carrots can be cut crosswise into rounds.

MRS. HARRY ORKIN,
3815 Butler Street.

TONGUE PIQUANTE

Three pounds of beef tongue (or three calves' tongues).
Two quarts salt water.
One lemon sliced and seeded.
Six ginger snaps.
One cup brown sugar.
One-third cup vinegar.
One-third cup raisins.
One-third cup blanched almonds cut (optional).
One tablespoon onion juice.
One tablespoon cornstarch.
Salt, pepper and paprika to taste.

Scald and clean tongues. Boil in salt water until tender. To two cups of the stock add all the other ingredients, soaking ginger snaps and stirring mixture smooth with cornstarch. Let mixture come to boil. Slice tongues and put into sauce. Boil for 10 more minutes until sauce is thick and smooth. Serves six. Serve with or without bread dumplings.

Dumplings

Three slices stale bread.
One cup flour.
Two tablespoons butter.
Two eggs.
One teaspoon baking poowder.
One-third cup water.
Pinch of salt.

Put half the butter into skillet. Cut bread into small cubes and fry until brown. Place sifted flour, baking powder and salt in a bowl. Add eggs and water and work until smooth. Fold in bread cubes and drop from spoon into rapidly boiling water. When they come to the top and cook about five minutes, drain and put into skillet in which the remaining butter is heated. Fry a few minutes, serve with the meat which has been garnished with cooked lemon slices and parsley.

Feather Trimmed Turban Devastating

Pyrotechnics in Bidding Allow Brilliant Play

By Josephine Culbertson

It seems nothing less than logical that if a partnership indulges in bidding pyrotechnics far from justified by its actual holding, the Declarer should be able to apply the soundest kind of technique—even brilliance—in the play.

Mrs. Culbertson

Not having been an eye witness of the hand illustrated below, I cannot be sure exactly how North-South arrived at the ridiculously optimistic contract of seven spades. I might hazard the guess that the bidding went somewhat as follow:

South	West	North	East
1 ♠	Pass	3 ♦	4 ♣
Pass	Pass	5 ♣	Double
Pass	Pass	5 ♥	Pass
5 ♠	Pass	7 ♠	Pass
Pass	Pass

But whatever the manner of arriving at the contract, the fact remains that the perverse Goddess of Chance took this occasion to shower her favors on the North-South team. South's failure, therefore, to rise to the occasion was nothing short of criminal. I do not know what conversation, if any, took place between the partners after the hand was over, but I might be so bold as to suggest the following as distinctly in order:

Mr. South: "Well, your worst enemy couldn't accuse you of being timid in your bidding."

Mr. North: "Well, your dearest friend couldn't claim that there was much to be said for your play."

North:
♠ Q 8 3
♥ A K 7 5
♦ A J 10 9 5 2

West:
♠ 10 6 5
♥ Q 10 4 3
♦ 8 7 3
♣ 6 3 2

East:
♠ J 4
♥ J 6
♦ K Q 4
♣ A Q J 10 8 7

South:
♠ A K 9 7 2
♥ 9 8 2
♣ K 9 5 4

The most cursory examination should have told South that his only chance to justify his partner's ebullience rested on a very fortunate adverse lay of cards. It should require no great arithmetical ability to count that thirteen tricks could be made only by bringing home five spade tricks, four diamonds, two top hearts and two club ruffs—this, of course, unless the King-Queen of diamonds were unguarded. The play therefore is not at all abstruse and requires only a certain amount of care. The opening club lead should have been ruffed with North's three of spades, the Ace of diamonds led and a small diamond ruffed in the closed hand. Another club should then have been trumped in Dummy and the Queen of trumps led before the third round of diamonds was led and ruffed. The division of the diamond and trump suits would have allowed the contract, by this method of play, to have been made easily.

Given in Marriage

A Sequel to HEART OF A WIFE

By Adele Garrison

Doctor Limits Madge's Interview

My stately sister-in-law, Harriet Braithwaite, so surprisingly attired in the snowy uniform of a trained nurse, came rapidly but silently to meet me as I entered the door of the library, temporarily transformed into a hospital room.

"I'm glad you have come," she said. "The patient has been most impatient to see you."

The ghost of a smile at her own play upon words touched her lips and was gone. And my perceptions, sharpened by the warning Lillian had given me concerning my too obvious solicitude for Hugh, caught something in my sister-in-law's face which I translated into an undercurrent of personal disapproval of this interview by Dicky's sister, but which she could not betray openly in her role of nursing assistant to her distinguished husband.

I must let no hint of that discovery appear in either my face or voice, I reminded myself sharply, and gave her an answering smile, as if in appreciation of her halting bon mot.

"I'm sorry," I said with stereotyped contrition. "I couldn't get here before. How is Hugh?"

I was furious with myself for my involuntary hesitation before Hugh's name. It would have been silly to have referred to him as "the patient" or as "Maj. Grantland," when he is accepted by all of us as Hugh, but I had a feeling deep within me that Dicky's austere sister distinctly did not approve of my being upon such familiar terms with the handsome and fascinating army officer.

She gave no outward sign of any such feeling, however, and I told myself that my intuition might be imagination. Indeed, she was every inch the capable trained nurse as she answered my query.

"His condition is surprisingly good, in view of his having lost so much blood. He has magnificent vitality. But come over to him. I see him looking most impatiently over here, but he is too polite to interrupt us."

She turned and walked to the far opposite side of the room where Hugh lay upon an improvised bed, his bronzed face curiously palid, but his eyes alive, shining, eager, as they fixed themselves upon me advancing toward him.

I shot a quick, furtive glance at Harriet Braithwaite, preceding me by a step or two, and at her tall, distinguished surgeon husband standing at the foot of Hugh's bed and watching his patient closely. Would they read the unmistakable message of those eyes, or were they so absorbed in the professional aspect of the case that they would be mercifully blind to the fact that Hugh was "wearing his heart upon his sleeve" for anyone to see?

Whatever they saw or did not see, they gave no sign. Harriet said casually, cheerily, "Here she is, as I promised you," and my brother-in-law inclined his head gravely to me as I sat down in the chair Harriet pulled close to the bedside.

"I do not think any harm will result from this interview if it is not prolonged," the surgeon said. "But I must impress upon you, Margaret, the necessity of brevity."

I looked at him steadily.

"If you will tell me just how long I may stay, I will go upon the second," I said quietly.

"No," Hugh broke out forcefully, but Dr. Braithwaite paid no heed to him.

"Ten minutes, if you must," he told me, "but remember that every minute lopped from that estimate is of inestimable benefit to the patient. But I will not take up any of your time. Mrs. Braithwaite and I will be just outside the door if you need us. Just touch the bell. Otherwise we shall not disturb you. Come, my dear."

He offered his arm to his wife with the courtliness he always has shown her, and they went down the room together. Hugh's eyes followed them until they had closed the door, when they flew to mine.

"I have needed you so!" he whispered.

Patricia Pitt's Comment on Pittsburgh's Society Happenings

In Mayfair --With--

Patricia Pitt

Before coming home—they're expected Sunday—Mrs. Thomas Raymond Evans and her daughters, Virginia and Betty, are in New York for a few days.

Virginia was a deb of the past season; Betty studied abroad this past year.

During their New York visit they've been at the Evans' summer home, "Hazelpoint Cottage," Hyannisport. They are stopping at the Savoy-Plaza.

Mrs. Evans' married daughter, Mrs. John Berdan (Margaret Evans) has been back a fortnight or so from Hyannisport.

The family will all be in the East again for the wedding of Mrs. Evans' son, Raymond Flaccus Evans, to Elizabeth Rutgers Whitney.

Their wedding, as I've mentioned before, will mark September 21. It will take place in the Englewood, N. J., residence of the junior Ernest Stauffens.

MISS VIRGINIA EVANS

The bride's a daughter of Mrs. Jessup Whitney, of New York, and of Livingston Whitney, of Honolulu.

Margaret Geddes To Wed Today

But it's a different shade of ivory satin—it has a pinkish cast.

She'll marry John Franklin Lewis, Jr., son of the John Franklin Lewises, this afternoon at 5:30 o'clock in Calvary Episcopal Church with the Rev. C. Ronald Garmey officiating.

Her gown, in princess style with a high neckline distinguished by three pleats of the material, will have a long-sleeved jacket. Instead of a veil, she'll wear a beret of the same satin.

Mrs. Simpson Matron of Honor

Mrs. Herbert P. Simpson (Eleanor Lewis before her marriage in June), will be matron of honor. She'll appear in a copper-leaf velvet gown with a beret of the same material.

A deep chartreuse velvet gown will be worn by the maid of honor, Helen Cole. Her beret will be of the same material as her gown.

John Slick will be best man and Mark Herr, Curtis M. Colvin and Herbert P. Simpson will be ushers.

Davis Nuptials Next Month

Among October brides will be Virginia Bridgeman Davis, daughter of Mrs. George Milton Davis, of Beechwood boulevard.

Virginia has named Friday, October 12, as the date for her marriage to Wayne Rawley, Jr., son of the Wayne Rawleys, of the Schenley Apartments.

George H. Flinn, Jr., who won the tenth annual Fairacre Challenge cup tournament at Hot Springs, Va., over Labor Day week-end, entertained with a luncheon party at the Homestead.

* * *

The George W. Crawfords will stay at Casino cottage at the Greenbrier, White Sulphur Springs, throughout the month.

* * *

Dalzell Place Girl Weds In Home

Miss Isabella Stevenson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Stevenson, of Dalzell place, and W. Randall Skillen, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. W. Randall Skillen, of Avondale, Pa., were married this morning at 11:30 o'clock in the Stevenson home.

Blind Women's Club Meets Tomorrow

The Progressive Blind Women's Club will meet tomorrow at Torrance House, Western avenue, for luncheon and the season's first meeting. Mrs. Herbert Weltz is the chairman for the meeting.

Advertising Club To Meet Monday

To open its season, the Women's Advertising Club will meet for luncheon in Kaufmann's on Monday at 12:15. Antoinette Bittner is president.

Relatives Attend Bride

At a wedding in the Trinity Evangelical Luthern Church, Wilson, Pa., on Saturday, all the brothers and sisters of the bride—11 of them—were members of the bridal party.

The bride was Miss Nelle E. Kirmeyer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Kirmeyer, of Clairton, and she married Howard Miller, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Miller, at high noon with the Rev. A. E. Simon officiating.

The bride wore white satin with a veil of tulle and carried white roses and blue delphinium. She was given in marriage by her father.

Mrs. James Hall and six sisters of the bride were her attendants. Mrs. Hall, matron of honor, from Chicago, wore peach moire and carried Premier roses. Miss Carrie J. Kirmeyer, maid of honor, wore blue net and carried yellow roses, and her five other sisters as bridesmaids, were Mrs. George Wetzler, of McKeesport, in cream colored crepe; Mrs. C. E. Helquist, McKeesport, in aquamarine crepe; Mrs. Harry Thomas, in green mousseline de soie; Miss Dorothy R. Kirmeyer, in flesh mousseline de soie, and Miss Minnie R. Kirmeyer, in pink net. They all carried pink roses.

Miss Dorothy Kirmeyer, as her aunt's flower girl, wore white organdie and carried a basket of asters, roses and baby's breath.

Lloyd Miller was his nephew's best man, and the bride's six brothers were ushers. They were Harry, Dick, King, William, Otto and R. C. Kirmeyer.

Latest News of Pittsburgh Club Women's Activities

Section's Speakers Listed

MRS. CHARLES M. BREGG

Program announcements just made by the Pittsburgh Section, National Council of Jewish Women, augur well for a year of mental pleasure and profit. The first meeting of the season on October 23 will be addressed by the Rev. Dr. Solomon B. Freehof, Dr. Samuel H. Goldenson's successor at Rodef Shalom Temple. Rabbi Freehof will speak on "The Jewish Child in the Modern World."

The section's guest for its November meeting on the twenty-seventh will be Oswald Garrison Villard, editor of The Nation. His subject is to be "The Menace of Nationalism." Rabbi Milton Steinberg, of the Park Avenue Synagogue, New York City, will speak on "Is Zionism the Answer?" when he comes for the January 22 meeting.

February's program is yet to be announced. March's will include an address by Lewis Browne, author of "How Odd of God," "This Believing World," and "That Man Heine." "Are the Dark Ages Returning?" is his interrogative topic. Margot Samber, diseuse, in her "Theater of the Imagination" is April's program attraction. The May meeting, on the twenty-eighth, will be the annual business session.

An additional activity for Council members this season will be a new study group which Dr. C. R. Daugherty, of the University of Pittsburgh, will lead on "The Development of Modern Economic Problems." The course will run for six consecutive Mondays, beginning October 29. Mrs. Richard Fishel is chairman.

Anna C. Wilson Will Marry Tomorrow

Miss Anna Catherine Wilson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John C. Wilson, of Hamilton avenue, will marry William Roy Cooper, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Cooper, of Monaca, tomorrow in the Children's Chapel of the Second Presbyterian Church, Wilkinsburg.

She will be given in marriage by her father and will be attended by her sister, Mrs. Paul H. Crago. Robert B. Fairchild is to be best man. Ushers will include Paul H. Crago, of Wilkinsburg, and Elvin W. Batchelor, of Rochester, Pa.

There will be an informal reception after the ceremony. Mr. Cooper and his bride will leave on a short motor trip to Washington after which they plan to be at home in Beaver.

City Club Sets Date for Its Opening

The Women's City Club has set Saturday afternoon, October 13, as the date for its opening event, the reception which the president, Mrs. C. L. Peirce, Jr., will give for new members. The tea room, which is particularly attractive these days with lovely arrangements of late summer flowers, will remain open to the public until the first of October.

It is a favorite meeting place for pre-season conferences, small groups meeting for discussion of plans over a bite of luncheon or in the afternoon over a cup of tea.

Four Speakers At Council Event

The National Better Magazines Council is giving a tea on esday to meet the presidents of Allegheny County women's clubs. A quartet of speakers will be heard—Judge Sara Soffel, Mrs. D. Edwin Miller, Miss Naomi Larkin, and Mrs. Frederick B. Chalfant, who founded the council.

Association to See Play by Children

All the entertainment, including a one-act play, will be presented by children of members when the Women's Community Association begins another season Monday in the John Morrow School.

The association's patriotic community is sponsoring a benefit card party next Friday afternoon in Mrs. John Morrow's home, Woods Run avenue.

Pittsburgh Folks At Atlantic City

Pittsburghers sojourning at Chalfonte-Haddon Hall, Atlantic City, are Mr. and Mrs. F. K. Knapp, Mrs. W. R. Kimball, Mr and Mrs. H. J. Koch, Mrs. Clara Miller and Miss Marie Miller, Royal and R. Chester Miller, and Mr. and Mrs. U. P. Shipman.

'Y' Auxiliary Plans Treasure Hunt

A treasure hunt has been planned as part of the afternoon's entertainment at the opening fall meeting of the Ben Avon Y. M. C. A. Auxiliary, for which Mrs. Clem Irwin, of Valencia, will be hostess, on Thursday afternoon. Mrs. G. W. Rylander and her aides will serve tea.

Children To Study Dances

The dancing classes for children and older boys and girls will be offered again during the coming season by the social committee of the College Club. Mrs. C. L. Dunham, chairman, has chosen her committees. Mrs. H. Lee Briney, Mrs. C. Dixon Harnack, Mrs. Carl Jensen, Mrs. Bradley Joice, Mrs. Walter R. Sloan and Mrs. Carl Voss, will have charge of the popular senior cotillion. Mrs. John Dambach, Mrs. Earl Penelon, Mrs. H. B. Gardner, Mrs. Otto G. Leichleiter and Mrs. J. Clyde Whetzel will have the junior cotillion and the children's classes are to be under auspices of Mrs. John T. Brown, Jr., Mrs. J. K. B. Hare, Mrs. P. C. Seaman, Mrs. I. W. Wilson and Mrs. Edgar W. McCallister.

Mme. Suzanne Karpova will instruct the children's work and the junior cotillion. The senior cotillion constitutes a series of dances for the older sons and daughters of club members and their friends.

Martha Rupp Engaged to Wed

Mrs. Martha Gilson Rupp, of Penfield court, Wilkinsburg, announces the betrothal of her daughter, Miss Martha Eileen Rupp, to Joseph Anthony Cirillo, son of Larry Cirillo and the late Mrs. Cirillo, of Bentleyville, Pa. Mr. Cirillo is a graduate of Penn State and the Duquesne University Law School.

Institute Chairman Chosen

George M. P. Baird will preside at the third drama institute which will be held on Saturday, October 13, in the Carnegie Institute of Technology under auspices of the Pittsburgh Drama League. The selection of Mr. Baird as chairman seems particularly appropriate because his work in the Drama League, of which he is a charter member, has all been directed toward the assistance of the amateur players, and this is the aim of the institute also.

Mr. Baird is the author of a score of plays and of three pageants, all of which he successfully directed in person. He is a former instructor in the University of Pittsburgh and executive secretary of the Pittsburgh Art Commission, a member of the Poetry Society of America, the Authors' Club of Pittsburgh, and a charter member of the Hungry Club. As director of the Drama League he has served as lecturer on the literature and production of drama, judge in the annual amateur players contest, and first adjudicator for stage settings in the contest for the Lame Thompson prize.

Dormont Group Will Play Bridge

The ways and means committee of Dormont New Century Club will sponsor a bridge luncheon tournament, taking place the first four Thursdays in October at 1 in the club house. Both auction and contract bridge will be played. Mrs. H. J. Shaver is chairman of the committee and has Mrs. Harold Witzel as vice chairman.

Fraternity Group To Hold Meeting

The September luncheon meeting of the Pittsburgh Club of Alpha Gamma Delta, national women's social fraternity, will take place Saturday, September 15, in Miss Mary Tea's home, South Graham street. A business meeting and bridge will fill the afternoon.

Walter Winchell
ON BROADWAY

Portrait of a Man Talking to Himself

Clara Kimball Young hasn't enough misery . . . So one of her interviewers quotes her along these sappy lines: "Your hair is so gray, why don't you dye it—and look younger?" . . . To which Clara is supposed to have answered: "Because my public has always been loyal to me—so why should I fool them now?" . . . List it, please, among the funnier sob stories . . . But Miss Young couldn't have possibly made such a sappy statement . . . Only a movie columnist could . . . Milton Berle, who recently opened in a musical show, which was flogged by the critics, was on the defensive, again . . . "After all," he said, "I'm no ham!" . . . To which a sidewalk tormentor whose eyebrows elevated, replied: "You're not exactly roast beef, either!" . . . Wonder if that tap-dancer saw a mag critic's constructive criticism? . . . To wit: "He looks as though he is frightening himself to death."

The girls attempting one of those endurance flights make me groan . . . The newsreel commentator said: "They must stay up ten days and nights to beat the record" . . . But for what? . . . For a brief shot in the newsreels and probably a week at Loew's State—and then oblivion again, which is all right with me . . . The sudden end of Russ Columbo touched me . . . Most of us liked Russ because of his good nature . . . He might have gone higher in the profession—had mismanagement not interfered . . . The quips were many about the army of chiselers who "had a piece of Columbo" . . . I often wondered how much of the wages he received when he was done paying them all . . . In the movie I suggested, and in which Columbo got his first major opportunity last year, Columbo handled the one big scene (with the gangster in the chorus girl's dressing room) the way it was created . . . I am sorry he is gone.

Pedestrian traffic is not simple these evenings in the better sectors of New York what with soap-box orators and others collecting huge crowds with their fiery speeches about Communism, etc . . . Nothing, it seems, can be done about it, either . . . America offers free speech and opinion—and all they need is a permit to arouse the many who are poor . . . Eventually the riots will grow greater, heads will be bent, and to hear the alarmists mumble it, New York will go Upton Sinclair . . . One of the calmer citizens, however, has this suggestion to offer to discourage large audiences for the so-called Reds . . . It is suggested that a corps of police and other deputies interrupt such meetings by demanding of the spectators to produce their citizenship papers . . . Of course they won't have the documents on them at the time . . . If they are held as "suspicious aliens" a few hours—and cannot produce the papers — then let deportation confront them . . . This sounds simple on newsprint, of course, but the suggestion-offerer believes it will make the streets navigable.

I know of one youth, college trained, and raised in luxury, who has been worrying his parents. . . After four years at school he found himself bored—no job, none in view, and time to kill. . . He became a Communist. . . It gave him something to do—and anyway, his oratory was appreciated by the passers-by. . . His worried kin went to the family physician for counsel. . . He suggested their son be sent to Russia for a holiday and to acquaint himself with conditions there to make his speeches more convincing. . . He accepted readily and still is there, but he wants to come home to his mama. . . . A year in Russia has cured him. . . He likes his privacy, his own room, and his food cooked a special way, and he is suffering so.

Heheheh . . . Got the titters, got the titters—and the more I think about it—I get the titters. . . I mean about the fortune teller woman on 8th Ave., who used to have her store near the old morning racing paper near 50th St. . . Her palm readings and other clairvoyancy were the talk of the neighborhood and she made a lot of coin . . . That is, until the illusion was melted . . . They found out that every day she would go upstairs to the editorial rooms of the racing authority to ask him for tips on the next day's races! . . . The foreword that I penned for Damon Runyon's very comical book, "Blue Plate Special," included a misquote, I learned later . . . Referring to one of Runyon's poetic classics, I wrote that the line I liked was: "Gimmee a handy guy like Sande bootin' those winners home!" . . . It doesn't go that way, at all, some of the better proofreaders in town point out. . . What distresses me, however, is the hunch that the author (who would have caught the error had he seen it) didn't even read it!

About the only reward most locals receive after they've done a good deed—is a mention of it in columns such as these . . . F. Stanley, for example, is waiter No. 28 at the Casino de Paree . . . He finds lost pocketbooks containing sums of money and returns them to his boss until claimed . . . Don Skene, one of the better sports oracles for the gazettes, recently did a novel about the ring called, "The Red Tiger" . . . The critics praised it unanimously . . . Skene's eyes have been failing him rapidly, and he hasn't been able to read the sugary reports, which it is presumed, were read to him . . . One of the sensational producers still has critics . . . He was ankling out of a night place the other dawning and someone remarked that he was going out . . . "Gee, exclaimed a caustic observer, "I didn't recognize him for the moment without a flop show" . . . Phil Spitalny's brother has the thickest Joosh dialect of the pair . . . Meeting Brother Phil on the street he bellowed: "Hallo Feel, how do you Phil?"

Percy Hammond, the critic, who has been at it for 30 years, is difficult to please—but for good cause . . . Take the last "Follies" revue . . . Hammond covered his first "Follies" in Chicago about 25 years ago . . . The 1934 version opened with a joke familiar to his ears . . . He finally went to his files—looked up the notice he wrote on the first "Follies" he saw in Chicago—and darned if the same gag wasn't quoted by him from that show . . . When I am Dictator of New York, among other items that will be outlawed will be those itinerant bandsmen . . . Even those with a sensayuma . . . That crew the other 8:30 a. m., frinstance . . . They tootled away in those ungodly hours, playing: "Sleepy-head, come on get, outta bed, etc." . . . the fooofs.

Recently the newspapers felt sorry for a CCC worker . . . They reported that he was working for $1 daily although his song was still one of the favorites . . . The song, they said, was "Happy Days Are Here Again" . . . A very touching tale, indeed . . . But the song was written by Jack Yellen and Milt Ager . . . All of which brings up that widely exploited letter allegedly from John Dillinger, before he was riddled . . .

ONCE 'GREATEST VAMP' HAPPILY WED 12 YEARS

THEDA BARA NOW SEDATE WIFE

ONCE "QUEEN OF VAMPIRES," MRS. CHARLES K. BRABIN LIVES QUIETLY IN BEVERLY HILLS

Gives Rules For Ideal Marriage

HOLLYWOOD, Sept. 7.—In sharp contrast to the days when she broke men's hearts and smashed homes and nations—in the silent movies—Theda Bara, the "greatest vampire of them all," today is Hollywood's model housewife, contented to live quietly in Beverly Hills as the wife of Charles K. Brabin, noted motion picture director. Declared dark-eyed Theda:

YEARNS TO RETURN

"Of course, like all actresses, I yearn sometimes to get back into pictures and I may if I find a suitable talkie vehicle but until then I'm perfectly happy to be Mrs. Charles K. Brabin."

But with a slow glance around a large and luxuriously furnished room in her attractive shrub-studded home she added that:

"I like lots of friends, and a home, and I like to collect art objects.

"When I was in pictures I lived in a strange exodic realm. I had very few personal contacts.

"I'm much more human now.

"I'm surrounded by my friends, my father and mother live in Hollywood and I'm very happy.

"If I had my life to live over again, I'd do the same things. I guess I've caught the pagan spirit of Hollywood, although while I've been to many gay and brilliant affairs, I've never attended a "wild Hollywood party."

IN STAGE PLAY

She recently played a role in a Hollywood stage play and enjoyed it.

In her home life now Miss Bara is a delightful refutation of the legend that "marriages are made in heaven and broken in Hollywood." She celebrated her twelfth wedding anniversary in June.

Miss Bara said:

"Rules for a happy marriage? Let's call the first rule 'bear and forbear.' Next should be a sense of humor. Separate sleeping quarters. A maternal instinct. A sameness of temperaments. Lastly, never bore your mate."

Theda today weighs 133 pounds. She has remained as enchanting, fascinating as she was in the "silent days" when she thrilled movie audiences the world over in "A Fool There Was," "Camille," "The Vampire's Reveric," "Carmen," "Under Two Flags," "Cleopatra," and other super-colossal feature pictures. She made 40 pictures in four and one-half years and retired from pictures upon her marriage.

Naming the "greatest vampires" on the screen today Miss Bara selected Greta Garbo, Marlene Deitrich, Katharine Hepburn, Mae West, Jean Harlow and Alice White. She explained:

"But, of course, the technique has changed since the days of silent pictures."

HOT FROM HOLLYWOOD

By JIMMY STARR

HOLLYWOOD, Sept. 7.—Hello! Sylvia Sidney's been seen dancing at the Miramar . . . Because she's set for the lead in "The Sea Girl," The RKO film factory ordered Steffi Duna to stay at the beach and get sun-burned . . . Reggie Denny is carrying on a big correspondence course in miniature airplanes with a bunch of kids. Marian Mansfield, the local radio birdie, who warbled herself a la Bing Crosby (she was billed as the female Bing) into a Paramount contract, now gets the big thrill of her life—a singing role opposite Bing in "Lady Beware" (the new clean-up caption for "Sailor Beware."

Bud Ernst is back from seeing Broadway mazdas flicker and Molly O'Day's glad. . . Jack Durant and Frank Mitchell had their Fox option picked up—are they happy! . . . Billy Glason, youngest old-timer of the nearly-forgotten vaudeville days, has teamed up with Paula Smith, one of Hollywood's own, auditioned for a big national radio hookup, and things are looking rosy! . . . Miriam Hopkins' salary was too much for Jock Whitney's "Becky Sharp" color special, so there's a deal on to borrow Myrna Loy from M-G-M.

Inez Courtney doesn't like it, but she's been leading lady to the three stooges (Healy's ex-slapping partners) in a Columbia short giggle-getter.

If the "Birth of a Nation" is to be remade into a talkie, "why not," suggests Eli Lloyd-Hoffman, "star the famous Dionne quintuplets?"

Like Corinne Griffith and Walter Morosco since separating, Alan Crosland and Natalie Moorhead have been doing the jolly places together . . . Lillian Lang and Robert Armstrong at the El Rey Club . . . Phil Holmes lost out on that male lead in "Lorna Doone" in London. His current Universal role kept him in town on the overtime routine . . . After working for weeks and weeks on his story, "Father Serge," Dr. Eugene Frenke, Anna Sten's husband, was amazed when Universal executives tossed the yarn into the waste basket, claiming it was too censorable . . . Maybe it's because Glenda Farrell was born during an Oklahoma cyclone that she's so wild about Robert Riskin.

Mary Treen is "doubling" — by days she's in a new Warner film, and by night at the Hollywood Theater for a play, "Man of Ideas" . . . Minna Gombell is the latest to get an offer from the British film producers which would take her boating it in October . . . Rosita Moreno is back from Santa Barbara where she rested for weeks after that appendix dismissal.

The scenario writer rushed up to the critic in a theater lobby, screaming:

"Good heavens! My 3-year-old son has torn up my last script!"

"Remarkable," said the critic, "that a child of that age knows how to read!"

* * *

It's all so silly, this reported romance between Louise Latimer and Peter Arno. The chap in Louise's life would really surprise you—if you knew . . . Cupid is shooting arrows at Vic Orsatti and Cecilia Parker.

Funny, but Jack Yellen had just rented a Beverly Hills palace and sent for his family to join him. No sooner said than Fox ordered him back to New York to work with George White on the next "Scandals" film (so there's to be another one of those!)—and Jack is so upset he doesn't know which way to turn, or how to explain to his family.

Miss Hopkins Goes To Goldwyn

Miriam Hopkins has signed a four-year contract with Samuel Goldwyn, making her a fellow-star with Anna Sten and Eddie Cantor under the banner of that producer. Mr. Goldwyn has already instituted an intensive search for story material exactly suited to his new star's talents. Miss Hopkins is the first American feminine star to come under Goldwyn's guidance in many years. While he has elaborate plans for his new stellar addition, no selection of a vehicle has yet been made.

"I believe that Miss Hopkins is one of the screen's truly great artists," Mr. Goldwyn said after negotiations were completed. "I have the greatest pride in announcing our new association."

Shows for Children

The Saturday morning matinee for children in the Enright, under the auspices of Southwestern District, State Federation of Women's Clubs, will include two chapters of a serial starring Jimmy Vance and Bobby Cox, "Young Eagles," indorsed by the Boy Scouts of America. The feature will be John Wayne in "The Man From Utah." There also will be Popeye, Mickey Mouse and Joe Penner comedies, and a song party. In the South Hills the bill will be Chic Sale in "Lucky Dog," an episode in the Buck Jones serial, "Red Rider," animated cartoons, a comedy and an educational film.

Eagle Scouts in uniform will attend the show in the Enright, where candy souvenirs will be given to each child present.

Next Disney Film About Babies

The next Silly Symphony production to go before the cameras at the Walt Disney studios, is "Water Babies." It is to be produced entirely in color and will be released through United Artists. Research on babies has been going on for some time by a department specially set aside for the garnering of any useful information. Another department, specifically assigned to research on the subject of water, is also functioning.

Star Buys Home Site

(Copyright, 1934, King Features Synd., Inc.)

HOLLYWOOD, Sept. 7. — Don't be surprised to see Irene Dunne's part-time marriage level off to a more normal existence one of these days. The star and her husband, Dr. Francis Griffen, have just bought a homesite in Bel Air and expect to build there in the near future. Irene relishes the thought of trying out her ideas at interior decorating. She'll take her time and work out every room to suit her whim. And while Dr. Griffen's dental practice takes him back to New York soon, the star hopes to persuade him to spend at least six months of each year with her in California.

Despite urgent telegrams from Max Reinhardt, Eddie Cantor won't be able to play the character of Bottom in the German director's open-air production of "Midsummer Night's Dream." A group at the United Artists' studio were suggesting several other comedians who might play the role. But all happened to be busy.

"Well, if nobody else turns up," said Cantor, "they can get Stepin Fetchit and call it 'Black Bottom'."

Six months ago, James Wong Howe, the Chinese cameraman, went into a shirt making firm, in Mexico City to get measured up. The head salesman said they'd be delighted, but wouldn't Jimmie like to see some shirts exactly his size which had been made up and never called for. To make a long story short, Jimmy took the shirts and asked to have them shipped to him in Hollywood, because he was flying back and didn't want to add weight to his baggage. That was six months ago. The shirts came the other day. And inside the neck-band of each one is a little label:

"Made especially for General Sandino."

All In A Day

By MARK HELLINGER

C. B.

IF YOU'RE a student of the Broadway columns, you know just about what to expect when a well-known theatrical figure passes. You're told that there never lived a greater guy, and that the old stem will never be quite the same without him.

Im the main, that's hooey. Because no matter how great the dead man is, he will always be replaced. And so far as the old stem is concerned, it will go on just the same as always. Death is but momentary to all except the dead.

All of which is by way of introduction to the fact that this is another obituary column. It's a piece about the late Charles B. Dillingham. And you will find it different from the usual run of obituaries.

It's different because Charlie Dillingham didn't deserve to die the way he did. It's different because, if all the flowers that were sent when he was dead had been converted into cash while he was living, Dillingham would probably be alive today.

There is no point of going into Dillingham's career in this space. Through the years, you knew him the way I did, as a great theatrical name. Until the crash, Dillingham was always Flo Ziegfeld's rival in the musical world. And if his renown wasn't quite as great, it was because Charlie lacked Flo's great desire for personal publicity.

During his active career, Dillingham made a great deal of money. It is no exaggeration to say that he was away up in the millions at one time, and his parties in Palm Beach and Westchester ran into small fortunes on each occasion. Society, as usual, fawned upon him when he was in the big dough. And Society, also as usual, dropped him quickly when the well ran dry.

The man had a grand sense of humor. With the possible exception of Sam H. Harris, there never lived a producer who drew more fun from a good gag. And it is a great tribute to him to say that until he neared the very end, Dillingham never lost the jovial spirit that endeared him to all who knew him.

Charley Dillingham went broke because of an unprecedented streak of hard luck. True, he spent lavishly and he gave unstintingly to charity. But, in the last seven or eight years, he couldn't seem to produce a hit. He employed the finest authors and the best talent, but a winning simply wasn't in the cards.

He lost $319,000 on one pro- liam Wiseman helped him other. He tried again. Failure. Still again. Failure. He tossed in his properties and stocks in an effort to stem the tide.

But it was no go. He marched on with his chest out and his head high, but banks and creditors weren't dealing in chests and heads. One by one, his holdings slipped from his hands. He lost the Globe Theater, his greatest pride—and he lived to see it become a cheap movie house.

They finally plunged him into bankruptcy....

It is violating no confidence to say that during the past year or two Dillingham lived on charity. I know that Sir William Wiseman helped him greatly, and you can bet your bottom dollar that George M. Cohan was somewhere in the picture—as always. And there were probably one or two others.

But the sad part of it was that there were many who didn't care. There were many whom Dillingham had turned into millionaires—and then wheeled the other way when Charley went broke. He was owed great amounts of money by people who were never in when C. B. called.

Still in all, he was a mighty proud bird. It was just about a year ago when he visited me in the hospital. We were alone in my room and I asked him bluntly about money conditions.

He gave me that swell grin of his.

"Money, my boy?" he cried. "Why, don't be silly. I'm in great shape. Yes, sir. Positively great. Don't worry about me."

And even as he talked, he was tucking in the frayed ends of 'his shirt cuffs....

Several months ago, a show named "New Faces" opened at the Fulton Theater. Charlie Dillingham was around with a new vitality. He had been given a small piece of the show and his name was on the attraction as co-producer.

In his earlier days, C. B. would have booted "New Faces" and most of the cast right out of his office. Nine-tenths of the players were amateurs, the others young punks who thought themselves mighty important. But Charlie didn't care. He was back in the game he loved so well.

The critics were kind to "New Faces"; much kinder, in fact, than the show deserved. If the truth be told, they did it for Dillingham. He was making his comeback, all wanted to help.

For a while Charlie was his old self. But then, by degrees, the youngsters around the show took away his confidence. His suggestions were laughed at, his orders scorned. And then —finally—they fired him.

Poor Charlie left the Fulton Theater that night and walked the few steps to Moore's Restaurant. He sat down wearily. He suddenly seemed very, very old. For the first time in 66 years his spirit was broken.

"I guess it's the end," he said, slowly. "They don't want me any more." . . . .

That was about two months ago, and few of us saw C. B. again. Now he's gone; gone to the accompaniment of costly flowers and much praise. And as for me—well, I wish he had died just a little earlier. . . . . .

FAIRBANKS, JRS.' DOMESTIC BREAK CAME UNEXPECTEDLY

Joan's Plans Made Before Husband Was Sued

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS

(This series by the renowned Hearst film commentator, with whose Sunday column Sun-Telegraph readers are familiar, deals with heretofore untold stories of film celebrities whom she knows as neighbors and friends. "Just folks to me," she says in "HOLLYWOOD IS MY HOME TOWN," which is appearing in Hearst's International Cosmopolitan Magazine, by whose permission it is reprinted.)

In previous installments intimate closeups of Charlie Chaplin, the Harold Lloyds, Constance Bennett, Mary Pickford, Douglas Fairbanks, Joan Crawford and Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., were given by Miss Parsons.

Miss Parsons

Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., is an erudite young man. Educated abroad and surrounded by friends who had ideas, he early developed an amazing intellectuality. Joan tried to keep pace with him. She read good books and studied to fit herself for the role of young Mrs. Fairbanks. When she found her marriage was turning out unhappily, her castles, built with such faith and hope, crumbled about her.

Learns of Divorce Plans

I learned of her plan to divorce young Fairbanks in a strange and unexpected manner. The husband of a certain comely young married woman in Europe had filed suit against Douglas, Jr., for alienation of affections. Joan was vehement in her indignation over these accusations.

She branded the entire suit as ridiculous and untrue, but in spite of her faith in her young husband in this specific case, she felt they had reached an impasse in their marriage.

Joan and Douglas . . . . she told him by 'phone

The Hearst newspapers thought Joan's loyal stand would make an interesting Sunday feature. I was assigned to write a sob story based on her allegiance to her husband.

Never thinking for a moment that Joan at this particular time was considering a break with Doug, I wrote a glowing account of her determination to remain Fairbanks' stanch ally.

After my beautiful story was completed, I telephoned Joan and read her the masterpiece. A stony silence greeted my effusion. I was dumbfounded. I had expected her to be pleased with my complimentary phrases.

"Don't print it," she said in a voice trembling with emotion. "It isn't true. I'm awfully sorry, but if you won't publish the article I'll give you the big story everyone has been trying to get. I'll give it to you tomorrow."

Beats World By Two Hours

I waited to hear no more. Dashing to her house in Brentwood I confronted her. Trying hard not to break down, she admitted conditions had become so unbearable that she had decided to leave her husband.

I don't believe it ever occurred to Joan that her actions might be misconstrued, and that the world might think she was running out at a time when Doug needed her. She was through with him.

Although she reiterated her belief in him in the alienation suit, she had planned to leave him several months before the sensational story broke in all the newspapers.

Once having given me the headline front-page story of her separation, Joan called in the other newspaper people in Hollywood and three or four of her pet fan-magazine writers to make her big announcement. I beat the world by only a scant two hours, with the first public statement that the Douglas Fairbanks, Jrs., had decided to live apart.

Gets Inside Information

But I did get a little inside information that the other reporters never learned and which I felt at that time in honor bound not to print.

Unreality About Whole Thing

I was in the room when Joan broke the news of the coming separation to Douglas, Jr., over the telephone. I heard her ask him please to have his clothes sent to some other address.

He was working at the time, and when he left his comfortable home for the studio the morning he had no idea that he was leaving it forever.

There was an unreality about the whole thing. Joan grew very emotional—she put on an act that would have done credit to a Duse. I felt I was watching a drama on the stage rather than an act from real life.

That's the trouble with Joan Crawford. She so often acts a part. Even when she is relating some unimportant incident one imagines that she is saying to herself, "Bernhardt would have played my scene with this interpretation."

Joan has now emerged into another phase of her chameleon-like personality. She had improved her mind during the years as Mrs. Douglas Fairbanks, Jr.

Now she is studying the theater. At the suggestion of Mr. Tone, who is often called Hollywood's perfect gentleman, she has built a small theater on her estate in Brentwood. Here plays are tried out and ambitious young playwrights encouraged.

Life isn't all an artificial bubble for Joan. She does many really commendable things. Although I seldom see her now, I still appreciate the tender woman's soul that makes her realize the other person's trouble. A few months ago her chauffeur's wife was dangerously sick.

Joan took his three children into her home. She not only fed, clothed and bought them expensive toys, but she read them bedtime stories and kept them from grieving over their mother. This little true story and the oft-printed yarn of her educating two young boys are indications of Joan's splendid character.

Menjou Film Comedy at Warner

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

Warner patrons this week will find some good comedy and some passable romantic drama in the two features that make up its bill. The comedy rating highest in the program is "The Human Side," co-starring Adolphe Menjou and Doris Kenyon. "Blind Date," made on the poor-boy-working-girl-rich-playboy pattern, has Ann Sothern, Neil Hamilton and Paul Kelly in leading roles.

Menjou, in "The Human Side," portrays with skillful touch a play producer, divorced from Miss Kenyon, but so much in love with their four youngsters he is gladly welcomed on his visits to his former home. He provides for them generously whenever he is well off. A stage-struck lady who backs his shows, and acts terribly in them, is the principal cause of his family trouble. It ends with a happy note, and prospects of a reunited family.

"Blind Date" gets Miss Sothern into a disagreement with her fiance, Paul Kelly, when the rich Neil Hamilton becomes interested in her. But it proves to be real love, so Paul forgives and forgets.

SUGGESTS WAYS OF PRESERVING GRAPES

Nearly everyone "collects" something or other to satisfy what the psychologists call the "acquisitive instinct." They advise us to put it to practical use, and housewives who have been collecting jams and jellies from each fresh fruit crop as it came on the market this summer have been following that advice.

No collection of jams and jellies could be complete, however, without representation from grapes, and now that they are arriving in such quantities, this is the time to round out the pantry.

Try these two timely recipes and experience all the joys of finding perfection for your collection.

RIPE GRAPE JAM—4½ cups (2¼ pounds) prepared fruit, 7 cups (3 pounds) sugar, ½ bottle fruit pectin.

To prepare fruit, slip skins from about 3 pounds fully ripe grapes. Simmer pulp, covered, 5 minutes. Remove seeds by sieving. Chop or grind skins and add to pulp. Add ½ cup water and if desired, grated rind of 1 orange. Stir until mixture boils. Simmer, covered, 30 minutes. (Wild grapes, Malagas and other tight-skinned grapes may be stemmed, crushed whole, simmered with ½ cup water 30 minutes, sieved, and then measured. With tight-skinned grapes add juice of 1 lemon to water. Use 4 cups prepared fruit.

Measure sugar and prepared fruit into large kettle, mix well,

TAYLOR SWEARS CO-ED FLED

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Sept. 7.—(AP.)—The version of Harold Taylor, 29-year-old civil engineer, of an automobile ride from which Faye New, pretty 19-year-old co-ed, did not return alive, has been placed before a jury trying Taylor on charges of slaying the girl.

Taylor calmly told yesterday of meeting the girl and of making advances that led her to jump from his car on a lonely road and run away into the darkness. He then declared:

"I realized I had done the wrong thing and talked fast. I told her I was sorry and asked her to get back in and I would take her to town.

"She said she would not go anywhere with me and ran off. I got out to look for her and called her. I cut off the motor and radio, hoping I could hear her."

Taylor said he maneuvered his car to throw the lights in the direction the girl had taken, but saw her no more.

That was about midnight August 20. Two days later searching parties found the girl, with two gashes in her throat, lying in a ditch beside a cotton patch a mile away.

Several women witnesses for the state will not be permitted to testify.

HEINZ SPEAKS TO 70 CITIES

In 70 cities throughout the United States and Canada last night employes of the H. J. Heinz Company at banquet tables listened to their president, Howard Heinz, deliver the principal address at the celebration of the sixty-fifth anniversary of the company. The address was delievered from the Heinz service building, North Side, where local employes were banqueted.

It was the first time the telephone company had connected so many cities with a central point. The plan was made possible by a system of amplifiers arranged by the telephone company, while other amplifiers were installed in the banquet halls.

Birth, Bridal Form Family Event Chain

CRESSON, Pa., Sept. 7.—Things moved fast in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Pavlock yesterday. Twenty-five minutes before their son, John, married Miss Thersa Hajduga in St. Mary's Church, their daughter, Mrs. John Foresco, became the mother of a son.

It was the first grandchild of the Pavlocks, and the first great-grandchild of Mrs. Anna Coanshock, Mrs. Pavlock's mother, who was celebrating her seventy-eighth birthday. All live in one house.

Five Prisoners to Seek Release Soon

Five men, all with previous prison records, will ask the State Pardon Board for release from the Western Penitentiary when the board meets in Harrisburg September 19, it was announced today.

They are Albert Colletas, William Baker, John Dale Broadhead, Robert Eugene Swanhart and John Sandor. They are serving terms ranging from two to 45 years.

Fight on Infantile Paralysis Pushed

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

It is not unusual to read in the newspapers about outbreaks of infantile paralysis in different sections of the country. An epidemic along the Pacific Coast aroused considerable uneasiness. At last accounts there appeared to be no marked increase in the number of cases. That situation was not particularly alarming because the cases reported seemed to be of the mild form.

Dr. Copeland

As a rule cases of infantile paralysis, or "anterior poliomyelitis," as its medically termed, begin to appear during June and July. As the summer progresses the number of cases increases until about September. When the cool weather sets in there is a gradual decline and by December few cases are reported. But at any season there will be some.

The disease is likely to attack children, but it also afflicts adults.

The actual cause of the disease is not known. Since the germ of infantile paralysis has never been determined, medical science has not yet been able to perfect a means of guarding against the infection. It is believed to be a "filterable virus," an agent so small it cannot be seen even with the aid of the most powerful microscope.

Several scientists in New York have recently attempted to develop a vaccine which would give definite protection against the disease. The vaccine is obtained from the spinal cord of monkeys that have died from infantile paralysis. These brave scientists have injected themselves with the vaccine and hope to demonstrate its value as a preventive against this dreaded disease. The world anxiously awaits the outcome of their experiments.

As a preventive measure the injection of the blood of a person who has recovered from infantile paralysis has been of value. This is not always successful and besides it only bestows immunity or protection for a few weeks. Every parent in North America will be happy when the certain preventive and cure are found.

Since personal contact is the most likely means of spreading the disease, it is important that all victims of infantile paralysis be isolated in the early stages. Hospitalization is the ideal method of handling the patient, because it not only assures the sufferer of constant care and attention, but it is a means of protecting others. Convalescence is hastened and the spread of the disease is controlled.

"HOW CHIPSO SAVES OUR CLOTHES"
JO ANN DAVID MRS. BRYANT NANCY

GIVES "RUB-LESS WASHDAYS"

"MARVELOUS, 4-INCH-THICK SUDS from Chipso," says Mrs. Bryant. "15 minutes is ample soaking time, with this sudsy soap. After that, a few turns and sloshes tumble the dirt right out. The clothes aren't in the tub long enough to get water-logged and they don't have to be rubbed thin. I think that is why our clothes stay strong and new-looking for months of wear. The pants David has on in this picture, for instance, are 8 MONTHS OLD and Jo Ann's sheer dress has been washed all of 60 TIMES."

SOAKS CLOTHES WHITE NATURALLY

"NO HARSH BLEACHED LOOK OR SMELL about my Chipso'd white clothes! Chipso takes the dirt out of a heavy material like this white cotton homespun suit I'm wearing so that it looks like new each time I wash it. But the wear Jo Ann has had from her sheer dress shows that the whitener in Chipso is just good soapy suds—nothing harsh."

"LIKE A TONIC FOR COLORS!"

"QUICK washing in Chipso suds keeps our colored clothes good for years. I had this red-striped dress last year and my blue bedspread is 3 YEARS OLD. I declare, sometimes when things are soiled I forget how brilliant they were until Chipso restores them. Chipso suds get all the dirt without fading a thing. I'll tell you a joke that happened to me. I once had a cheap kimono I didn't like. 'Oh, well, it will fade when it's washed,' I thought, 'then I can throw it away.' But I reckoned without Chipso. My kimono didn't fade at all!"

"SMOOTH-HANDS TEST" SHOWS CHIPSO IS EXTRA FINE SOAP

"DISHWASHING is lots EASIER with Chipso—you get such grand suds! They cut grease fast, but don't dry out your hands. When I saw how nice Chipso was to my hands I knew it would be safe to use Chipso even for my best lingerie and stockings. It's certainly a convenience, as well as an economy, with a big wash like ours, to have one soap that is SAFE for everything!"

RIPE GRAPE JELLY—4 cups (2 pounds) juice, 7½ cups (3¼ pounds) sugar, ½ bottle fruit pectin.

To prepare juice, stem about 3 pounds fully ripe grapes and crush thoroughly. Add ½ cup water, bring to a boil, cover, and simmer 10 minutes. Place fruit in jelly cloth or bag and squeeze out juice. (If Malagas or other tight-skinned grapes are used, the juice of 1 lemon should be added to prepared juice.)

Measure sugar and juice into large saucepan and mix. Bring to a boil over hottest fire and at once add bottled fruit pectin, stirring constantly. Then bring to a full rolling boil and boil hard ½ minute. Remove from fire, skim, pour quickly. Paraffin hot jelly at once. Makes about 11 glasses (6 fluid ounces each).

ACCUSED KILLER FACES SURGERY

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 7—(AP.)—Superior Judge Schmidt has signed an order permitting two brain specialists to perform a delicate operation for the removal of a bullet from the brain of Gray McNeer, who faces trial for the alleged slaying of his estranged wife.

County hospital attaches yesterday said McNeer's chances of surviving the operation were one in a thousand, and refused to perform the operation, although they admitted McNeer would die unless the bullet was removed. Dr. Mark Glaser and Dr. J. W. Pidcock immediately volunteered to undertake the surgery.

Legal authorities made the objection that only staff physicians may operate at the county hospital, however, and Judge Schmidt's order was necessary to clear the way for the performance of the delicate feat.

McNeer's mother has given approval for the surgery.

Candy Now Recognized As Staple of Diet

Sugar Contained in Candy Necessary as a Quick Source of Energy; Candy May Be Counted in the List of Foods Giving Balance to Diet.

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

United States Senator from New York, Former Health Commissioner of New York City.

During the World War many experiments were conducted to find out what foodstuffs were best for our soldiers. It was vital that their foods should be wholesale, nourishing and sustaining.

Candy, hitherto considered merely a delicacy, was listed as a staple food. The experiments proved that sugar is really essential in the diet of the soldier. It may well be that this information has had much to do with the steady increase in the production of candy. America consumes more of it than any other country in the world. Statistics recently compiled show that nearly 12 pounds of this confection per person are consumed annually.

At one time it was believed that candy and sugar should be omitted from the diet of children. Today we know that candy in moderation and eaten at the right time is really beneficial for the young child.

TASTE SECONDARY

In the Eighteenth Century, when the manufacture of candy was in its infancy, candy makers sold their confections more for decorative purposes than for eating. They made them in a variety of elaborate designs for table decoration. Flavor and taste were secondary considerations.

Modern candy manufacturers produce confections which appeal both to the eye and the palate. Various types of nuts and fruits are used in candy-making. Every taste can be satisfied. Soft candies and hard candies are made in limitless variety.

The Pure Food Laws govern the candy industry. Whether you purchase candy at an expensive shop or at the small country store, you are assured of a product that is made of wholesome, pure ingredients.

Candy is flavored, concentrated sugar. This may be beet, cane or corn sugar. Like fat and starch, sugar supplies the body with an available form of fuel. It is recognized as an important source of energy. The substance is easily assimilated by the body and readily digested. It lends variety and taste to the diet.

VARIETY NEEDED

Individuals who limit their foods strictly to those which are supposed to be "good" for them, make as grave a mistake as those who include only one type of food in their diet. Leading food authorities recommend a diet which contains a variety of foods. This practice makes for a well-balanced diet. Candy may well be counted among the foods included.

At one time candy was made at home. To make it properly much time is required. The housewife, with her many duties to perform, has now turned to the candy-shop for this food. She is able to purchase "home-made" candy, certainly as good as the candy she could make at home.

Candy is valuable in the diet. It gives that comfortable feeling of satiety, of satisfaction. Because it is a quick source of energy it is given to hikers and soldiers who require body fuel to give them renewed "pep."

CALVERT FIGHTS MORTGAGE POOL

Judge James H. Gray is weighing testimony on exceptions filed by George H. Calvert to the account of the Potter Title and Trust Company, guardians of the estate, Calvert excepting to the trust company investing $20,000 in a mortgage pool.

Mr. Calvert

Attorney John P. Connelly, of Philadelphia, who represents Calvert, placed Mrs. Calvert and J. L. Treefaller, also guardians for Calvert along with the trust company, on the stand. They testified they did not know until sometime after the money was invested that it was placed in a pool. However, Treefaller said, he did not object to it.

Mrs. Calvert claims that she did not know about the pool until she was asked to sign the account prepared by the trust company.

William Hegeman, of the Potter Title and Trust Company, said no statement regarding the pool had been filed with the court. He said that the principle involved in the pool was the same as mortgage pools of other financial institutions. The hearing was concluded yesterday.

TRAFFIC GUIDES FOR SCHOOLS

A course in street safety, with safety lesson outlines and posters each month to assist teachers in the preparation of the subject, has been made available to the city's public and parochial schools by the Better Traffic Committee.

The course is designed primarily for boys and girls in the primary and intermediate grades and junior high school pupils.

The committee points out that traffic fatalities among school children in Pittsburgh have increased sharply this year. Playing in the street and darting out between parked cars are among the chief causes of accidents to children, the committee finds. Special attention is to be given to the work of the school safety patrols.

THREE MEN DIE IN ACCIDENTS

Tony Georgieu, 40, of 3 Franklin street, West Etna, died late yesterday in Allegheny General Hospital from a skull fracture suffered two hours before when he fell from a crane in the Etna plant of the Spang, Chalfant & Co., Inc., it was reported.

Charles Bedworth, 60, of Walnut street extension, Versailles, died in McKeesport Hospital a short time after he was caught under a fall from coal and slate in the McKeesport Coal and Coke Company mine at McKeesport, according to the Coroner's office.

Complications developing from injuries suffered July 30, when a post fell on him in the Midland mine at Houston, caused the death yesterday in Mercy Hospital of John W. Weincek, 52, of Houston.

Recompense : : Daily Short Short-Story

By CHARLES F. STOOL

At midnight the lobby was deserted. Once in a while Will, seated on his little stool in the elevator, heard the clank of one of the scrubwomen's pails. They were working on the floor above.

He was wide awake, although he'd been on duty for 10 hours. This was his last day with Penoyer & Co. For almost 30 years he'd been shuttling folks up and down the elevator. He ought to have welcomed retirement by this time, but since the company's ceasing to give pensions to old employes he had not felt easy. Will was 65 years old —the age limit at Penoyer's. Well, he would know by this time tomorrow what his fate would be.

He wondered if old man Penoyer was going to retire also when he got to be 65. The man was there every night, busy in his private office far up on the fortieth floor. At 12:15 or thereabout the indicator in front of Will would flash a red 40, and that would be the end of Penoyer's working day and of Wills last day for the company.

Will planned to ask Penoyer about the pension matter tonight when he took him down. Perhaps there would be just enough time. Forty floors meant only about a minute in which to speak to him, so there would be no waste of time. That $20 a month meant the world and all to Will. Without it he would be destitute. His one fear for the moment was whether Penoyer would ignore him when he inquired about the pension. Penoyer had a reputation for being "hard." It was his one chance, though, of safeguarding the future. He simply had to ask.

A red light glowed on the indicator board. That would be Penoyer. Will breathed what he hoped was a prayer and started the elevator on its upward journey to the fortieth floor. He had no fixed notion of what he was going to say to Penoyer, but he knew that he mustn't fail to address him the moment he entered the elevator. Time was precious. Every word would have to count.

The floors sped by, twenty-five —thirty—thirty-five—forty. Will stopped the elevator and opened the gates. His hand shook. Penoyer was waiting there. A short, well-groomed man. There was a brittle, dogged look on his face. Truly, a "hard" man. The habitual briefcase was in his right hand. No one had ever seen Penoyer without that bulging case. He took his business to bed with him, his employes said.

Just as Penoyer entered the elevator another man came hurrying down the dim corridor. He shouted at Will. "Hey! Going down!"

Will's hand hesitated on the control lever. The sight of another passenger dismayed him. He didn't dare approach Penoyer except in private. This meant that his chance was gone.

The man stepped into the elevator behind Penoyer. Suddenly he was brandishing a stubby revolver.

"Quick! Both of you!—on the floor! You, Penoyer, there's thirty grand in that briefcase. I want it! You—" motioning to Will— "get going to the bottom. And not a move from either of you or you're dead."

Penoyer's face had gone white. Without a word he hunched his body flat on the floor. Will protested, shaking. "But I can't run this thing lying down!" He knew he was terrified, but a crazy, feverish scheme was wavering through his mind.

"Get on your knees then!" The stranger closed the gates, still with a wary eye on the two victims. With his foot he reached for the briefcase, drew it to him and picked it up with his free hand. "Let's go, Buddy!" He waved his gun toward Will.

On his shaking knees Will reached for the control and moved it slightly. The elevator began to drop slowly. Suddenly Will wrenched it as far as it would go. They dropped sickeningly. The gunman, caught off guard, collapsed in a huddle of arms and legs. The gun roared deafeningly. Something crashed beside Will's head. The elevator rocketed downward. Will's throat was congested, and his stomach revolved like a giant wheel.

The gunman was suddenly nauseated. Penoyer, his body prone on the floor, couldn't have stirred if he had tried.

There was a shrill whistling inside the elevator. The air was being compressed in the narrow chute below. At any moment they'd be at the bottom. The indicator buttons flashed. Ten, nine, eight, seven, six. Will's arms felt like lead. With an effort he raised his hand and moved the control lever back. The car slowed. Will made a lunge for the gunman's revolver. The fellow was in a dead faint. His fingers were lax.

On the verge of insensibility himself, Will stopped the elevator, opened the gate and prodded the thoroughly cowed gunman down the length of the deserted corridor on his hands and knees and out to the street. There was still some traffic on the streets and a policeman wasn't hard to locate.

When they returned to Penoyer they found him sitting on Will's little stool, red of face and alternately praying and cursing.

"Damn it all, man, I should have you discharged for that piece of near-suicide—but today they voted down my proposal to discard pensions and you're going to be retired at $30 a month."

"Beside, the fellow could have had the briefcase for all I cared. There's nothing in it but old account sheets!"

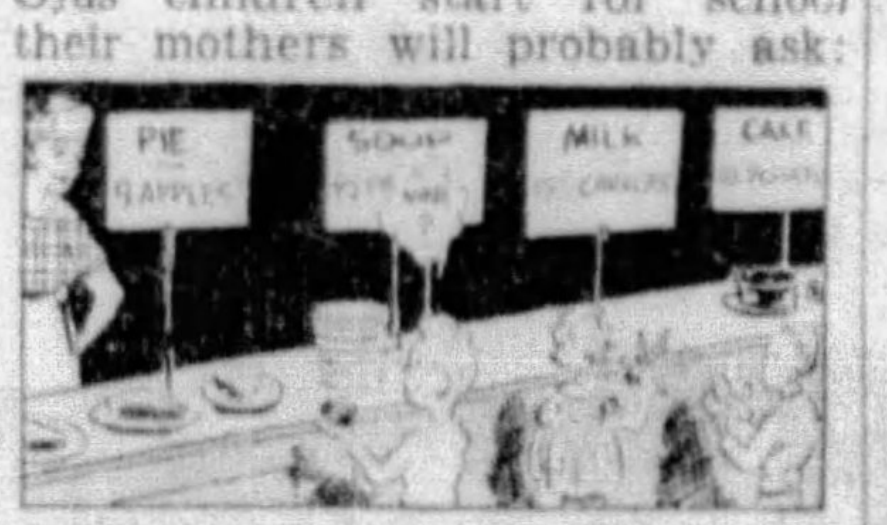
SEEK 2 IN BOGUS BILL PASSING

MERCER, Pa., Sept. 7.—County officers and state police are seeking a man and a woman, traveling with two children, who are believed to have flooded Eastern Mercer County with bogus $10 bills.

At least 48 of the bills, said to be poor imitations of a Federal Reserve note, were passed at Stoneboro, most of them at the Stoneboro fair, which closed Tuesday. The proprietor of a bingo concession at the fair found seven of the bogus notes in his receipts and gave officers a description of the pair that passed them.

Florida Pupils Trade Turnips For Lunch

OJUS, Fla., Sept. 7.—(AP.)—As Ojus children start for school their mothers will probably ask:



"Johnny, do you have your books and turnips?"

A home economics supervisor has worked out a plan through which children may trade farm products to the school cafeteria for hot lunches.

COMBERS PERIL FILM COLONY

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 7.—(AP.)—The crash of mountainous surf echoed along the Southern California beaches today, bringing with it death and destruction as men labored to raise sandbag and wooden barriers against the avalanches of water.

Striking first along the coastline near Newport Beach last week, the gigantic combers spread northward to threaten the picturesque homes of film celebrities at Malibu Beach today.

The body of an unidentified man was taken from the woodstrewn surf at Long Beach yesterday. Police believe he was killed in the collapse of the Pine Avenue Pier Wednesday.

Washing high upon the sands at Malibu Beach, the ground swells damaged beach fences at the homes of John Gilbert, Corinne Griffith, Mike Levee and Lou Seiler. Crews of workmen were rushed to the colony as residents saw visions of a repetition of the damage at Newport. Two thousand sacks of sand were raised as a barricade against the waves.

Put layer of chopped apples in bottom of buttered baking dish. Sprinkle with sugar and dash of nutmeg. Add generous layer of graham cracker crumbs. Dot with butter and repeat until all ingredients are used. Top with graham cracker crumbs and butter and bake in slow oven (325 degrees, Fahrenheit) until apples are tender, approximately one hour.

Serve with or without whipped cream or vanilla sauce. Serves 6 to 8. All measurements standard.

* * *

CHILLED APPLE SOUP—1½ pounds fresh apples, 1 quart water, 3 crackers, finely crushed, rind and juice of ½ lemon, 1 teaspoon cinnamon, ¾ cup cider, ¼ cup sugar, or more to taste, pinch of salt.

Peel and core apples and boil them in water, adding crackers, lemon juice and thinly peeled rind of lemon, and cinnamon. When cooked to a pulp, rub all through a fine sieve. Add cider and sweeten to taste. Chill thoroughly and serve with Zwieback. Serves 4.

* * *

PEACH CRACKER PIE—Crust: 20 graham crackers, finely crushed, 3 tablespoons powdered sugar, 4 tablespoons butter.

Mix above ingredients thoroughly and pat mixture firmly with palm of hand in greased 8 inch deep or 9 inch shallow pie pan. Chill thoroughly in refrigerator before filling with:

Filling: 2 cups sliced peaches, fresh or canned, ½ of 3¼ ounce package orange-flavored gelatin, ¾ cup boiling water.

If fresh peaches are used, peel peaches and cut in thin slices. Boil water and dissolve gelatin. Pour over peaches and stir occasionally until cool. Chill until slightly thickened. Turn into chilled pie crust and place in refrigerator until set. Top with whipped cream. Serves 6. All measurements standard.

* * *

Chop fine the suet, beef, clams and onions. Fry out the suet, add the onions. When nicely browned, put in the meat, then the clams and tomatoes. Season to taste. When thoroughly cooked, fill the clam shells with the mixture, over which sprinkle bread crumbs. Put in oven until crumbs are brown.

* * *

CHOCOLATE RICE PUDDING—4 cups milk, ½ cup rice, 5 tablespoons sugar, 1 tablespoon butter, 3 tablespoons grated chocolate, pinch of salt and 1 teaspoon vanilla.

Put milk in double boiler. When scalded, add other ingredients. Cook two hours. Serve hot with whipped cream.

Taxicab Hits Auto Woman Injured

A young woman was injured when a taxicab in which she was riding and an automobile collided last night at Shiloh street and Virginia avenue, Mt. Washington.

The victim, Blanche Guinach, 27, of 1032 West Washington avenue, New Castle, suffered bruises and contusions and was treated at a nearby physician's office. The automobile, driven by C. J. Billante, of 201 Olympia street, overturned in the crash, police said. He and Ralph Gordon, of 340 South Atlantic avenue, operator of the cab, escaped injury.

Rail Saves Trolley And 50 From Plunge

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 7—(AP.)—A single guard rail prevented a trolley car and its 50 passengers from plunging 100 feet off Wyoming avenue bride into Juniata Park after it jumped the tracks.

Women screamed and ran to doorways as the car lumbered along the bridge paving for more than 200 feet before it swerved into the rail. Several persons were treated for shock and one was slightly bruised.

MERCHANTS HIT HOME-MADE WINE BAN

ANTHONY J. CIRAULA DEMONSTRATING THE "JUICINESS" grapes on display at the produce yards.

Produce Men Say Rum Law Will Ruin Business

Pittsburgh produce merchants today were considering an appeal to the Legislature at its special session for a relaxation of the section of the state liquor act which forbids wine making in the home.

Unless steps are taken to legalize home production in the next 10 days, one dealer said, the grape business in Pennsylvania will be ruined with a consequent demoralization of the entire national market. He declared:

"We're bringing in no carloads of grapes until we are assured that we will not be left holding the bag through state interference with our sales."

Deals between grape shippers and produce men would ordinarily be at their peak now, he asserted, but fear of strict enforcement of the law has left the local market stagnant. The same situation, he said, prevails throughout the state.

Philip W. Gundelfinger, district superintendent of the State Liquor Board, has voiced hope that the section of the law prohibiting home wine making will be amended at the special session. He asserted:

"If it's not amended it will provoke a lot of animosity toward the state liquor law. I've appealed to Harrisburg, but as yet I know of no action that has been taken. But I'd certainly like to see it amended."

LABATT FACES NEW THREAT

International News Service.

LONDON, Ont., Sept. 7.—In open defiance of the mobilized strength of Canadian law enforcement services, John Labatt's abductors have struck again.

Over the signature of "Three-Fingered Abe," who signed the original ransom demand, they have sent a second and third letter to Labatt at London. They charge that he has broken his "solemn promise and made over a meal" to pay $25,000 after his release, demand fulfillment of the pledge, and in their third message threaten that if he fails he will "get a belly full of lead."

Receipt of the letters has spurred police to intensify their efforts in both Ontario and Michigan.

Scraps of information gathered from a variety of sources furnish a mosaic amounting to John Labatt's own story of the amazing crime. Standing out is the probability that the Labatts have paid no ransom money but that the release at Toronto was arranged on a promise to hand over $25,000, half in American and half in Canadian money at a Toronto hotel on the day following the reappearance of the kidnaped brewer.

Louis McCaughey, of London, sales manager for the Labatt company, was agreed upon as the contact man. Police surveillance prevented consummation of the scheme, though it is said that McCaughey talked to the kidnapers by telephone.

Girl Teacher Robbed Of $1,352 Back Pay

CHICAGO, Sept. 7.—(AP.)—Miss Edna Hotchkiss, Chicago High School art teacher, was "in the money" for only a few minutes after cashing a check for $1,352, her back salary for seven months.

300 POISONED IN VET HOME

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Sept. 7.—(AP.)—Three hundred and fifty war veterans residing at the National Military Home today were ill with ptomain poisoning. They were stricken last night. Fifty of the men were reported suffering from severe cases of poisoning.

Col. James S. Mattison, chief medical officer at the home, called to duty every available orderly, nurse and physician to aid those already on duty in caring for the ill veterans.

Approximately 2,000 veterans had eaten in the dining halls at noon when a meal of boiled ham, canned corn, fresh tomatoes, mashed fresh turnips, gelatin, coffee and fresh milk was served.

$600,000 AUTO BRINGS $60 AS JUNK

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Sept. 7.—(AP.)—A junkman to whom an old automobile is just so much scrap metal has in his yard today a car that cost $600,000.

He bought it the other day for $60.

Had the car been officially christened, it would have been called the Hughes Steamer. Its construction was financed by Howard Hughes, youthful Texas millionaire, who came here to produce motion pictures several years ago.

Hughes hired two young engineers who had specialized in steam problems at the California Institute of Technology and gave them carte blanche. Bruce Burns and Howard Lewis secretly began their experiments in 1925, working until 1930 with an average staff of 45 men.

They took two old steam cars apart to discover why neither had become a permanent success. And then they proceeded to build a car.

Hughes' fabulous income, from a Texas oil tool company, dropped soon after the stock market crash of '29. The experiments on the Hughes steamer were ordered ended. The several patents are considered valuable and, it was admitted today by Noah Dietrich, who represents Hughes here, that two steam car companies are interested in them.

E. M. BIGELOW'S WIDOW DIES IN WEST

Mrs. Edward M. Bigelow, widow of the man who was known as the father of Pittsburgh parks and long a power in city politics, is dead at her home in Hollywood, Cal.

She died yesterday, according to word received by relatives here. Information was lacking as to whether the body would be brought here for burial in the Bigelow mausoleum in Homewood Cemetery.

A native Pittsburgher, Mrs. Bigelow before her marriage was Mary Peabody, daughter of Dr. Benjamin H. Peabody, of a pioneer family for whom the Peabody High School was named.

She went to Hollywood several years after the death of her husband in 1916 and had since resided there.

The Bigelows had no children. Their only survivors are two nieces and a nephew, Mrs. Clarence Dornberger, of 207 North Craig street; Mrs. J. C. Read, of Los Angeles, and George L. Peabody, Jr., of Philadelphia, formerly of this city.

She also leaves two sisters-in-law, Mrs. George L. Peabody, Sr., now ill in Philadelphia, and Miss Mary L. Bigelow, of the Kenmawr Hotel.

The ousting of Mr. Bigelow as director of the Department of Public Works at the turn of the century caused one of the biggest political upheavals in the history of Pittsburgh.

A builder of boulevards and bridges, his foremost achievement was acquisition of Schenley and Highland parks. Bigelow boulevard bears his name.

Tardy Burglar Alarm Reveals Robbed Safe

Responding to a burglar alarm sounded in a downtown protective agency and at the Detective Bureau, officers found the combination of the safe in the Lightning Package Express Company, Duquesne way, had been knocked off and $425 taken.

Police believe the robbers hid in the building during the afternoon, and set off the alarm as they made exit.

Retail Coal Code Tiff Hot Cinder For NRA

Mr. Mallon

WASHINGTON, Sept. 7.—The story behind the wholesale resignation of the retail coal code authority is a tale flaming with red-hot NRA clinkers.

The authority and its 49 children are supported by the national retail dealers. That is, salaries and expenses of the code authority here and of the sub-authorities in each of the 48 states and the District of Columbia are contributed by the coal men themselves.

No one would cry about that, except that the main job for the sub-authorities appears to have been the fixing of prices for their respective states. You can readily see what an inferno can be smoked up when the coal men pay the salaries of the boys who fix the prices for them.

Not only that, but $30,000 (count up how much that is) of the contribution went to a Philadelphia lawyer as a fee for legal advice to the code authority. And NRA insiders say the lawyer is one who disbelieves in the NRA and thinks it is unconstitutional.

HOOVER

There has been a lot of inside talk around here lately that Mr. Hoover will work a line into his "Challenge to Liberty" saying he does not choose to run in 1936.

Friends who have seen the manuscript swear there is nothing like that in it. They do not believe anything so definite could have been inserted by the ex-President after they saw the manuscript, although they are not sure.

They argue convincingly that Mr. Hoover could not make such a statement for two very good reasons—politeness and politics. It would certainly be impolite, if not indiscreet, for him to assume he is in line for the next Republican nomination. Also, anyone who knows anything about politics will never again repeat the mistake of Teddy Roosevelt by handcuffing himself too far in advance.

GAIETY

Those who have recently called at the Hoover home say he is no longer the hermit of Stanford. He always has guests at luncheon and dinner, and there are usually house guests around. His calling list is formidable and his correspondence heavy.

DWELLING FIRED BY SINGED CAT

LEPSENY, Hungary, Sept. 7.—(AP.)—Mrs. Mihaly Kantor's big white angora cat crept into the Kantors' clay oven, seeking relief from the heat.

Mrs. Kantor decided to do some baking and lighted the fire under the oven.

Hearing whines of distress, she opened the oven door. A feline fire-ball, her white fuzz blazing, raced madly through the house igniting draperies in her flight.

Minutes later the house was in ashes, the cat dead and Mrs. Kantor had narrowly escaped cremation.

MIDOL

"Frankly, I didn't believe the ads about Midol, or even friends who used it. My own periodic pain had always been so severe, it didn't seem possible that anything could help. Until one day the nurse in a store where I had succumbed completely, gave me a Midol tablet. Ten minutes later I had resumed my shopping—and was forever cured of my scepticism!"

Grateful endorsement similar to this is frequent. Many women who now go through this trying time in comfort regret the years they ignored or doubted the definite relief to be had from Midol. It acts immediately, and is effective several hours so two tablets should see you through your worst day.

Don't be afraid of the speed with which Midol takes hold; it is not a narcotic. Midol is as harmless as the aspirin you take for an ordinary headache. All drug-stores have these tablets; just ask for Midol—today, so you'll be prepared.

CITY TO PROBE FURTHER INTO APPRAISAL FEES

NEW YORK Day by Day

By O. O. M'INTYRE

NEW YORK, Sept. 7.—Thoughts while strolling: Outside of hating everybody with $2, just what is the Brain Trust doing? About the most finished act in vaudeville: Buck and Bubbles. A magnificent art to get up and just fool. King George looks so bewildered in the news reels lately.

One word description of Charles Laughton—loppy. In London they say the Joe Schenck engagement rumor was a publicity gag for a Fairbanks film. Baseball is biggest of all stealers of free newspaper space. Gladys Swarthout sings divinely over the radio these days.

H. B. Warner and Leslie Howard look alike on the screen. A movie magazine says Ned Sparks is a ringer for me. The only resemblance is a dark brindle look. James Dooling suggests Dashiel Hammet's thin man in real life. Some screen stars posted for theatrical club dues in New York would surprise you.

Few New Yorkers discover Brooklyn's Prospect Park. Scarcely anyone recognizes Harold Lloyd along the street without those glasses. Never yet have I seen a Scot beggar. About time for Al Jolson's big belted canary yellow overcoat. And Ewing Galloway's coon-skin cap.

Howard Chandler Christy and his battered briar. He came out of a yonder part of Ohio, too. Grand news that Mickey Neilan is making such a directing comeback in Hollywood. I've never yet tried to help one of those crumbling drunks without being abused. Whatever became of Wall street?

* * *

I have been watching a novel experiment at a fly-blown little stationery shop I occasionally patronize off Lexington avenue. The proprietor's son is a window dresser, laid off by an avenue store, and in the interim of becoming a "Little Man, what now!" has been perking up the two windows and otherwise sprucing up the place. From a few straggly customers there is now a fairly stream of trade. A clerk has been added and the son with his new mode of expression has no desire for another job. Rather does he expect a partnership with his parent.

Reefer parties in Harlem are drawing many white slummers, including thrill-seeking maidens who should know better. Two debutantes of a not so long ago vintage are reputed victims. The reefer is a cigaret providing a sort of cock-eyed hasheesh exuberance and is peddled in the cabarets and cellars at 25 cents each. The spread of reefers is one of the growing narcotic problems in the metropolitan area. They are especially indulged by orchestra musicians and those who work long, confining hours. A few puffs, fatigue vanishes and the world takes on a sudden roseate hoop-la. The inevitable and depressing letdown is terrific. Headache, nasea and the jitters.

Paul Whiteman once told me there was scarcely a jazz orchestra without a reefer addict. Under the influence, ordinary claptrap music becomes divinely beautiful and the casual musician rolls his eyes, sways and seems to himself to be the greatest musician in the world.

* * *

For several months I was unknowingly the desk mate of a drug addict. He was, contrary to a general theory, meticulous in dress and speech and never joined the boys at Doc Perry's. We used to rag him for not rolling up his sleeves. Instead he edited copy sleeves down and with well-laundered cuffs. During the Big Tom explosion in Jersey he and I were delegated to a night shift, a tedious lobster trick. In the wash room I came suddenly upon him heating a spoon over a gas jet. A rolled-up sleeve revealed an arm of fiery red dots. It was one of life's embarrassing moments. He never mentioned it, nor, of course, did I. Several weeks later he failed to show up and we never saw him again. He was the only journalistic addict I ever ran across in years of migratory newspapering.

Ethel Merman is the epitome of every stenographer's dream. As Ethel Zimmerman she was a typewriter pounder in a Long Island city office when a booking agent heard her sing one night at a private party. He booked her into an obscure and dim-lit Russian restaurant in 57th street, where she appeared for $3 a night, holding on to her regular job. It was there Al Siegal, the pianist, found and launched her upon the subsequent road to fame as a caroler of blues.

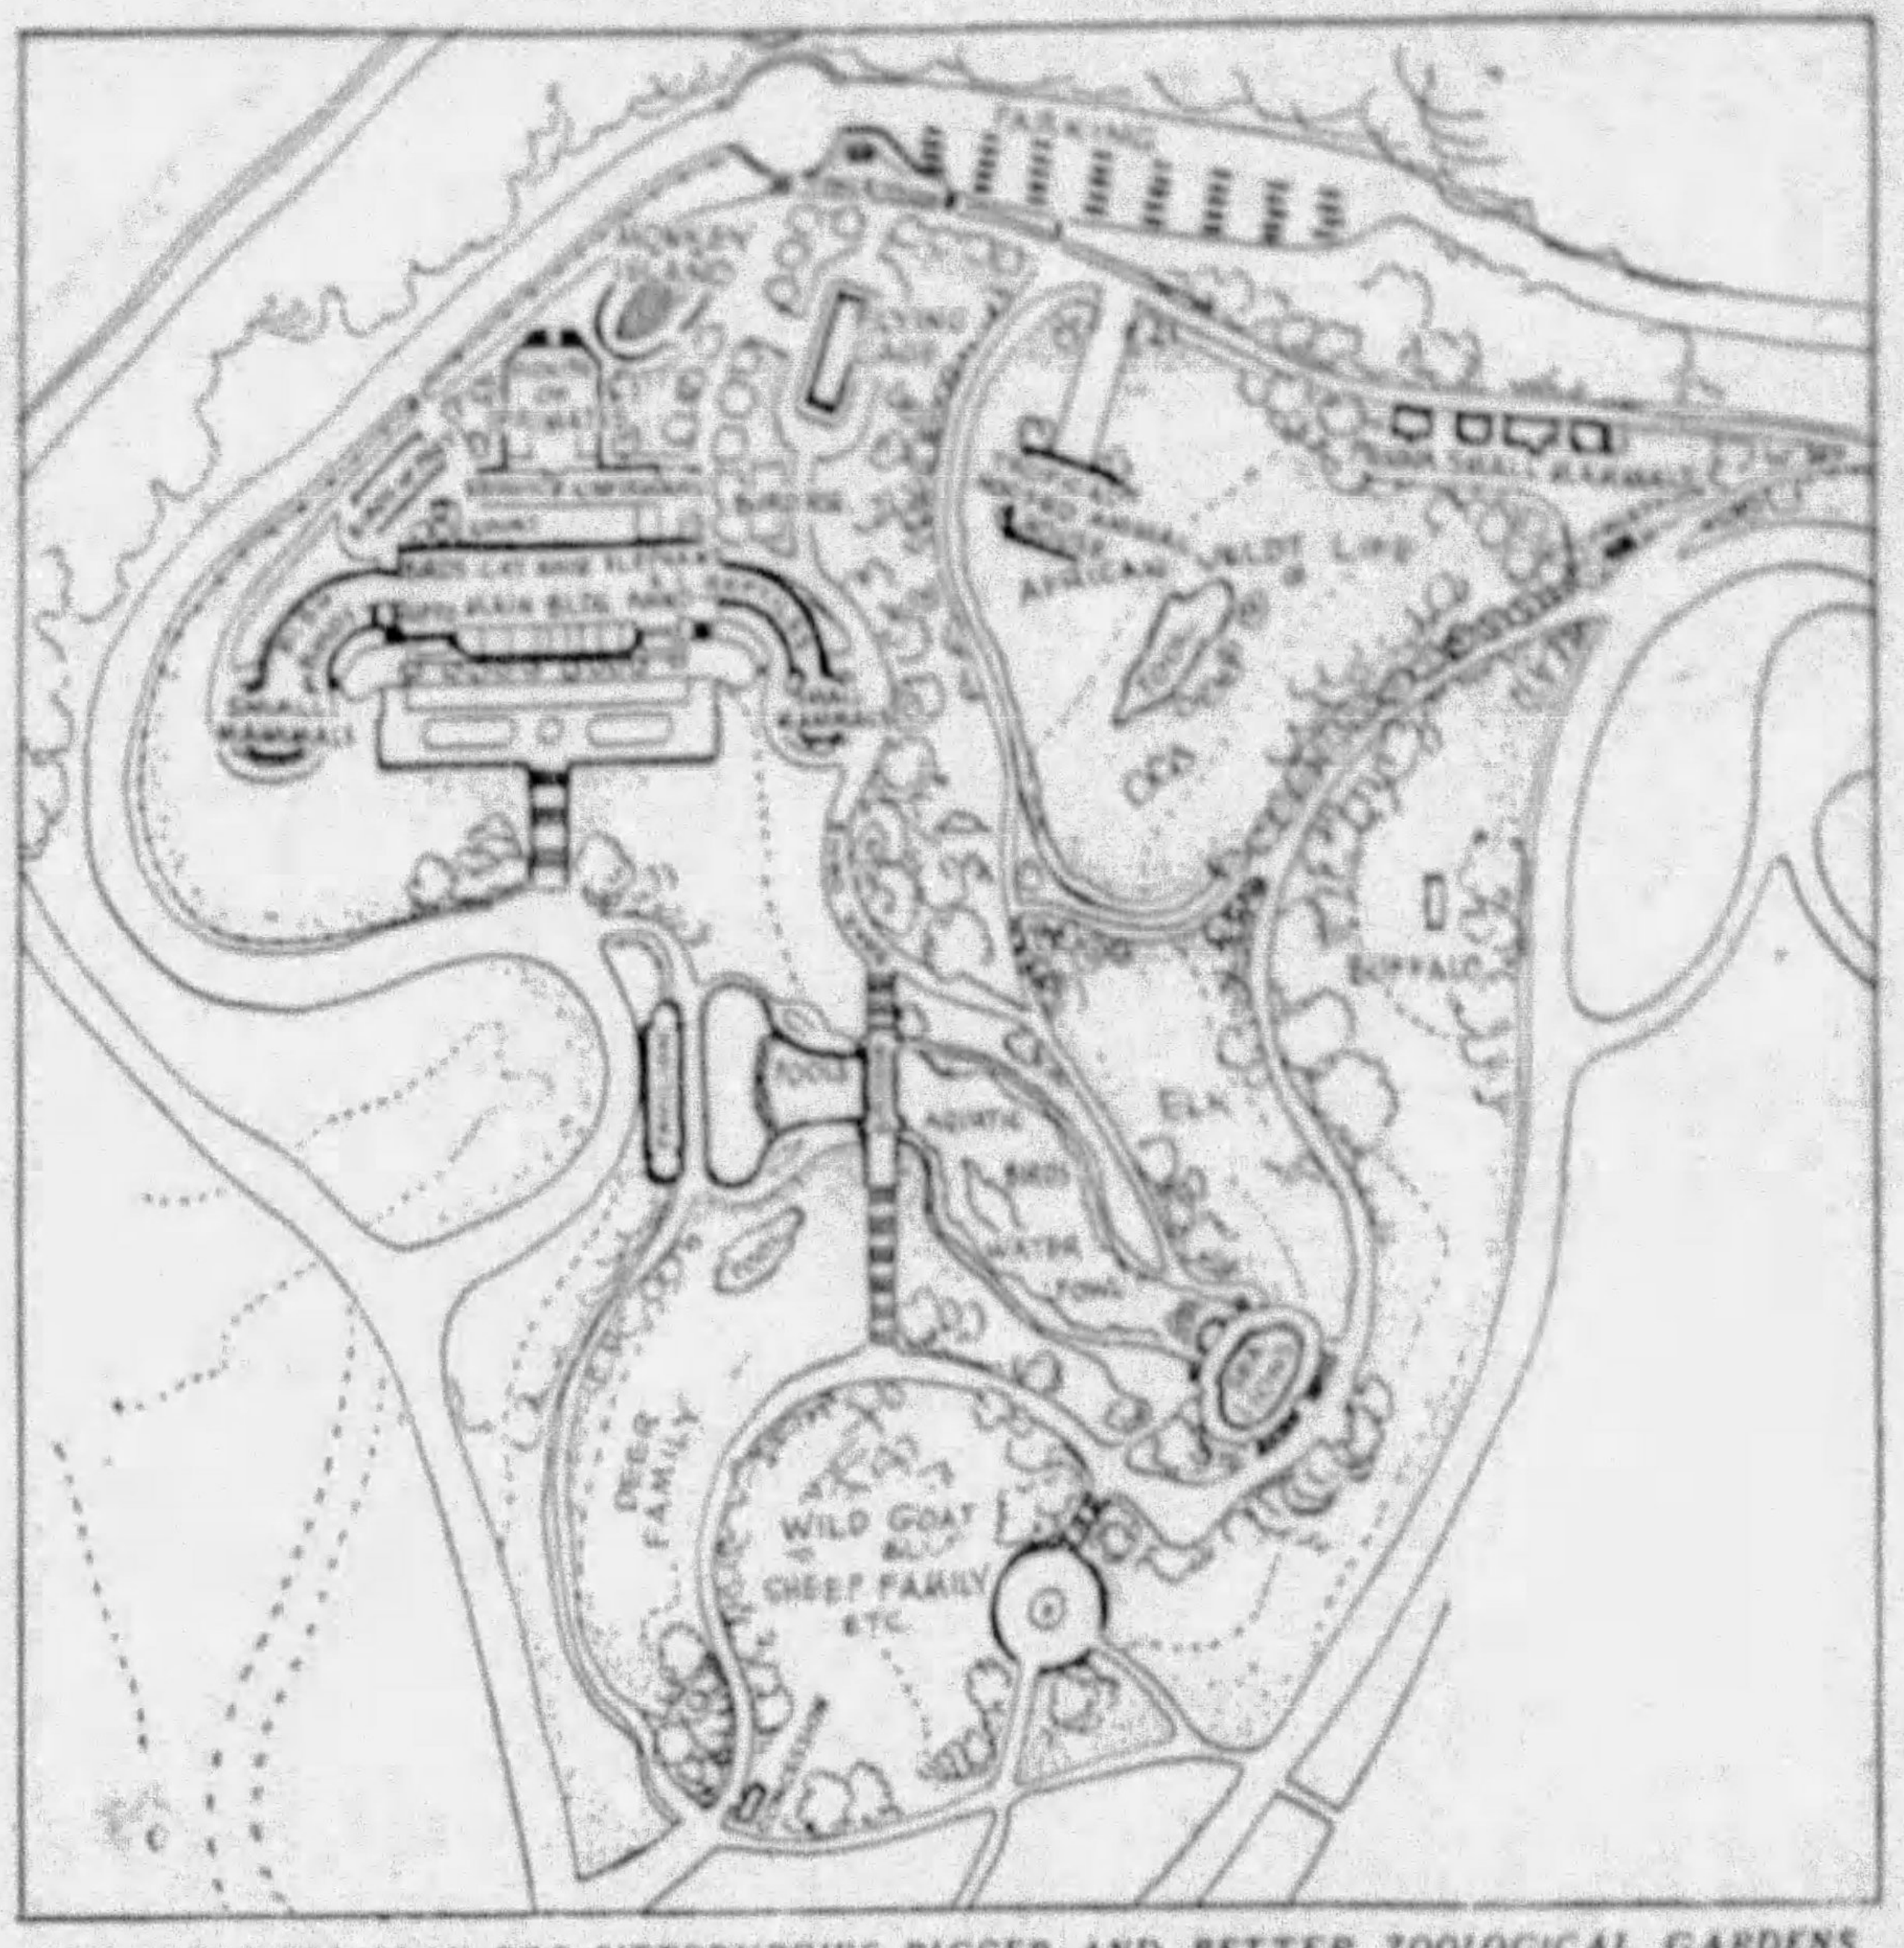
'Monkey Isle,' Mimic Mountain Planned for Bigger, Better Zoo



THE PROPOSED PLAN FOR PITTSBURGH'S BIGGER AND BETTER ZOOLOGICAL GARDENS

Commission Urges $114,000 Outlay Now To Save Animals Already on Hand; Private Gifts to Augment City Funds

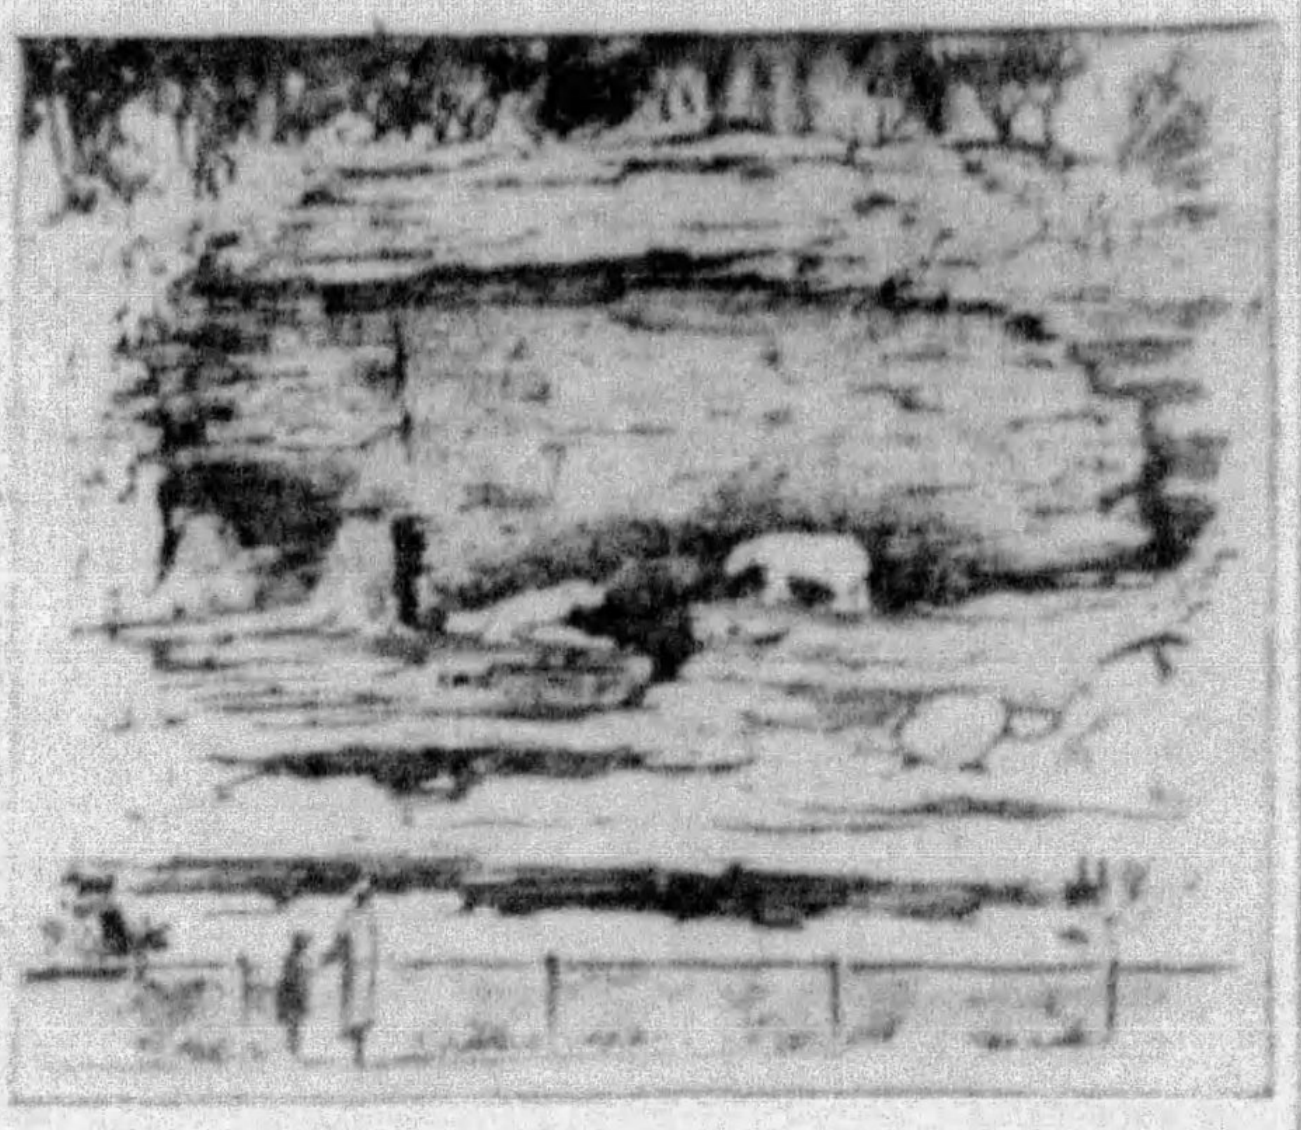
SKETCH OF THE PROPOSED 'CAT' CAGE

In the hands of Council is a report from the Zoological Commission, nine civic-minded men interested in animals, who have studied the present quarters and the zoos of other cities.

The report asks Council to permit $114,000 from bonds already voted to be used for repairs and construction to save the lives of the animals already in the Highland Park institution.

But it also asks a long-range plan, which, in the course of years, would provide:



SKETCH OF THE PROPOSED BEAR CAGE

An island to be known as Monkeys' Isle, with water surrounding it, so that the monks cannot escape.

Artificial hills and mountainsides for bear, deer, lions, tigers and other wild carnivorous beasts.

But the Zoological Commission hopes Council will permit the spending of the $114,000 for repairs and reconstruction now.

If it will, a permanent zoological society will be organized and funds solicited from wealthy citizens to buy additional animals, and efforts made to have the zoo endowed.

Some Councilmen are believed to be in favor of this expenditure, pointing out that 60 per cent of the money would be expended for labor.

Others are known to feel that the zoo should be maintained for the children and adults, but feel a nominal fee—enough to pay the $35,000 a year upkeep and to liquidate the additional expense—should be charged.

The commission pointed out that the present plan would increase the upkeep less than $2,000 a year, and if the long-range program is completed the upkeep would be about $60,000 a year.

Trade Revival Seen In Market House Plan

Charles Wolff, North Side businessman, predicted a general trade revival with improvements to the North Side Market House at a meeting of the North Side Chamber of Commerce in Boggs & Buhl's.

He said the opening of new stores and the contemplated work on the market house would bring more shoppers into the district.

HIPPER-DIPPER TEACH PROFS

After holding ox-roasts for more than 20 years, the Hipper-Dipper Club should know how the trick is done.

And that is why two professors and two cooks from Slippery Rock College slipped down to Daniel's farm yesterday to mingle with the politicians gathered there and find out from Harry Dipple the proper method of turning an ox into a dish fit for a ward chairman.

Mr. Dipple, who was chairman of the outing, told them and today they are laying plans for an ox-roast of their own October 13 when the teacher's college celebrates Homecoming Day.

The visitors were Prof. George Miller, Prof. Clay C. Ruff, Joseph Glaspey, college steward, and George Boozel, chef.

Though many of the usual attendants failed to appear for the festivities, the political ball was kicked around with gusto by the crowd that assembled in Mr. Daniel's back yard.

Suspect Captured As Counterfeiter

Wanted on a counterfeiting charge by Pittsburgh agents of the Secret Service, Thomas Martino, alias Thomas Movarro, of West End, has been arrested in New York, according to W. A. Landvoitt, chief of the local office.

Martino eluded the agents August 3, when they arrested three others for conspiring to pass counterfeit $10 Federal Reserve notes, Landvoitt said.

LIQUOR SELLING AT LEECH FARM CHARGED

Council Waits Return Of Dr. Moyer Before Ordering Probe

Charges of drunkenness, thievery and mismanagement among the staff at the city tuberculosis hospital at Leech Farm, made by Mrs. Helen Ehrenfeld, are to be taken up by City Council with Health Director Ray P. Moyer.

Dr. Joseph Shilen, superintendent at the Farm, denied accusations made yesterday before Council by Mrs. Ehrenfeld. He charged her with making "wild statements." He said:

Among numerous charges brought by Mrs. Ehrenfeld were that orderlies at Leech Farm had been drinking, that a laundry boss sold liquor to patients and that Dr. Shilen's brother, a bus driver, had been intoxicated.

She was told by Council to put her charges in definite form and present them after Dr. Moyer returns from California.

Two physicians, Dr. Brown Fulton and Dr. Ralph Harrison, who served with Mrs. Ehrenfeld on an investigating committee at Leech Farm, recently told Council that the accusations were not sustained.

On questioning by Councilman William A. Magee it developed that Mrs. Ehrenfeld had a brother who has been discharged from three city hospitals, including Leech Farm.

She denied that his dismissal had any influence on her charges and declared she wished to help the patients.

Radical-Labor Men Speak Here Sunday

Four leaders of the radical labor movement in the United States are to address an open meeting of the American Workers' party Sunday night at 43 Fernando street. Each is to discuss the economic aspects of the radical movement and their relationship to strikes and the NRA.

The speakers will be A. J. Muste, chairman of the party; Sam Pollock, leader of the recent strikes in Toledo; J. B. S. Hardman, labor editor, and Sidney Hook, author of books dealing with radicalism.

Did You See What the Dollar Did to the Franc?

By ARTHUR (BUGS) BAER

Ross and McLarnin are all right, but did you see what the dollar did to the franc?

The Treasury restored international confidence by buying plenty of American money in the market. That's what we would call eating your own cooking.

While the franc squirmed under the pressure, the English pound acquired sympathetic depressions. It's just like shooting a gun in a barnyard. If you miss the crow you get a hen.

The idea of the whole thing is to make gold flow back into the United States. All we've been getting lately on the incoming tide is seaweed.

We have plenty of gold now. But there's always room for another dainty bit of lace in the hope chest.

Flagg Secretly Married In Hotel Romance Sequel

Ritzy Clubs' Manager And Bride Now On Honeymoon

While friends in Pittsburgh pondered on a probable pending wedding date, Gordon Flagg, business manager of the Duquesne Club and the Mellons' Rolling Rock Club, and his bride today were learned to be honeymooning in the East after a secret ceremony in Greensburg.

Mr. Flagg

Westmoreland County marriage license records reveal that Flagg and Miss Urben obtained a license August 21. The record further shows they were married by the Rev. Linus Brugger at the rectory of the Church of the Most Holy Sacrament, Greensburg, August 27. Miss Urben's age was given as 30, Flagg's as 33. He gave his home city as Hartford, Conn., though he listed his occupation as business manager of the Duquesne Club.

The secret wedding was the climax of a romance started when both were on the executive staff of the Hotel William Penn. Flagg joined the hotel staff more than 12 years ago, earning continual promotions from key clerk to executive assistant manager. He left the latter post to assume the club duties.

Miss Urben had been secretary to the managing director several years. She occupied this position until the recent resignation of F. L. Andrews.

That the wedding was in the offing was no secret to the couple's friends. But neither would reveal plans. Absence from the city aroused suspicions and led to disclosure of their whereabouts together in the East.

MARY ELIZABETH URBEN

The passenger list of the Furness liner Queen of Bermuda indicated that Flagg and his bride sailed for Bermuda August 30.

HUSBAND GONE; WIFE SUES

Her husband refused to keep a dinner engagement at a Christmas party, walked out of the home and did not return, Margaret B. Cline, 5610 Northumberland street, testified in her divorce action against Stuart C. Cline.

Divorce suits were filed by Edgar Sarver against Rose Sarver, Louis Bush against Lillie Bush, Bessie L. Sutler against Matthew Sutler and by Selma G. Edgington against John Edgington.

Divorces were granted to Ada L. Perry from Herbert D. Perry and to Ralph D. Young from May C. Young.

Cathedral Service Has Been Postponed

A service planned in the Scottish room of the Cathedral of Learning for next Sunday has been indefinitely postponed, Dr. John B. Sutherland, chairman of the Scots' committee announced today. The new date for the service will be announced later. Postponement was made necessary, it was announced, because of lack of facilities for the crowds that planned to be there and the inability of a number of members of the committee to attend.

OPEN BIDS FOR INCINERATORS

The contracts for the new city incinerators will probably be awarded to the low bidder, the De Carie Corporation and the Underpinning and Foundation Company of New York, bidding together.

The award will be made, it is reported, subject to the granting of a permit for the incinerators by the County Commissioners. They are to be constructed at Chateau and Reedsdale streets, North Side, and Brilliant pumping station, East End.

The De Carie Corporation's bid for the construction of both plants was $634,440, substantially less than the cost estimated by city engineers. A slightly lower bid was put in by the same company, but for a design of incinerator the city will not use.

There were four other bidders, the Pittsburgh Des Moines Steel Company, the Hiler Engineering Company and Koppers Construction Company bidding together, W. F. Trimble & Sons and Bartlett and Shaw, of Cleveland.

Three Named Aides To Solicitor Bonsall

City Solicitor Ward Bonsall has made three new appointments in the Law Department. He named William D. Grimes an assistant at $4,170 a year. Grimes will do trial work. Miss Anne X. Alpern and James F. McNaul have been appointed assistants at $2,500 a year each. McNaul is said to specialize in real estate law.

BROWNBRANDED 'PIRATE' BY O'TOOLE

Direct Information In Matter Awaits M'Nair Return

With West S. Brown, real estate witness, termed a "pirate" and accused of cheating the city by former Assistant City Solicitor James L. O'Toole, Jr., a further investigation by City Council into real estate appraisal fees appears certain.

Former City Solicitor Cornelius D. Scully told Council yesterday that he could see no reason for the reappraisals for which Brown has billed the city $1,750 except that it was done as "a favor to someone."

REASON MYSTERY

Why they were ordered has not yet been discovered, and Council will have to wait until the Mayor returns from Europe before they can get direct information on the subject.

Brown did not attend the hearing yesterday.

O'Toole, who resigned after Scully had been forced to resign by the Mayor, left no doubt that Brown had not been welcome about the Law Department during the Scully administration. He said:

"I discussed the matter of Mr. Brown's appointment with Mr. Scully and we did not recognize that Mr. Brown had experience to qualify him to act in matters of this kind. One thing we agreed upon was that Mr. Brown should not touch these cases. From my experience, he is a pirate. He is notorious for his unreliability in real estate matters and especially city matters. I conferred with Mr. Scully and we agreed since the first of the year that inasmuch as there was unmistakable evidence that Mr. Brown has cheated the city that at the first opportunity we would dispense with his services. This we did."

FOUR PRAISED

O'Toole paid tribute to the ability of the four men who made the first appraisals, Nat Cantor, George Schmidt, Leo J. Coyle and Harry Kaufman.

Checks for their work were approved yesterday by Deputy Mayor Leslie M. Johnston. Mayor McNair had refused to sign them before departing.

Councilman William A. Magee expressed an interest in the motives for ordering a reappraisal by Brown, and Councilman John J. Kane asked why such haste was shown in getting the reappraisal.

Controller James P. Kerr brought up another warrant for Brown in payment for a bill for "preparing to testify" about a property on Owendale street and asked O'Toole if it were true that Brown had not been asked to testify in the case.

O'Toole replied:

"It's absolutely true. I'll say more than that. At the time that case was tried, Brown had two other cases for plaintiffs against other municipalities. He sat in the courtroom at the time of the trial and put in a bill. I refused to pay it. After I left the department, he resubmitted it."

Tiny Pittsburgh Artist Gets Cup At Chicago

Betty Jane Lee, 8-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. P. E. Lee, 421 Rochelle street, Knoxville, in a contest at Chicago, carried off honors for Pennsylvania from under the noses, or rather the toes, of youthful tap dancers from all over he United States.

A student of the William Pillich Dance Studio, 204 Seventh avenue, Betty Jane competed with 135 children in her age group, from 6 to 12 years, at a nation-wide competition sponsored by the Chicago Association of Dancing Masters. She was the only representative from Pennsylvania.

As winner of a cup, Betty Lee was scheduled to dance at the Century of Progress Exposition, but she had to get back to school. She is in grade 3-A at Rochelle School, in Knoxville, and wants to be a dancing teacher or a school teacher when she grows up, her mother said. She had been studying dancing since she was 4 years old and has danced in local theaters.

JACKIE CARTER MASSEY, 7

In his best Billy Sunday manner, 7-year-old Jackie Carter Massey, mental marvel, will beat Old Man Devil all over Wheeling, W. Va., tonight.

Jackie, never a boy to stand aside when feats of memory are called for, will open a series of lectures tonight in the Rev. Lewis Lehman's tabernacle in Wheeling.

Jackie's quite a boy. He has shown college professors, church dignitaries and others that he can reel off big sections of the Bible, name the capitals of states and give many long speeches. He recently impressed the Rev. James R. Cox with his knowledge of the Bible.

Pastor for 50 Years Dies in Beaverdale

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., Sept. 7.—(AP.)—The Rev. J. I. L. Ressler, 79, pastor in the Allegheny Conference of the United Brethren Church for 50 years, died at his home in Beaverdale.

SECOND POSTPONEMENT OF ROSS-M'LARNIN GO LOOMS

James J. Long's Sports Comment

THE BELATED SPURT of the Pirates, in which they have equaled their longest streak of the season and have won more games in a row than at any previous time since the first week in June, serves to show what might have been accomplished if some of the same spirit had been shown earlier by the September hustlers. Ralph Birkofer did not pitch a complete game and never went as far as six innings from June 6 to September 2, or practically three months. Within five days this week he went the route twice and allowed only three runs and 13 hits in two full games. Bill Swift, who has won three of his last four games, previously lasted the distance only four times in 13 straight starts in two months.

Ralph Birkofer

It is not only in the pitching department that a sudden change of form and spirit is evident. Some other players appear to be taking a new interest in their work all at once. If they can play that kind of ball in September they could have played it during July and August, when it would have counted for something. Is it possible that it took thoughts of next year's contracts to energize some of the boys and that they have 1935 in mind more than 1934?

Rowe Makes Stiles Spin

THE VALUE OF Schoolboy Rowe to the Detroit Club is not confined to what he does on the field. As a boxoffice magnet, he makes the turnstiles click at a rate not approached by any individual player since the heyday of Babe Ruth. More than 120,000 persons paid to get into the Yankee Stadium on the two doubleheader days when Rowe was announced as the Tiger pitcher, while only 8,000 attended on the day on which Schoolboy did not appear.

Boston saw a new week-day attendance record set on the day Rowe hurled against the Red Sox. The largest crowd of Washington's season saw him defeat the Senators, and he drew for the A's their largest attendance since 1931. It is estimated that during the Tigers' recent Western tour, 200,000 paid to see Rowe pitch.

Tigers Never in Cellar

EVERY OTHER CLUB in the two big leagues, with the exception of the Browns, has captured one or more pennants since Detroit last won a flag in 1919. But while trailing the pack at pennant-winning, Frank Navin's club holds a distinction enjoyed by no other in either circuit. It's the only one in the majors, as now constituted, that never has finished in last place. Having the services of a guy named Ty Cobb for 21 seasons was a helpful factor in escaping the eighth hole.

Three Brothers in Line

COLLEGE FOOTBALL HAS seen several teams that included a pair of brothers, but the University of Redlands now steps out with three brothers on its grid roster. They are the Garlinghouse boys—Ben and Jennings, twins, and Woodrow, a year older.

And the entire trio may play in the line. An obstacle at present is that all three play guard, and there's room for only two at those positions, but it is planned to shift one of them to tackle.

Golfers May Be Fooled

THOSE WHO KNOW the golf layout at The Country Club in Brookline, Mass., where the National amateur will be played next week, predict the course will prove a fooler to those who have complained that it looks too easy, and also too short to give the long hitters a break. Real golf will be required to score in the low 70's is the forecast.

Johnny Goodman

The idea that distance is essential to give the long hitters a chance doesn't always hold good. North Shore, scene of the National Open last year, is a long course supposedly well adapted to the strong-back contenders, yet it was Johnny Goodman, one of the shortest hitters in the field, who won the title. On the other hand, Merion, where this year's Open was played, is not very long and is supposed to favor the short hitters, but Olin Dutra and Gene Sarazen, two of the long-distance specialists, finished first and second.

LOCAL SOFTBALL CHAMPS DRILL IN CHICAGO

By PHIL GRABOWSKI
Staff Correspondent

CHICAGO, Sept. 7.—The East Liberty Shamrocks, of Pittsburgh, drew the Puritans, of Kansas City as opposition in the first round of the national softball championship series being conducted by the Chicago American under the auspices of the National Softball Association of America here.

Nine games will be played simultaneously at spacious Lincoln Park tomorrow afternoon. The games will begin at 12:45 o'clock, Chicago time.

A Pittsburgh district representative, the Cannonballs, of Parkersburg, W. Va., are scheduled to meeting the Washington (D. C.) Heralds in the opening round.

1933 CHAMPS BACK

The J. L. Friedmans, of Chicago, who won the National toga last year, automatically qualified for this year's tourney, although they failed to place in the city eliminations.

The second and third rounds will be disposed of Sunday, with the remaining rounds listed for Monday morning and afternoon.

Two workouts are on the program for today. The Pittsburgh champions will indulge in the first practice session this morning and in another his afternoon on the Wallace High School field. Batting and fielding are on the program.

Softball Slants

The Langford boys, Harry and Chester, and Howard Aikinson who play in the outfield, entertained the Shamrock squad with their pleasant yodeling on the train yesterday.

The entire squad is in good shape. Anthony (Bullet) Oakin, scheduled to pitch the opener, is in excellent condition for the inaugural contest.

TWO PIRATES ON BABE'S TEAM

Babe Ruth has selected two members of the Pirates for his annual All-America baseball team of the major leagues.

Who are they?

EXPLANATION OF RIPLEY'S CARTOON OF YESTERDAY: FIFTY BILLION—Between 1918 and 1923, Germany effected the debasement of her currency known as the German inflation. By November 1923, this debasement had reached such proportions that 1,000,000,000,000 marks was worth only 24 cents in American money. A memento of those days is the postage stamp in my cartoon having a face value of 50,000,000,000 marks. At the old parity this single postage stamp would have sufficed to pay the Allied debts to the United States (the principal of which amounts to $9,850,149,802.95). The single stamp also exceeds the total of all cash (gold) held by the banks and treasuries of 49 countries constituting the civilized world. (The total so held is (in round figures) $11,936,000,000, based on the old gold parity of $20.67 per ounce troy).

MORGAN KEEPS SOCCER POST

By TOM BIRKS

Mike Morgan, veteran player and representative of the Hills Station Soccer Club was re-elected president of the Panhandle Soccer League at a special meeting of the circuit held in the Italian Turner Hall, Bridgeville, last night. Dave Hastings, of Penown, was elected secretary. Twenty-four clubs were represented at the session.

Sturgeon and Cuddy were the only doubtful teams to attend the session. Both are considering applying for membership in the Keystone League. Final business of the organization will be completed at a meeting set for next Wednesday night.

The Keystone League will hold a meeting this evening at Popi's Hotel, Bridgeville. It is likely that the circuit will be closed at this session.

Pirates on Edge For First Tilt

MT. PLEASANT, Pa., Sept. 7.—In fine physical trim with the exception of Johnny McNally, who is recovering from an operation in Pittsburgh, the Pittsburgh Pirates of the National Professional Football League, are on edge for their inaugural tussle of the league season with the Cincinnati Reds Sunday at Forbes Field, Pittsburgh.

With McNally out of action, the quarterback post will be filled either by Warren Heller, Alex Raddo or Harp Vaughan. Indications yesterday pointed to the latter getting the call. If Vaughan starts, Heller and Raddo will alternate at the left halfback position, with George Kavel at right and Zaninelli at full.

Klaus, Chip at Bout

Two Former Champions to See Yarosz Make Bid for Title

When Teddy Yarosz makes his bid for the middleweight championship of the world against Vince Dundee at Forbes Field next Tuesday night the two survivors of the triumvirate of Western Pennsylvania boxers who formerly held that title will be ringside spectators.

They are Frank Klaus, of Braddock, and George Chip, of New Castle. The other one, Harry Greb, is dead.

Klaus won the title in an elimination series after the death of the great Stanley Ketchel, who, by the way, is Yarosz' ring idol, having been Polish like himself. He lost it to Chip on a knockout. From Chip the crown passed on to Al McCoy, and from him to Mike O'Dowd, who was beaten by Johnny Wilson, who lost to Greb. Greb lost to Tiger Flowers, who lost to Mickey Walker, who resigned the championship to enter the light-heavyweight and heavyweight divisions. Ben Jeby, of New York, was the winner of an elimination series to determine a new champion. He lost to Lou Brouillard and the latter was beaten by Dundee, the present holder.

Dempsey Referees Bouts at Fairmont

FAIRMONT, W. Va., Sept. 7.—Local boxing fans got a look at Jack Dempsey, former heavyweight champion of the world, in the role of referee here last night and saw Jack Delchrone eke out a close victory over Dick Ambrose in the 10-round main bout.

In other bouts on the card, Mike Barto, of New Kensington, won by a technical knockout over Patsy Gore, of Buffalo, in the second round.

TODAY'S QUESTIONS

How good is your memory of sports events, heroes and dates? Can you answer these questions:

2—For what was Elmer Oliphant famous?

3—Who was Walter Johnson's battery mate with the Washington Club?

4—What famous pitcher was known as "Bullet Joe?"

5—Who were the ends of the famous Pitt football team of 1916, considered the best eleven in the university's history?

DUNDEE WORKS HERE TODAY

TONIGHT'S FIGHTS

Barney Ross vs. Jimmy McLarnin (for world welterweight title), 15 rounds; Davy Day vs. Frankie Cinque, Tommy Romano vs. Kid Frattini, Charley Bedami vs. Al Casimini, and Eddie Flynn vs. Danny Levine, 6 rounds each, and Joe Le Blance vs. Al Zappala, 4 rounds, Long Island City Bowl.

Vince Dundee, the middleweight champion of the world, will stage his first workout here today for his bout in defense of the title with Ted Yarosz at Forbes Field next Tuesday night.

After two delays, Dundee finally arrived this morning upon receiving word from his trainer, Heine Blaustein, that suitable training quarters were available.

The champion drilled at the Pittsburgh Lyceum this afternoon, but beginning tomorrow he will shift his operations to Hickey Park, near the Green Castle Inn, where he will make his headquarters while here.

Blaustein said today he was satisfied that Dundee was in much better condition than when he won the title from Lou Brouillard after losing twice to Yarosz last year and predicted Vince still would be the champion when he leaves the ring at the end of Tuesday's battle.

Between Rounds

SOFTBALL NINES MEET

The Harris Reds will battle the St. Michael's nine in a return softball engagement at Daniel Winters Field, South Side, this evening. Tomorrow the Reds will play the Commercial Garage at the Democratic picnic, South Park. Both teams competed in the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph Western Pennsylvania softball tournament recently completed.

RAIN PROMISED; ODDS FAVORING BARNEY MOUNT

By DAVIS J. WALSH
International News Service.

NEW YORK, Sept. 7.—The weather was none too optimistic today that they'd be able to stage the Barney Ross-Jimmy McLarnin welterweight title fight tonight. The bout was originally scheduled to have been held last night, but was put off for 24 hours because of rain.

If it rains again tonight, the bout will be put off until tomorrow night, instead of Monday, as was at first contemplated.

No sooner was the postponement announced yesterday than a firm of betting commissioners called up to state that the odds of 7 to 5 on Ross had advanced to 9 to 5 because of an inside tip that the champion would get heavier overnight, thus more nearly reaching a parity with McLarnin, who, it seemed, figured to remain at or near the same weight.

ROSS SURPRISES

At the official weighing in yesterday, McLarnin, the real welterweight, did 145¾ pounds, while Ross, the combination lightweight-welterweight champion, came in at 140. They won't be required to weigh again today, so they can do anything, everything or nothing about the weight situation in the meantime.

This was a surprising figure for Ross, since he is supposed to be a legitimate lightweight, who is merely stepping out with the older boys when he plays in the class above. What he could possibly want with more weight overnight and why this would affect the betting is one of life's many mysteries. Ross beat McLarnin out of the title three months ago on speed; he'll need even more this time, because McLarnin figures to be better. Even the physical examination yesterday showed that he had only one round of boxing in 18 months and was down around a worried 143 pounds when he went in there in May.

BARNEY CONFIDENT

Many of the local critics have picked McLarnin, but the money is riding with Ross, influenced, no doubt, by that first victory and the young man's well established ego. Ross, to be exact, is still picking Ross and an awful lot of people have become visibly impressed with this wholly reasonable attitude. Besides, there isn't the slightest doubt that the young man can fight. He had to be good to beat McLarnin, who was by no means bad at the time.

However, the suggestion that the last fight may have been McLarnin's best possible effort still abides. Many feel that the parade has definitely gone by him, which, if true, would simplify the situation to the ageless query, how far is back? You answer that question by answering another, how down is out?

I still like McLarnin.

Local Police Teams Trail in Shoot

CAMP RITCHIE, Md., Sept. 7.—(AP.)—The Pennsylvania State Highway patrol's five-man pistol team yesterday scored its second successive victory in the police team matches, fired on the Camp Ritchie range.

The Pennsylvanians' score, 1,474 out of a possible 1,500, is believed to be one of the best team scores ever made in police team matches.

Second place among the 13 teams entered was won by the West Virginia State Police team, No. 1, which scored 1,466.

The Pittsburgh team No. 1 finished in ninth place with a score of 1,387, and the No. 2 team was thirteenth and last with a mark of 1,294.

Honus Says:

By HONUS WAGNER

To the Sports Editor:

Yesterday I told you how I'd bet my old rubber heels on the Tigers in the American League. Today I am going to wager a second-hand toothpick on the Giants to come through in the National. If anybody says "What a chance that guy takes" let him remember that ball players don't like to do much predicting. But with the Giants' three star pitchers, or I should say four, including Fitzsimmons, pitching great ball, and with Terry, Ott, Moore and Jackson as the power on the offensive, there is not much else to it. So it looks to me like the Giants vs. the Tigers this year.

Honus Wagner

TED PUNISHES SPAR MATES

CONNEAUT LAKE PARK, Pa., Sept. 7.—Ted Yarosz' sparring mates will be mighty glad when their chore of getting the middleweight title contender, who boxes Champion Vince Dundee at Forbes Field, Pittsburgh, next Tuesday night, is finished. Another day such as they put in yesterday and they'll be lucky to be alive.

Teddy, in superb condition, weighing 160 pounds, boxed 12 rounds with General Burrows, Louie Severo, Marty Gornick and Frankie Catanese yesterday. He was punching viciously to the body with right hands and knocked two of his sparring partners through the ropes as they tried Dundee's famous rope tricks.

Yarosz plans to ease up a bit in today's drill and will endeavor to hold his present condition.

MILLERS GET GILL

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., Sept. 7.—(AP.)—Johnny Gill, hard-hitting Chattanooga outfielder, today became the property of the Minneapolis Millers, of the American Association, in the biggest baseball deal of the 1934 Southern Association season. In exchange for the big outfielder the Lookouts get Sid Cohen, a lefthand pitcher, another player whose name was not announced and a cash consideration of $5,000. Joe Shaute, former Brooklyn pitcher, also was obtained from the Scranton Club, of the New York-Pennsylvania League.

CUMMINGS SEEKS TITLE

SYRACUSE, N. Holding a lead of 70 points over Mauri Rose, of Dayton, O., the Indianapolis speed ace can assure himself of the speed crown by winning.

RACES POSTPONED

INDIANAPOLIS, Sept. 7.—(AP.)—Rain yesterday caused cancellation of the Grand Circuit races at the Indiana State Fair. Officials announced that the feature events of the card will be combined with the outstanding races scheduled for today and will be run off this afternoon if the weather permits.

'Dundee a Money Fighter?—Watch Yarosz in This Fight'—Foutts

By HARRY KECK
Sports Editor.

"How about Teddy?"

Ray Foutts, manager of Teddy Yarosz, the Monaca middleweight boxer, who meets Vince Dundee for the world title at Forbes Field next Tuesday night, put the question. He added:

"All I hear and read is about what a great 'money fighter' Dundee is. What about Yarosz? Don't they think he is a money fighter, too?"

He rambled on:

"Just watch Teddy in this fight. With the championship at stake he'll be better than ever before in his life. I know. I'm with him every day. He has beaten Dundee twice and feels he can do it any time. Even granting that Dundee may be 50 per cent better in this fight than he was in the first two, didn't Teddy win away off by himself in those other meetings? And don't you think he can travel even faster and harder if he has to?

WILL BE INSPIRED

"Teddy doesn't always cut loose with everything he has. Against ordinary opponents he is apt to let down. But give him a tough man and he is at his best. The added incentive of having that title to shoot at this time will make him an inspired fighter Tuesday night. Just watch and see.

"He had Dundee on the verge of a knockout at the end of one of the rounds of their second bout. If he gets him that way again he'll finish him. Don't think Dundee is going to outsmart him, for he isn't. You recall that when Dundee tried his trick of slipping punches along the ropes in their other Forbes Field fight, during the second round, he got all the worst of it. Teddy was looking for that stuff and punched away with both fists until the bell rang.

OUTSMARTED DUNDEE

"In the Newark fight, Teddy had him against the ropes and cocked his right hand for a punch to the head and Dundee waited until he came in and then deftly stepped aside and Teddy almost threw himself over the top rope. In the next round, Dundee tried it again, but fell into his own trap. Teddy faked with the right and shot a left hook to the head as Dundee pulled away in that direction and nailed him solidly, and, before Dundee could recover, Teddy hit him with three straight rights.

"Ask Dundee if Yarosz is a 'money fighter.' He knows. He's been in there with him.

"If Yarosz doesn't win this fight you'll see the greatest battle we've ever had in this town, for Dundee will have to be a super-champion to beat his great try. Some weeks ago, up at Teddy's Conneaut Lake camp, I started to 'rib' him to get him into a fighting mood. You know how easy-going he is. Finally he boiled over, saying:

FULL OF CONFIDENCE

"'Ray, you know I have a bad hand. Can't punch without wincing with pain. But you know as well as I do that I could go in there and beat Dundee tonight, bad hand and all. Don't worry about me. I'll be ready when the bell rings.'

"That's how Yarosz feels about this fight. The glamor of the other man's championship will not scare him. For the past two years he has been fighting men of reputation, and he'll be in there with a man he's already beaten twice.

"Money fighters? Say, wait until you get a load of Teddy Yarosz in THIS fight."

BOSTON, Sept. 7.—Rain today prevented the playing of the third battle of the four-game series between the Pittsburgh Pirates and Boston Braves here this afternoon.

As a result of the postponement, the two clubs will wind up their engagement with a doubleheader tomorrow.

The Tribe was riding high wide and handsome before the Pirates landed here, its five-game lead having the effect of making the locals feel quite satisfied with themselves. Now that the Buccos have chiseled the lead down to three games, there is a different feeling in the home camp.

Ralph Birkofer, powerful Buccaneer southpaw, limited the Braves to seven hits yesterday as the Pirates copped a 4 to 1 decision. Birkofer pitched a six-hit game at Cincinnati Sunday only to taste of defeat. His supporting cast solved Eddie Brandt for a lot of timely hits to clinch the argument for Pittsburgh.

By CHARLES J. DOYLE

It's only an anti-climax, weighted down with "what-might-have-beens," yet this September junket of the Pirates had the home folks stirred up today. And as Pie Traynor led his club out in Boston for the third game of the series with the Braves, the kingpin thirdsacker felt the glow of a five-game winning streak for the first time in his managerial career.

The fans walking the local Rialtoes seemed to think that Boss Pie had roused his players to unexpected feats through his threats of drastic changes, but there was one angle to the situation that was quite apart from this reckoning and that concerned little Lloyd Waner, who after a courageous battle against illness and misfortune was ready today to horn into the .300 circle of batters.

LLOYD IN STRIDE

There is a saying among the fans to the effect that as the Waners go, so go the Buccos, and this might be qualified to state that as Brother Lloyd goes, so go the Pirates.

Well, Lloyd has been "going" for the past week and the fact that he is continually on the sacks where he can inspire performances of the Waner Act in conjunction with Paul, is the real reason why the club has been going places, even though it may not mean anything.

Starting with the dual bill in Cincinnati Sunday and including yesterday's contest in Boston, Lloyd recorded 13 hits in 27 times at bat; in other words he has batted about .500 during the present drive of the club.

The comeback being staged by Lloyd probably means that there will be no effort to trade him during the off season. In the event that he goes through the remainder of the campaign in a stride close to his present gait he will have won back lots of prestige.

Scoring Play In State League Series

A bit of action as Greensburg defeated Washington, 6 to 1, in the opening game of their playoff series for the championship of the new Pennsylvania State Baseball Association at Washington, Pa., yesterday. Washington is the first half and Greensburg the second half champion. The playoff is on a world series basis, four out of seven games. A Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph picture.

REDWINGS LEAD IN SERIES

GREENSBURG, Pa., Sept. 7.—The Greensburg Redwings and the Washington Generals moved into this city today to resume their playoff series battle for the Penn State Association crown with the Wings a game up on the Generals.

Playing at Washington yesterday, the Wings made five hits account for six runs and defeated the Generals, 6 to 1. Washington's defense went to smash in the sixth inning when the Wings tallied four runs and put the game on ice. Two more runs were added in the seventh for good measure. In the sixth inning melee, only one hit was recorded, a triple by Mucci that brought in two runs.

Washington escaped a shutout in the ninth when Bengough singled and Hagan, who ran for the Generals' manager, came home on Mele's sacrifice fly.

The third game of the series will be played at Washington tomorrow and the fourth here Sunday. The first team to win four games takes series. The score:

Oldtimers' Day Card Is Revised

Ottie Cochran has revised the program for his Oldtimers' Day celebration to be staged at the Pleasant Valley Field Sunday afternoon. The Pleasant Valley team is to meet the present Ottie Cochrans in a nine-inning game immediately after the Cochrans play three innings against the old North Side Traders and three innings against the Cochrans of 1915-1920.

Play is to be begun at 2:45 p. m. Higgins, Beatty, Williams, Fowler, Moody and Volbrecht are expected to pitch for the oldtimers.

Local Swim Stars In Syria Meet

A galaxy of local swimming stars, both men and women, will compete today in the meet to be staged in conjunction with the annual stag outing of Syria Temple at Kennywood Park.

Included in the list are Misses Lenore Kight, Anna Mae and Johanna Gorman, Peg Dott, Anna France and Evangeline Huebner and Paul Caldwell, Bob Motiernan, Pete Bruckel, Bill Brown, John Norick and Francis Kugler.

LINE PROBLEM FOR CARNEGIE COACHES

By JESS CARVER

Some years back, quite a few in fact, a gent named Diogenes was running around Greece with a lantern looking for an honest man. Whether he ever found one or not never has been told. His search wasn't any tougher than the one Don Lovewell, Carnegie Tech's line coach, is having in searching out guards and tackles for this year's Tartan football varsity.

Diogenes's look-see for his men really was easier than that of Lovewell's, for if Don doesn't score in his search, it may be just too bad for the Tech season.

Lovewell gave his linemen some rough work yesterday, the scrimmage being carried on without any casualties. He's on the lookout for capable reserve tackles to aid Dutch Croft and Cliff Doloway and for both starting and reserve guards. Doloway reported to the Tech camp a day late yesterday and will not be able to do much for a week or more as he has an infected hand.

Up on the Bluff, Coach Joe Bach and Backfield Mentor Christy Flanagan are about set on the Duke's starting lineup, although the season opener is two weeks away. As the situation exists now, Fazio and either Airhart or Dissel will go at the ends, Vidoni and Wiehl at the tackles, Burns and Kakasic at the guards, Malkovich at center, either Oates or Cutrona at quarter, Filingham and Zaneski at the halves and Art Strutt at full.

America's Cup History

THE BATTLE OF 1895

NEW YORK, Sept. 7.—(AP)—Charges of fraud, a collision and a protest brought the America's Cup series of 1895 to an unhappy ending which saw the British challenger withdraw his entry before the series officially was completed.

It began with the first race. The defending Defender had outsailed Lord Dunraven's Valkyrie III by more than eight minutes.

The British challenger complained that the Defender had sailed on a longer waterline than the one shown by her measurements. He tempered the charge by expressing belief that the change might have been made without the owners' knowledge.

Both boats were hauled out of the water and measured. Defender's waterline varied one-eighth of an inch and Valkyrie's one-sixteenth.

At the start of the second race Valkyrie's main boom raked Defender's starboard shrouds and pulled the topmast shroud out of the spreader. Defender ran up a protest flag but the challenger did not heed it.

The disabled Defender decided to try to make a race of it and trailed Valkyrie across the finish line by more than one minute. After the race C. Oliver Iselin protested in behalf of the American yacht. The cup committee found Valkyrie at fault and awarded the race to Defender.

Angered by the decision, Dunraven brought his challenger out for the third race and after Valkyrie had crossed the starting line her skipper jammed her tiller hard down and headed back to port, withdrawing from the series. Defender sailed the course alone.

TOMORROW—LIPTON'S FIRST CHALLENGE.

Polo Teams Ready For Title Matches

NEW YORK, Sept. 7.—(AP)—Experience and individual brilliance for the west, speed, youth and teamwork for the east—that will be the lineup when the first game of the second annual intersectional polo series is played at Meadowbrook tomorrow.

Formal selection of the rival teams, made last night, finds a 38-goal Western team, averaging around 35 years in age, opposing the East's youngsters, handicapped at an aggregate of 30 goals and averaging about 26 years.

CUBS FAIL TO CHECK GIANTS' DRIVE

Bill Corum Writes:

By BILL CORUM
International News Service

Bill Corum

NEW YORK, Sept. 7.—Just as a switch from the boxing news let us turn our attention to that other manly pastime—polo.

There is of course, considerable difference between polo players and boxers. Polo players have ponies and boxers have cauliflower ears. There are other differences too numerous to mention, but I believe I have already succeeded in proving my point.

For all their differences, however, there is a distinct similarity in the position of Jimmy McLarnin, who will meet Barney Ross on Long Island this evening, weather permitting, and that of the East's polo team that will meet the West on Long Island tomorrow afternoon. Both are seeking revenge for an unexpected defeat imposed in a former meeting and both are attempting to uphold the traditions of the old against the new.

In all probability you will recall without difficulty how four horsemen rode out of the West onto the Onwentsia polo field at Chicago last year, and turned the tide of race horse croquet Westward. How they licked the supposedly superior East in no uncertain fashion, in other words.

The first of these matches will be played on the No. 1 field, which is broader and sportier than most polo pitches, at Meadowbrook tomorrow afternoon. The second setto is set for, I believe, the twelfth, and the third if required for a decision, on the fifteenth.

I'm anxious to see if both McLarnin and the polo stars of the East can come back.

LEADERS MOVE CLOSER TO PENNANT

Associated Press.

If there's any way of stopping those New York Giants in their rush toward the National League pennant, the Chicago Cubs apparently haven't discovered it.

Bill Terry

The Cubs managed to stretch things out over 12 innings yesterday but the result was just the same. They went down for the second time in succession, 2 to 1, and looked up at the leaders from a depth of nine games. St. Louis kept pace with a 7 to 5 decision over Brooklyn although still seven games behind.

With only 22 more games to go for New York and 24 for St. Louis that began to look like a huge deficit with a clean sweep in the coming series about the only St. Louis hope.

PARMELEE STRONG

Leroy (Bud) Parmelee and Bill Lee, both trying to preserve perfect records against the day's rival, hooked up in the Giant-Cub duel and it came very close to being a draw. Augie Galan blasted a homer off Parmelee in the first inning and Travis Jackson and Hank Leiber solved Lee for a double and a single respectively in the fourth to knot the count.

Parmelee granted only four more hits and Lee granted only six up to the deciding frame.

The Cardinals hopped off toward an easy victory when they clouted old Tom Zachary with a five run outburst in the fourth but Brooklyn nearly turned the tables in the final inning by rapping Tex Carleton for three tallies before they finally were retired.

Pittsburgh's Pirates extended their belated drive for a first division berth through their fifth straight victory when they beat the fourth-place Boston Braves 4 to 1.

YANKS GAIN GROUND

In the American League the Yankees and Red Sox managed to make up some ground they lost the day before without causing a great amount of excitement. While Detroit's double-header with the Athletics was rained out, the Yanks reduced the Tiger lead to 5½ games with a 5 to 3 decision over Chicago. The Yanks nicked Ted Lyons for four runs in the fourth to build up a 5-0 lead for Charley Ruffing but it took Johnny Murphy and Arndt Jorgens to protect it at the finish.

The Red Sox evened their third-place struggle with Cleveland with a late attack that netted three runs in each of the last two innings and a 6-to-1 victory for Gordon Rhodes, who granted only seven hits. The Washington-St. Louis contest was halted by rain.

By JULIUS LEVIN

The lid on the scholastic football season in Western Pennsylvania will be lifted tonight when the Scott High School football team, of North Braddock, defending class A champion of the W. P. I. A. L., clashes with the Uniontown High School eleven, coached by A. J. Everhart, under the floodlights of Scott Field.

The contest marks the third straight season the boys, tutored by Johnny Reed, have inaugurated their campaign with the Fayette Countians as their opponents. In 1931, Scott emerged with a 27-6 decision, while last season it scored a 6-0 triumph. Uniontown struck its bearing after losing to Scott and Trinity, the latter winning by a 13-12 score, in the first two games of the 1933 campaign and did not suffer another setback during the remainder of the season. Two class AA schools were listed among its victims, Washington losing, 14-0, and McKeesport, 16-7. Besides these two triumphs, Uniontown held Clairton, also a class AA school, to a scoreless tie.

Undefeated since they dropped a decision to Homestead near the tail end of the 1932 season, Scott risks a 12-game winning streak against the Everhart team. The defending class A champion was undefeated during the 1933 season.

The team that takes the field for Scott tonight will be a considerably changed one over that which won the title last fall. Johnny Reed has been forced to revamp his lineup due to heavy losses among the seniors.

Real Estate Regaining Investment Standing

By GEORGE H. SNYDER
Business Editor

Mr. Snyder

UNCERTAINTY about the future of the currency of the United States is becoming an increasingly important factor in business. The administration has given no indication that further currency inflation measures are under consideration. But the continued piling up of federal debt, which must be paid off at some time, has caused much uncertainty about the ultimate stability of the dollar. The present situation is found to be even more disconcerting than that prevailing at the beginning of the period of office of the present administration. At that time the administration had committed itself to a certain amount of inflation. Corporations and individuals took steps to provide for the situation. But the outlook at this time is uncertain. There may or there may not be further inflation.

As a result, there has been lack of confidence in many investment mediums. Government bonds have fallen in the estimation of many economists. There is no doubt that government bonds will be redeemed in their face value in dollars, but no one is quite sure what these dollars will be worth.

* * *

Rush to Buy Equity Stocks

EARLY IN THE TERM of the present administration there was a rush to buy equity securities in the belief that inflation would bring an ultimate expansion in values. But, corporate earnings have been so uncertain that believers in inflation have hesitated to venture into this field. Undoubtedly, this is the reason for the listlessness in the stock market. Pure speculators have turned to commodities, but, in this field, so many factors have a bearing, that such investments are unsatisfactory for the ordinary person as a safeguard against inflation.

Recent advances in commodities have been confined almost entirely to foods. This advance has been attributable to the drought. Other commodities have shown no definite trend.

At one time gold and silver as commodities, or stocks of producers of these commodities as investments, had an appeal as hedges against inflation. But nationalization of these metals has changed this situation.

This has left durable commodities, such as the non-precious metals and the companies which produce them and one other important means for protection against dollar devaluation.

* * *

Real Estate Gets Interest

UNDER THESE uncertain conditions and with the limited number of expedients, there has been a gradual revival of interest in real estate. This statement is not intended to be advice. It is mentioned merely as an indication of a change which is taking place in the viewpoint of many who have surplus capital.

Real estate has been the least desirable of possessions for many years. Commercial properties rarely have yielded a satisfactory return in recent years. Carrying charges have been a serious burden. Real estate has the disadvantage of poor liquidity. But as long as our present economic system exists, real estate will be a basis of true wealth. If there is to be a genuine recovery, real estate will garner its share in earnings and increased value. Real estate will represent wealth regardless of monetary gymnastics. These conditions, in the opinion of many, make real estate a valuable hedge against uncertain monetary experiments.

DOUBLES DUEL ON TODAY

By PAUL G. SULLIVAN

A lone doubles semi-final fray makes up tonight's card in the twenty-eighth annual Beaver County tennis championship on the American Bridge Company rectangles at Ambridge. The match brings together Bob Madden and Bob Lampus with Mt. Lebanon's youthful darkhorse pair, Bobby Grier and Paul Massey. Final frays are slated for tomorrow afternoon, with Dr. John O'Loughlin engaging Madden for the singles crown and King Moore and the writer meeting the survivors of this evening's contest in the doubles.

O'Loughlin and Madden attained the trophy bracket yesterday in impressive fashion. The former downed Eddie Alcorn, 6-1, 6-4, while the latter eliminated Grier, 6-2, 6-0, in a free-swinging fracas. Grier earlier defeated Howard Cooper, 6-4, 1-6, 6-2.

Meanwhile Johnny Hecker and Stewart Snodgrass, Valley stars, dropped a close decision to Moore and the writer, 6-4, 1-6, 6-2, in the two-man semi-finals.

Plans for the Allegheny Country Club invitation classic, beginning on the turf courts of the Sewickley Heights organization next Tuesday and continuing throughout the week, are rapidly approaching completion. Julius Boise, noted A. C. C. professional, is in New York today lining up last details toward bringing hither various ranking luminaries of the country currently assembled for the National championship tourney at Forest Hills.

Misses Wall, Stifel In Golf Finale

WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS, W. Va., Sept. 7.—(AP.)—Both victors in uphill semi-final contests, Bernice Wall, of Oshkosh, Wis., and Fritzi Stifel, of Wheeling, battle today in a 36-hole final match for the Mason and Dixon women's golf championship.

In eliminating the vivacious young New Yorker, Bea Gottlieb, 1 up in 19 holes, Miss Stifel had to overcome a two-hole advantage her opponent held at the end of the first nine.

Miss Wall did an even more spectacular act in overcoming a four-hole advantage which tiny Lily S. Harper, of Portsmouth, Va., had piled up at the tenth.

Big Hockey Loops May Resume War

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 7.—(AP.)—Resumption of "war" between the National League and American Association hockey organizations was indicated by Frank G. Wainwright, president of the association club in St. Louis.

Wainwright asserted that apparent definite plans to transfer the Ottawa National League club to St. Louis this fall would not prevent the American circuit from operating here.

The American Association, he explained, plans to invade Chicago and place teams in Milwaukee and Cincinnati.

UNRANKED STAR DOWNS LOTT

FOREST HILLS, N. Y., Sept. 7.—(AP.)—George Martin Lott's campaign for recognition as a top-flight singles player blew up yesterday when he was beaten by Edward W. Feibleman, an unranked challenger, in the third round of the men's national singles tennis championship, 2-6, 6-1, 3-6, 6-4, 6-4.

The seeded foreign list of four lost one of its number when F. H. D. Wilde, of England, was eliminated in straight sets by John Van Ryn, of East Orange, N. J., 8-6, 6-4, 6-2.

Rain interrupted completion of third round matches between Donald Budge, of Oakland, Cal., and Bryan M. Grant, of Atlanta, and Menzel, of Czecho-Slovakia and Gregory S. Mangin, of Newark, N. J. Grant and Budge were deadlocked at two sets each, 6-3, 3-6, 4-6, 8-6.

While Frank Shields, the top-seeded American, was accounting for Jack Tidball, former intercollegiate champion, Feibleman, once a Harvard player, accomplished Lott's downfall in the presence of only tournament officials. Lott had one of his bad days. Feibleman was steady, although not spectacular and Lott found it impossible to confuse him.

Feibleman will meet Fred Perry, of England, today in the fourth round. Perry cut down Jack Talbot, of Buckhill Falls, Pa., in straight sets, 6-3, 6-1, 6-4 yesterday.

Big Ten Ban Scored

Grid Coaches Should Be Permitted to Write For Newspapers, Jones Says

By HOWARD JONES
Member All America Board of Football.
(Registered U. S. Patent Office.)

Within the current year the Western Intercollegiate Conference, more familiarly known as the Big Ten, passed the following resolutions: "That it is the opinion of the Conference that it is not proper for a Conference coach or the director to publish articles in periodicals or the press, in the nature of comment on teams and current games."

One can assume from this resolution that there will be no articles this fall by coaches of the Big Ten.

Howard Jones

Perhaps those responsible for this resolution may feel that they were justified in this action, but I hardly believe that all the coaches in the Big Ten Conference have been writing such articles that they should deserve so severe a penalty depriving them of a small but legitimate outside income.

I can recall back in 1909 when I wrote my first football articles for the New York American and the Boston Post that I was quite thrilled and felt honored that they should want me to write for them.

I believe it was sound logic to assume that these newspapers would not have asked me to write on the Yale-Harvard and Yale-Princeton games in that year unless they were certain that the public was interested in the coach's version of those games.

INTEREST MOUNTS

Since that time football interest has grown tremendously all over the country, and I still believe that the public likes to read articles by Bob Zuppke, Harry Kipke, Glenn Warner and others prominent in football coaching. If the newspapers didn't think the public was interested they surely would not want the articles.

If now and then a football coach should write an article of an unethical or uncalled for nature should it not be a matter of individual discipline rather than the restriction of the group?

If the prevention of football coaches from writing is because of the outside financial income it would be inconsistent with the general regulations of most universities governing professors and teachers. Many of them write books and articles and many of them deliver outside lectures for financial gain.

Then there are a few who are of the opinion that the football coach receives too much publicity. I don't know of very many coaches who seek publicity. In fact, I believe that most coaches are willing and glad to give the most credit to the players. In all institutions either of learning or commercial there is a head to whom responsibility is attached for failure or success, and it is only because of the great public interest in football that coaches are apt to receive an unusual amount of publicity.

PUBLICITY SOUGHT

In most of the larger universities they maintain a publicity department for athletics, and surely the little added publicity which a football coach can give to an institution should not be condemned. When changes are made in football coaches at educational institutions it is not uncommon that the most prominent coaches are sought to satisfy the alumni and the local public.

Perhaps it will appear to the reader of this article that I am trying to defend the football coaching profession. I don't believe that it has to be defended. I feel sincerely that today it is the greatest medium for teaching character to boys and young men because of the enormous interest the American youth takes in football.

School Notes

Jock Rosenberg, coach at Rankin High School, reports that most of his gridders spent the summer at C. C. C. camps and as a result are in mid-season condition. Rankin still has some dates available for games abroad. Call or write Jock Rosenberg, Rankin High School, Rankin, Pa.

Columbia University and Villa Nova have two of the most prominent grid stars developed by Bill Sullivan during the latter's earlier reign as coach at McKeesport High School. Paul Jackel is at Columbia and Milan Vidnovic attends Villa Nova.

Capt. Ted Grebe and Joe Herrmann are the only two regulars back for the Ambridge High School eleven. Herrmann, a guard last season, has been changed into a fullback.

Gansy Benedict and Mike Ferrare, former Duquesne University stars who are coaching at Ellwood City, are expecting big things from their team this fall. A number of returning veterans makes the outlook a rosy one.

Apollo High School will play Kittanning in the first night game at Kittanning one week from tonight.

STOCKS FADE AS TRADING EXPANDS

NEW YORK, Sept. 7.—(AP)—Financial markets were somewhat fretful today and irregular price movements characterized the trading in most categories.

Stocks steadied in the early dealings although the metals, which led yesterday's relapse, failed to get back any of their previous losses. After the noon hour equities again pointed downward and the activity expanded on the dipping movement. The rails were fairly resistant. Just how much of a market factor current labor troubles were proving was conjectural.

Grains were mixed, with the general tendency lower as some traders voiced fears of Argentine wheat imports. Cotton was hesitant. United States government securities were a bit ragged after extending their rally moderately in the morning. Corporation bonds were easier. The dollar was fairly firm in terms of leading foreign exchanges.

Shares of Homestake Mining were off about 15 points on a few transactions, and United States Smelting, relatively active, showed a further loss of more than 3 points. American Smelting, Howe Sound and Cerro de Pasco yielded a point or so each.

While the financial district was none too sanguine regarding the widespread textile strike, the general hope seemed to be that the mediating body named by the President would be able to accomplish something constructive after the controversy has continued for a while longer.

So far as the mills themselves are concerned, the opinion was expressed by some trade observers that, if all of the factories closed, the industry would not be greatly injured provided the shutdown did not last too long. The enforced holiday, it was figured, would tend to deplete the large inventories now existing and would put most of the plants into a better position to begin work on goods for the winter and Christmas trade.

The reclassification of the Home Owners' Loan and Federal Farm mortgage government-guaranteed bonds as "direct" federal obligations to be listed as such in national bank condition statements was a little chilling to the inflationary elements in Wall Street. In these quarters the development, which brought a rally in United States government securities, was viewed as an indication that any immediate further inflationary move by the administration was improbable. At the same time it bore out the banking conclusion that the investment market is being watched more closely by Washington.

WHEAT SCORES NEW UPTURN

CHICAGO, Sept. 7.—Influenced by unexpected strength of the Liverpool wheat market, wheat prices here averaged higher early today. Liverpool dispatches said unsatisfactory crop conditions for wheat in South Australia and Victoria were contributing bullish factors.

Opening at ¼ off to ½ up, December new, 1.06⅞@1.07¼, Chicago wheat afterward held near the initial range. Corn started ¼ lower to ⅜ higher, December new, 80@80½, and subsequently sagged.

Crack-Up in Metal Shares Blurs Hopes of Autumn Rise in Stock Market

Hopes for an autumn upswing in the stock market underwent further postponement today as a minor downtrend was more clearly defined by renewed weakness in the forenoon.

The resounding crack of the metal shares in the last hour yesterday, while it unsettled the market generally, did not disturb sentiment a great deal. Outside the metals, liquidation was not heavy. However, minus its recent inflation stimulants, the stock market had a poor background for bullish activity and traders assumed that the line of least resistance for the moment was downward.

The market has given up more than half of its August gains and chart readers were talking of another test of the late July low points.

Shipments of finished steel products by the United States Steel Corporation in August are said to have held up remarkably well as compared with the July total of 369,938 tons, and estimates in conservative quarters are that a decrease of only about 25,000 tons, or slightly more, may be shown in the report to be published at noon Monday. The showing as anticipated will be quite a surprise to many who have been predicting a drop of as much as 100,000 tons based on knowledge that ingot production went downward steadily during August. The average last month is estimated at about 22 per cent against about 26½ per cent in July. One explanation is that the Steel Corporation was shipping material from stock during last month.

Professional strong-arm activity in the stock market, either on the bull or the bear side, has been exceedingly small for months, nevertheless, some tape-readers professed to see indications of a bearish foray against the metals in the last hour yesterday, touched off by an unofficial report on the earnings possibilities of United States Smelting & Refining. Pining for some action, traders were said to have seen an opportunity in the metals, the one group believed to harbor an option as a result of their popularity as "inflation stocks" in the past year.

Much midnight oil has been burned by Wall street statisticians the past year in the calculation of potential earnings of metal producers based on rising prices of gold and silver. It was the practice usually to take earnings in recent years on the prices for gold and silver prevailing then and figure from that base possible profits with gold at $35 an ounce, $41 and so on. The result usually stirred the imagination with dreams of golden profits. One trouble with that method was that it did not take into consideration the possibility of rising mining costs as the inflationary effects of dollar devaluation and Treasury silver purchases were felt. Commodity prices have been slow in catching up with the depreciation in the dollar, but they have been moving that way.

Inasmuch as trends in New York are watched closely as a barometer of banking conditions generally, this week's condition statement of New York City members of the Federal Reserve excited interest. Their statement shows an increase of $81,000,000 in "all other" or commercial loans, the largest gain for any week since June 15, 1932. The gain lifted the total, at $1,612,000,000, a little above the figure of a year ago. In the two previous weeks, their "all other" loans had gained $2,000,000 and $15,000,000, respectively. In the absence of any other explanation, it was assumed the rise meant an acceleration in recent tendencies toward credit expansion.

Besides increasing their commercial loans, New York City banks, in common with banks elsewhere in the country, have been enlarging their holdings of securities other than United States government obligations and have sold some government securities. Their latest condition statement reveals a decrease of $17,000,000 in "governments" and an increase of $13,000,000 in "other securities." Banks, which are holding a large part of the outstanding national debt, doubtless have done some of the liquidation which depressed Treasury issues lately but the decline of $17,000,000 in holdings of New York City banks is too small in proportion to the total to indicate any big movement to lighten bank portfolios of government bonds.

Montgomery Ward's August Sales Rise

CHICAGO, Sept. 7.—Montgomery Ward & Co. sales for August and seven months compare as follows:

	1934	1933
Seven mo.	129,612,867	97,443,464

The seasonal increase of more than $3,000,000 over July during August was the largest since 1929, in which year the company's retail store expansion program was in full swing. August sales this year made the best showing for any year since 1930, when August sales were $20,966,819.

AUTUMN TRADE SIGNS GOOD

NEW YORK, Sept. 7.—(AP)—There are definite signs of a "strong revival" of retail buying during the autumn months, said Dun and Bradstreet in their weekly trade review today, "and barring prolonged labor disturbances, the current rise is expected to be strengthened gradually until joined by the forceful momentum of the holiday shopping season."

The survey declared that the moderate expansion of commercial bank loans may be interpreted not only as indicative of plans for extending fall industrial activities beyond earlier estimates, but also attests the better financial position which numerous firms have been able to achieve. The report continued:

"The placement of so many orders which should have been released in July and August carried volume in many wholesale markets 10 to 15 per cent above the comparative 1933 figures."

SEC ASKS QUIZ ON SMELTING

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 7.—The Securities and Exchange Commission today asked the New York Stock Exchange to investigate a 15-point drop in United States Smelting stock yesterday.

It was explained by commission officials that Section 9 of the act governing manipulations of stocks does not go into effect until October 1, and therefore it has no jurisdiction at this time over cases of this kind. However, it was added, a preliminary study of yesterday's episode would be made.

H. B. Swope Heads Radio-Keith Board

NEW YORK, Sept. 7.—(AP)—Election of Herbert B. Swope, former editor of the New York World, as chairman of the board of directors of Keith-Albee-Orpheum Corporation has been announced by M. H. Aylesworth, president of the Radio-Keith-Orpheum Corporation.

L. E. Thompson was elected president of Keith-Albee-Orpheum.

B. I. S. Head Sees Revival in Europe

NEW YORK, Sept. 7.—Leon Frazer, president of the Bank for International Settlements, arrived on the Hamburg for a three-week visit. He said prosperity is "positively returning in Europe," especially in England and the Scandinavian countries.

LOAN BULLETIN ISSUED

Outlining the procedure under which retail stores may obtain loans from the Federal Reserve banks, a special bulletin has been issued on the subject by the controllers' congress of the National Retail Dry Goods Association.

LOCAL MARKET IRREGULAR, QUIET

Narrow, irregular price changes marked the dealings on the Pittsburgh Stock Exchange today, with volume continuing at the low rate noted in previous sessions this week. Low-priced specialties provided most of the business during the day, while the standard industrial issues and the usually active fuels remained dull. Absence of news calculated to stimulate dealings in these issues accounted for their small turnover.

The upset in the metal stocks on the "Big Board" yesterday apparently had lost its influence in the early trading today. Initial quotations were down fractionally in most groups, but the list steadied itself when the overnight offerings were out of the way. Turnover showed no change from the recent rate. Brokers maintained their cautious attitude toward the market but there was a growing opinion in the street that the list was shaping itself for a move that will take it out of its recent rut.

HIGHER CABLES AID COTTON

NEW YORK, Sept. 7.—Cotton futures opened steady, unchanged to 2 points advance on steady Liverpool cables and commission house and foreign buying. October 13.21; December 13.34; January 13.38; March 13.44; May 13.52; July 13.57.

Business was moderately active at the start. Southern selling was light and there was a fair demand from Wall street and scattering sources as well as some buying for continental account. This was supplied at about the initial levels however, and prices eased off right after the call under realizing or liquidation which probably included further evening up for over tomorrow's government crop report.

December reacted from 13.34 to 13.27 but was holding fairly steady around 13.30 at the end of the first hour when active months were a point or two under yesterday's closing quotations.

Trading was quiet later in the morning and fluctuations were irregular within a narrow range. Much of the business was attributed to evening up in preparation for tomorrow's crop figures, but there was very little pressure against the market and prices held steady. At midday December was selling unchanged to 2 points lower.

LIVERPOOL, Sept. 7.—Cotton, 6,000 bales, including 2,400 American. Spot increased in demand; prices four points higher; quotations in pence: American strict good middling, 7.80; good middling, 7.50; strict middling, 7.35; middling, 7.20; strict low middling, 7.05; low middling, 6.95; strict good ordinary, 6.65; good ordinary, 6.35. Futures closed very steady. October, 7.01; December, 6.98; January, 6.98; March, 6.96; May, 6.95; July, 6.94.

OIL PROMOTER DEFIES SEC

WASHINGTON, Sept. 7.—(AP)—The authority of the Securities and Exchange Commission was defied yesterday by Aldrich Blake, Oklahoma City oil promoter.

He sold a contract for 200 barrels of oil to be delivered if and when produced despite the commission's informal ruling that he could not sell this contract without describing it fully to the commission.

Blake previously had said he was awaiting arrest, injunction or whatever other action the commission cared to take.

There were no dramatics yesterday, however, when he sold his contract to Harry Craig of Denver. The sale price was $2—a penny a barrel.

The commission contented itself with sending two attorneys from its staff—Paul Y. Waters and Andrew TenEyck, who witnessed the transaction in Blake's office and obtained a copy of the contract.

The commission's next action has not been announced but it probably will seek a restraining order in a Federal Court.

STREET DOUBTS EARLY RETURN OF 'MERGER ERA'

Forbes

Business to Spurt! Reduce Taxes! Webster's Advice.

By B. C. FORBES

Mr. Forbes

IN SPITE OF all discouragements, there is at least a possibility that the final quarter will bring appreciable quickening in business.

A notable rise in the stock market may also by-and-by be witnessed.

THE WAYS of submarine builders, it is being clearly revealed, have been as undercover as their product.

Business and banking have suffered most of all, not from critics, but from traitors within their own fold.

SOME DAY it may occur to tax-leviers that one way to raise the necessary total is to eliminate every unnecessary expenditure. If half as much ingenuity were exercised in contriving to reduce taxes as is exercised to hatch up new forms of taxation, all of us would be better off.

A PREDICTION:

A READER offers this as timely for this column:

"There are persons who constantly clamor. They complain of oppression, speculation and the pernicious influence of accumulated wealth. They cry out loudly against all banks and corporations, and all means by which small capitalists become united in order to produce important and beneficial results. They carry on mad hostility against all established institutions. They would choke the fountain of industry and dry all streams.

"In a country of unbounded liberty, they clamor against oppression. In a country of perfect equality they would move heaven and earth against privilege and monopoly. In a country where property is more evenly divided than anywhere else, they rend the air shouting agrarian doctrines. In a country where wages of labor are high beyond parallel, they would teach the laborer he is but an oppressed slave.

"Sir, what can such men want? What do they mean? They can want nothing, sir, but to enjoy the fruits of other men's labor. They can mean nothing but disturbance and disorder, the diffusion of corrupt principles and the destruction of the moral sentiments and moral habits of society. (Signed)

"DANIEL WEBSTER.

VAST COMBINES FEATURED 'BOOM'

NEW YORK, Sept. 7.—(AP)—An agreement for the biggest steel merger in four years, and informal discussions regarding combinations of some of the smaller automobile companies, bring up the question of whether recovery has progressed to a point at which the big merger movement of the boom period is to be resumed.

The answer in best informed quarters in Wall street, however, is in the negative. There may be numerous "marriages of convenience," it is thought, but the return of an era of the romantic combinations of corporations, is not in view.

The plan to merge the Corrigan, McKinney Steel Company with the Republic Steel Corporation—the first big merger in the industry since Republic Steel was formed in 1930—is believed to be the result of a special situation. The plan, which is subject to ratification by stockholders, would give Republic an important property closer to Detroit and the automobile industry. And talk of a sale of Corrigan-McKinney has been heard for some time. There were rumors at one time that General Motors might acquire it. The Union Trust Company, of Cleveland, now in liquidation, has an indirect interest in it, and the liquidator is understood to have been pressing for the sale of the company.

AUTO DEALS RUMORED

Talk of mergers in the automobile industry have involved chiefly some of the smaller companies which have been finding competition from the so-called "big three" increasingly severe. The difficulties of maintaining a dealer organization with a small volume have brought the small companies much worry. The automobile industry has come to recognize that one of the most important assets a manufacturer can have is a strong dealer organization.

But the growth of the supercorporation, in the opinion of many well-informed quarters in the financial community, has been rather decisively checked, at least for some time. There is no longer the urge to be "the biggest company." The depression has shown that mere size, with huge overhead, may be a serious handicap in periods of lessened business. Furthermore, a number of the boom time combinations have not resulted in the savings and efficiencies expected.

'SPECIAL SITUATIONS'

Throughout the business structure, however, it is felt that many special situations exist which may result in a number of small combinations, which may be expected to develop as rapidly as business and financial initiative is restored. Ownership of many corporations have become tied up in collateral behind bank loans which are to be liquidated. And hard times have shown that a number of units are too specialized or lopsided to exist satisfactorily by themselves.

But an enthusiastic merger requires, more than anything else, a bull market in stocks, so they usually develop on the crest of a boom, rather than in early stages of recovery.

Examiner Upholds Anthracite Rates

WASHINGTON, Sept. 7.—Rejecting the contention of the Glen Alden Coal Company, an attorney-examiner of the Interstate Commerce Commission has recommended against reduced rates on prepared sizes of anthracite coal from mines in the upper-half of the Pennsylvania hard-coal region to destinations in New England, central territory, Canada and Iowa.

Wholesale Prices At New 1934 High

WASHINGTON, Sept. 7.—Wholesale commodity prices during the week ended September 1 increased 0.8 per cent to the highest level this year. The Bureau of Labor Statistics reports. This is the fifth consecutive weekly advance. The index now stands at 77.5 of the 1926 average.

Curb Seat Sells At $1,500 Advance

NEW YORK, Sept. 7.—Arrangements have been made for the sale of a New York Curb Exchange membership at $20,000 representing an increase of $1,500 over the last previous transaction.

'Phone Stations Show Increase In August

NEW YORK, Sept. 7.—The Bell Telephone System reports an increase of 10,750 telephones in service during August, against a loss of 33,500 in July and loss of 20,750 in August, 1933.

Rukeyser Sees Business Ready for 'Turn'

Universal Service.

OMAHA, Neb., Sept. 7.—Merryle Stanley Rukeyser, financial writer for Hearst newspapers, said in an address before the Omaha Chamber of Commerce that rapid recovery progress is assured "if the national administration goes out actively to get the co-operation of businessmen and investors."

The drought has broken the backbone of the depression, he said, and business is in a position to turn from its "strategic retreat of the past four months" and advance with speed if it receives from the national administration assurance that "there is no intention to add to the burdens of enterprise by taxation or otherwise."

Traveling through the Central West to obtain first-hand information on effects of the drought the writer said he is learning that economic results of the drought have been exaggerated in eastern centers. He said:

"Apart from local hardships and inconveniences, the drought signalizes the passing of glutted warehouses which have acted as a damper on business enthusiasm and courage. It is restoring the necessary balance between farm and industrial prices. Once we get agricultural prices in line with industrial prices, and prices of capital goods in line with consumer goods, we shall once more resume our spectacular march toward a higher standard of living.

"I foresee the time, not too far ahead, when double the number of automobiles in use in the boom year 1929 will be in use—one for each of the 45,000,000 of gainfully employed."

Rukeyser criticized the NRA for interfering with business recovery started in the summer of 1933 and paid his respects to Gen. Hugh Johnson as one "who has done so much to put businessmen into the jitters."

The Washington attitude toward business has made it appear that "we were seeking prosperity while killing off the prosperity makers—the businessmen and investors," he commented, adding:

"The next phase of recovery should be based on recognition of this blunder. Once the administration goes out actively to get the support of businessmen and investors, the problem of recovery will have been solved."

Two of Fisher Brothers Retiring From GMO

DETROIT, Sept. 7.—(AP.)—When Fred J. Fisher, eldest of the seven Fisher brothers, was a boy, he confided to a friend that his ambition was to possess $50,000 at the age of 50, then retire.

Seven years late, and with his financial goal reached perhaps a thousand times over, he retired yesterday from his active connection with General Motors Corporation, along with his brother, Charles T. Fisher.

Retirement, however, apparently is only figurative in their case, for the announcement by Alfred P. Sloan, Jr., president of General Motors, said the two brothers were resigning to concern themselves with personal interests, including those of Fisher & Co., an investment company of the Fisher group.

Their plans were not made public, for both were out of the city, but should they take active charge of the Fisher group interests it would be far from retirement, for the fortune built from the Fisher Body Corporation, now a division of General Motors, is invested in a veritable cross section of American enterprise, including railroads, a locomotive company, oil companies and banks.

The Sloan announcement said that four others of the Fisher brothers would continue with General Motors, William A. and Edward F. Fisher in charge of the Fisher body division, and Lawrence P. and Alfred J. Fisher as members of the operating staff.

SHOULD PERMIT MARKET PRICES TO FIX WAGES

By LEWIS HANEY

Professor of Economics, New York University

NEW YORK, Sept. 7.—The notion that "the government" should in some way give everybody enough money to live on, is becoming more and more common.

For example, I have recently been asked by one correspondent why wages should not be raised (by government action) so as to balance consumption with production. And another asks, why not have the government distribute a fixed sum weekly to each person in the country?

There are only two ways to "balance" consumption and production. One is to limit production arbitrarily and force consumers to consume no more. The other is to allow market prices to decide. But raising wages could work only through prices. And if wages are raised, prices must be raised. Then the higher prices must be paid by wage earners, so their higher wages don't get them anywhere.

SOURCE OF FUNDS?

Where would the funds come from out of which higher wages would be paid? The fact is that wages, interest and profits all come from the value of the joint product which labor, capital and enterprise make out of the materials of nature. This joint product is the source of all earned income. When income derived from production is low there is less to distribute, and laborers can get less wages, capital less interest and enterprise less profits.

If labor is "given" more wages there is a reduction in the rewards for capital and enterprise. This in turn means less demand for labor and reduced employment.

Then if the government steps in and tries to "make work" by having men build uneconomic dams, public buildings, etc., it has to pay by raising taxes or going into debt. Such work brings in no income, and therefore no earned wages. In short, the government gives the money. You may call it wages, but I call it "doles."

UNEMPLOYMENT INSURANCE

The proposal to distribute a fixed sum per capita, without regard to needs, is just as sensible—though that is not saying much. The money would come from an income tax. The payment would be called "insurance." There would be no fixing of wages, prices or profit.

I believe in a sound and businesslike system of unemployment insurance. I believe in a reasonable minimum wage, with abundant provision for differentials. I believe in emergency doles for the needy unemployed. But I do not believe in giving everybody money regardless of individual needs or productivity.

For one thing, such a scheme would make for dependence and pauperism, as English history shows. It would let down the bars to large families among the poor, for the more children, the more doles!

Probably, it would increase unemployment. Not only would many persons be less anxious for work if receiving a dole, but also the funds would come largely from a tax on profits which would restrict enterprise and employment.

IMPOSSIBLE SITUATION

Certainly such a fixed distribution by government of tax money would make a deadly bureaucracy. A huge "administration" would be required. The tendency to "let the government do it" would be increased.

When everybody lives on the government it means that everybody is living on everybody else—an impossible situation.

A fixed dole per capita, moreover, would not balance income and payment. Profits vary widely from year to year, and the tax income would probably fail just at the time when the most people would want their dole.

All such schemes involve forcible taking of money from some and giving it to others, without any definite relation either to (1) needs, or (2) productivity (or even effort). They would take a large part of the income of the people of the nation out of the field of economic testing and appraisal, and make distribution of wealth and income a government function.

The one would give doles and call them "wages." The other would give doles and call them "insurance."

CHAPTER II.

For the second time the outer door opened to admit a woman from the world of leisure. This time the interest of the personnel was real and respectful. Laura Ingram was no such frequent visitor as Alspaugh's wife, and there was not a lowly file clerk who was ignorant of her social prestige and importance.

Though her complexion appeared faded and faintly lined, her features were regular and she had triumphantly preserved her figure. Her most youthful attribute, however, was her dark-gold hair, as abundant and as lustrous now as on the day of her wedding.

She entered her husband's office far more simply than had Marian Alspaugh. In a low voice she asked if Mr. Ingram had anyone with him, and being answered in the negative, said, "I'll go right in, then."

Alspaugh hurried to open the door for her. "Let me show you in, Mrs. Ingram! And good afternoon! It isn't often we have the pleasure of seeing you here."

"Oh, it's Mr.—Alspaugh——" Her hesitation before the name was barely perceptible. "How are you?"

Marian's piquant face appeared behind her husband's shoulders. "I do hope you haven't forgotten me completely, Mrs. Ingram! I'm Mrs. Alspaugh. I was introduced to you at the polo game, when Mr. Seward played so marvelously——"

"Why, of course!" Laura Ingram's voice warmed at the mention of her son. "I remember you perfectly. It's so nice to see you again!"

She hesitated, her eyes drifting covertly up and down Marian's attractive figure. "I wonder if you'd care to— Have you an engagement for tomorrow afternoon?"

"Oh, no!"

"We're giving a sort of garden party for charity," Laura Ingram explained carefully—as if Marian didn't know all about it, hadn't known for weeks and longed, without hope, to receive an invitation.

Ask to Sell Cigarets

"We're having all sorts of features, outdoor theatricals, fortune telling, treasure hunting and a mystery trip—things like that, you know. It occurred to me you might care to come and sell cigarets."

"Oh, Mrs. Ingram, I should love it!" Marian gasped. "What must I wear?"

"Any little fantastic costume you may have—or just a pretty summer frock. You'll have a tray, of course, with ribbons over you shoulders—and mind you make your customers pay well for their cigarets!"

She went on into the private office, with a gracious nod of farewell.

"I've just asked that little Mrs. Alspaugh to sell cigarets for us tomorrow. She's exactly the type to wheedle men. I shouldn't be surprised if she takes in more money than Rose and Mabel together. You're looking very abstracted, Jasper! Had you forgotten that I told you I should call for you at four, that you positively promised to put in an appearance with me at Ruth Bartlett's, to meet that Spanish Infanta of hers?"

"Did I say I'd do that?" Ingram got to his feet reluctantly, blinking away thoughts of business. "If I did, I suppose I'll have to make good. But I feel right now as if I could worry along contentedly for the rest of my life, even if I never made the acquaintance of a Spanish Infanta!"

Uses Swift Yacht

Jasper Ingram used a swift motor yacht for his daily trip from Long Island to the city, but his wife disliked boats and insisted upon using her car. Now he grumbled at the slowness of their progress up town and over the Queensborough bridge.

She did not reply, being occupied with a final review of her plans for the entertainment. Taking her social activities seriously, Laura Ingram was a successful hostess. To advance her position in society was to her a career and an art. Her husband had helped her by becoming so rich that—this being America—he had made her inevitably socially important. When he married her, she was a well-bred, middle class girl, living with her father, who had a professorship in a small college.

To the professor's discontented daughter, Jasper Ingram represented opportunity; to Ingram she was the coolly selected instrument of a purpose he had at heart.

When he decided to marry he proposed to Laura Seward for what seemed to him a number of good reasons. She was handsome and apparently healthy, she had a scholarly background, and he had read somewhere that a child derives its intellectual equipment mainly from its mother. Great men, he had heard, have, as a rule, remarkable mothers and mediocre sons.

Marriage opened his eyes to the fact that Laura's health was not altogether sound, and that the pliability and sweetness and disposition she had shown during courtship masked a disposition that was not entirely angelic. He had naively tested her for love of children and joyfully given her high marks on her responses, but, with the birth of Seward, she refused to have another child.

Popular at School

Seward thus was an only child, but, surprisingly enough, he was a charming boy, popular at prep school and college and now shamelessly run after by half the girls on Long Island.

Ingram, somehow, had never been able to get close to his son. As Seward grew older and heard certain rumors about his father and other women, the gulf between the two widened—and the boy became a violent partisan of his mother. So it was he entered a period of cynicism and disillusionment in which she alone retained his reverence.

Laura Ingram's life was eminently satisfactory to her. If her husband gave her little of his confidence or his company, he gave her all the forms of respect, unlimited money and reasonable compliance with her schemes that required his assistance. Social ambition, supplying her with an occupation, gave her something to think about and work for.

While Ingram mused silently of mergers and stock manipulations, she thought now about the Infanta, second cousin to ex-King Alfonso, whom a rival hostess, widow of a former ambassador to Spain, was entertaining. Laura had tried to secure this lady for tomorrow, but Ruth Bartlett was whirling her prize to Bar Harbor. After all, however, she reflected, the princess was only a pious, middle-aged woman with a moustache, heavy socially and physically; let Ruth keep her, although, of course, it sounded awfully well to have an Infanta staying with you.

Likes New York

It developed, when the Ingrams had joined the party on the Bartlett terrace, that only a few of the more intimate members of Dona Josepha's entourage were going with her to Maine. The Marques d'Alhues y Silva, certainly the most attractive member of her party, was to remain at loose ends in New York.

"But then, I am enchanted with your New York," he told Mrs. Ingram, "your so beautiful women and so many cars, your skyscratchers such as we have not in Spain. What is Bar Harbor but another San Sebastian?—and that is an old story."

"You don't find it frightfully hot in town?" asked Mrs. Ingram.

"Heat does not incommode me, Senora—on the contrary. After the revolution we went first to England. Br-r-r. I still carry the chill of that England in my bones!"

He had a charming laugh that broke the classic lines of his face into boyish curves and showed teeth, startlingly white in contrast to his general swarthiness.

"Won't you come to us tomorrow, Marques?" Laura begged. "We will promise not to freeze you, and you might be amused."

"I shall be most happy," he assured her, and gazed soulfully into her eyes as he kissed her hand in parting.

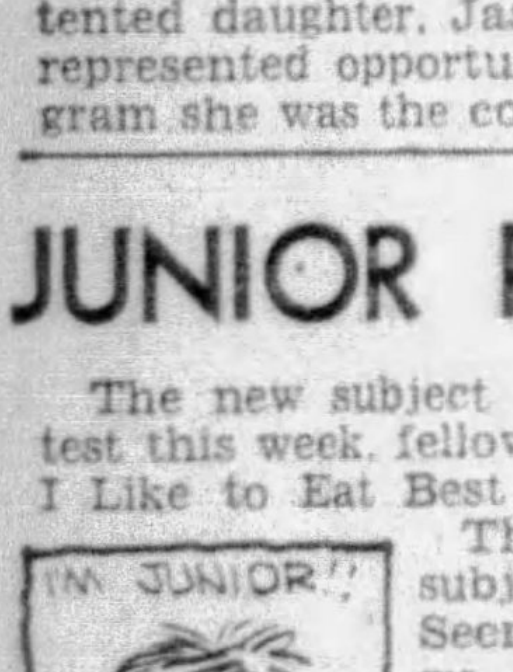
JUNIOR PATROL MAIL BOX

The new subject of the contest this week, fellows, is "What I Like to Eat Best and Why."



There's a tasty subject, gang! Seems as though we all ought to have a favorite food — maybe ice cream, maybe roast leg of lamb, or fried chicken with gravy. Whatever it is, tell us about it! Make us taste it, too.

That's all you have to do to have a good chance of winning one of the three big prizes. Ask your stomach right now. What would you like to have the most, Mr. Stomach?

Whatever he answers, write in your letter. And do your level best to explain why you like that kind of food the most.

How about candy? Most all children like candy. And maybe you like some kind of candy better than anything else you can eat. And how about fruits, like strawberries or peaches or pears? Vegetables are mighty tasty, too. What do you think about tomatoes?

Anyway, that's the big idea, fellows. Just pick out your favorite food and write about it, telling us why you like it. Then send your letter, not more than 100 words long, to the Junior Patrol contest, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph. Remember, too, you must be a Junior Patrol member to compete. So, if you're not a member now, fill in the pledge and send it in now.

And Eugene says:

"Dr. McClelland is the greatest man I know. This is why: My legs are crippled from infantile paralysis. Then I lost my voice and was real sick. I could not sleep or eat. I only weighed 32 pounds and was 11 years old. I had to write everything on paper for four months. No one else knew what was wrong with me. Now I can talk and walk on my braces and crutch and weigh 63 pounds. Dr. M. saved my life, made me strong and we had no money to pay again so that is why he is the greatest guy I know."

And no wonder you think so, Eugene! He must be one swell fellow!

KINDNESS MAKES FRIENDS

After wounded people were cared for, they scoured the debris for possible animal victims. Above: Two boys found a dog, caught in the wreckage and are shown administering first aide.

BUILDING UNITS OF LIVING THINGS

Living things (plants, animals) are built of one or more units, cells, consisting of matter in living state, called protoplasm (from Greek, meaning "first form") enclosed in walls (membranes).

The denser spherical portion situated mostly near the center is called nucleus, the rest of the protoplasm is the cytoplasm (cell plasm). Protoplasm is in fact the only living thing we know

COMEDY OF ERRORS—ANTIPHOLUS OF SYRACUSE BEATS DROMIO (Act IV, Sc. 4)

The plot of this earlier and cruder play of Shakespeare (1592?) was taken from Plautus' "Menaechmi" and is based on the resemblance of two pairs of twins.

Aegeon, an old Syracusan, is found in Ephesus and doomed as an enemy. Relating his search for his twin sons, both named Antipholus, and his wife, Aemilia, he wins from the Duke respite until evening to raise ransom.

Since his rescue from a shipwreck, one of the twins, Antipholus lives in Ephesus with his slave Dromio. The other Antipholus (of Syracuse), after years' search for his brother and mother, also arrives in Ephesus with his slave, twin brother of Dromio.

Strikingly resembling each other, both pairs of twins are implicated in comic situations with the wife, sister-in-law, merchants, officers, etc., and are held for lunatics, cheaters.

Antipholus of Syracuse hides in a convent. Past it Aegeon, unable to raise the ransom, is led to execution in presence of the Duke, who is approached by both Antipholuses for help against their persecutors.

FIRST GASOLINE AUTO BUILT IN U. S.

It was that constructed by C. E. Duryea (1892).

In the "gay nineties" the automobile was in its infancy and gave more trouble than service. The motorists had no "gay" times at all. "Get a horse" often greeted them as they worked over the stalled motor. The scoffers did not realize the progress ahead.

Today autos, besides railroads, steamships, are the principal means of transportation. The gasoline auto is the furthest developed and most generally used. Few are driven by steam or electricity.

OLD CONCEPTIONS OF THE UNIVERSE—SCIENCE REFUTED THEM

The Babylonians conceived the universe as a bell-like vault, the sun returning to the east at night through a tunnel around the horizon (above left.)

Pythagoras (580?-500 B. C.), famous Greek philosopher, explained the universe as a harmonious whole (kosmos), the heavenly bodies producing sound, "music of the spheres," the motionless earth being the center around which other bodies revolve (center).

CHEMICAL ELEMENTS IN HUMAN BODY

Chemical element—unlike a compound—is a substance that cannot be decomposed into two or more different substances by ordinary chemical methods. Every substance is composed of one or more elements. The existence of 93 chemical elements is proven, 91 being known and produced, 2 are yet unknown. 3-B-IV-R

Mickey Collected His Pay

Just spot around to that story of Mickey McGuire down in Mexico.

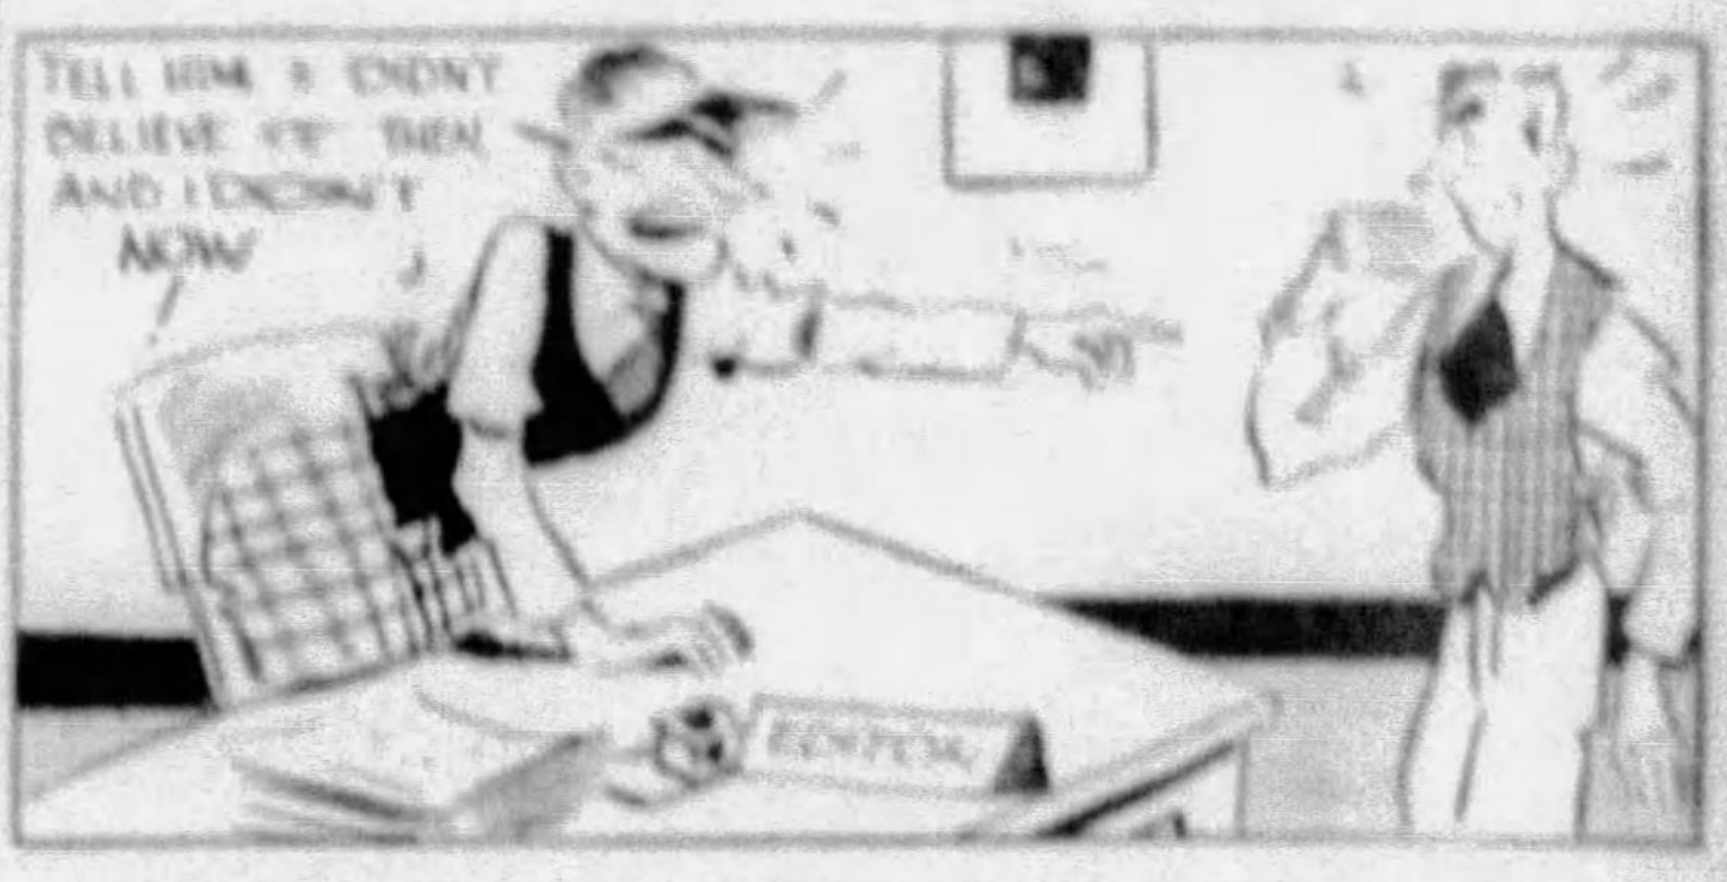
We should have answered Bud Mars long ago. Bud wrote in and said Bee was the man who sold the plane to the Wild Irish Rose.

Bud wanted to know what became of William Hickman Pickens, not knowing that Bill had died about a week before.

We wrote Bill's story for a magazine under the silly title, "Accelerating Sentiment." Our original title was "Outdoor Ballyhoo," long before "Ballyhoo" became the favorite caption for many other writers.

Anyway, the editor refused to believe the story about Mickey and his Mexican pay-master. So, it wasn't used.

If Bud Mars sold Mick the plane he knows more about it than we do. The Wild Rose got an offer to fly in Mexico while stunting for Pickens in Kansas City. He was to get very good money for bombing the mesquite and the cactus.



TELL HIM I DIDN'T BELIEVE IT THEN AND I DON'T NOW!
EDITOR

There was no place to spend that money down there. So Mick let it accumulate in the army paymaster's safe. Soon he had a fortune stowed away. Or thought he did. The paymaster may have been frugal or he may have gambled it away at dice.

Anyway, one day he stepped forth and balanced the books by shooting Mickey down while Mick was sailing lazily over the camp like a fat sea gull.

That was Pickens' story but we couldn't put it over. If Bud Mars wants to write his version we will gladly print it. We have always been grieved with that editor for killing it. Even if it was imagination it was too good to let flop.

We were surprised to hear that Bud Mars was still around, as most of Pickens' flying circus have dotted their last loops. Beachey, Hoxey, Stinson and the others have gently pancaked into that final landing.

This Pickens man was amazing. He would tell what sounded like fierce lies and then back 'em up with a steel-ribbed proof. The Bug is recognized as the world's worst liar and maybe the editor was skeered of the combination. We don't blame him much. We do know that everything Pickens told us checked up all around.

And, once again, we want to repeat that aviation owes plenty to Pickens. Bill may have been in it for the dollars, but he was helping to finance himself and the early builders of planes.

Damned With Faint Praise

The Republicans Show Little Enthusiasm for Revision of the Constitution

By adding the words "when practical" the committee, as Mark Shields aptly remarked, has "damned the proposal with faint praise."

"Willing to wound, and yet afraid to strike."

There is little room for doubt that the Republican organization does not look with favor on constitutional revision.

The principal purpose for which a constitutional convention is needed is to do away with unnecessary counties, townships, school districts and other administrative units, and so free the taxpayers from the burden that oxcart government imposes on them.

But that would mean the abolition of thousands of jobs, and you can't expect professional politicians to relish such a prospect.

There is evidence that that pressure is being applied.

A Court Without Lawyers

The first day of September brought into existence the "Poor Man's Court" in New York City, which was created by the 1934 Legislature on the recommendation of the Commission on the Administration of Justice.

This kind of court originated in Topeka, Kan., in 1913. A poor woman in that city was unable to collect $3 in wages from a wealthy man, and she had no money wherewith to sue. She told her story to the Attorney General of the State, and such public indignation was aroused that a special court was set up for such cases.

In the "Poor Man's Court" in New York City, which is a part of the Municipal Court, the total cost of a trial will be $1.25. A claimant advances that sum. If his cause is just, he receives $5 in costs, plus the amount sued for. Thus justice is made actually free to the humblest litigant.

No written papers are needed in the trials. Lawyers are not barred, but neither are lawyers needed, for technicalities—the delight of a lawyer's mind and soul—are forbidden. The judge simply listens and decides. In the language of the statute creating the court:

"The court shall conduct hearings upon small claims in such a manner as to do substantial justice between the parties, according to the rules of substantive law, and shall not be bound by statutory provisions or rules or practice, procedure, pleading or evidence."

Fewer Pistol Permits

Sheriff Gollmar Deserves Credit for Discouraging The Carrying of Weapons

After all, this is not a western mining camp in the days of '49. We have policemen, and courts, and prisons. Comparatively few persons are ever attacked by thugs.

There were more than 2,000 persons in the county, outside of Pittsburgh, when he took office, who had official permits to carry weapons. Mr. Gollmar has cut the number to 509.

It has been charged that hundreds of persons with criminal records were given permits to carry pistols in Pittsburgh by the superintendents of police in former administrations. Sheriff Gollmar seems to have been suspicious that some of those who were granted county permits were not citizens of the best reputation. And he is perfectly right in not caring to entrust deadly weapons to men of unsavory character.

Bank messengers, express guards and others having to do with the transportation of money and valuables should have the right to go armed—with machine guns, if desired. But we can see little reason why others should be allowed, or should desire, to carry pistols.

Cossack Style

There Is No Need for Rough Treatment to Make the People "Tax Conscious"

In one building were 92 persons, lawyers and others, peaceably if not gainfully engaged.

The collectors demanded from the 92 persons $4,000 in personal taxes and threatened to sell immediately the office equipment, which the 92 really need in order to earn money wherewith to pay taxes.

In 30 cases sales notices were posted.

From the description you may suppose that the incident has been purloined from an old history of Czarist Russia.

But you are wrong.

It happened in Newark, N. J., the other day.

All very legal, no doubt, but also all rather rough.

Bertram Sachs, the supervisor of personal tax arrears, explained that he was trying to make the Newark public "tax conscious."

And to do so, he had, under orders from his superior, invoked a dead letter law—a law on the statute books for 30 years and never enforced!

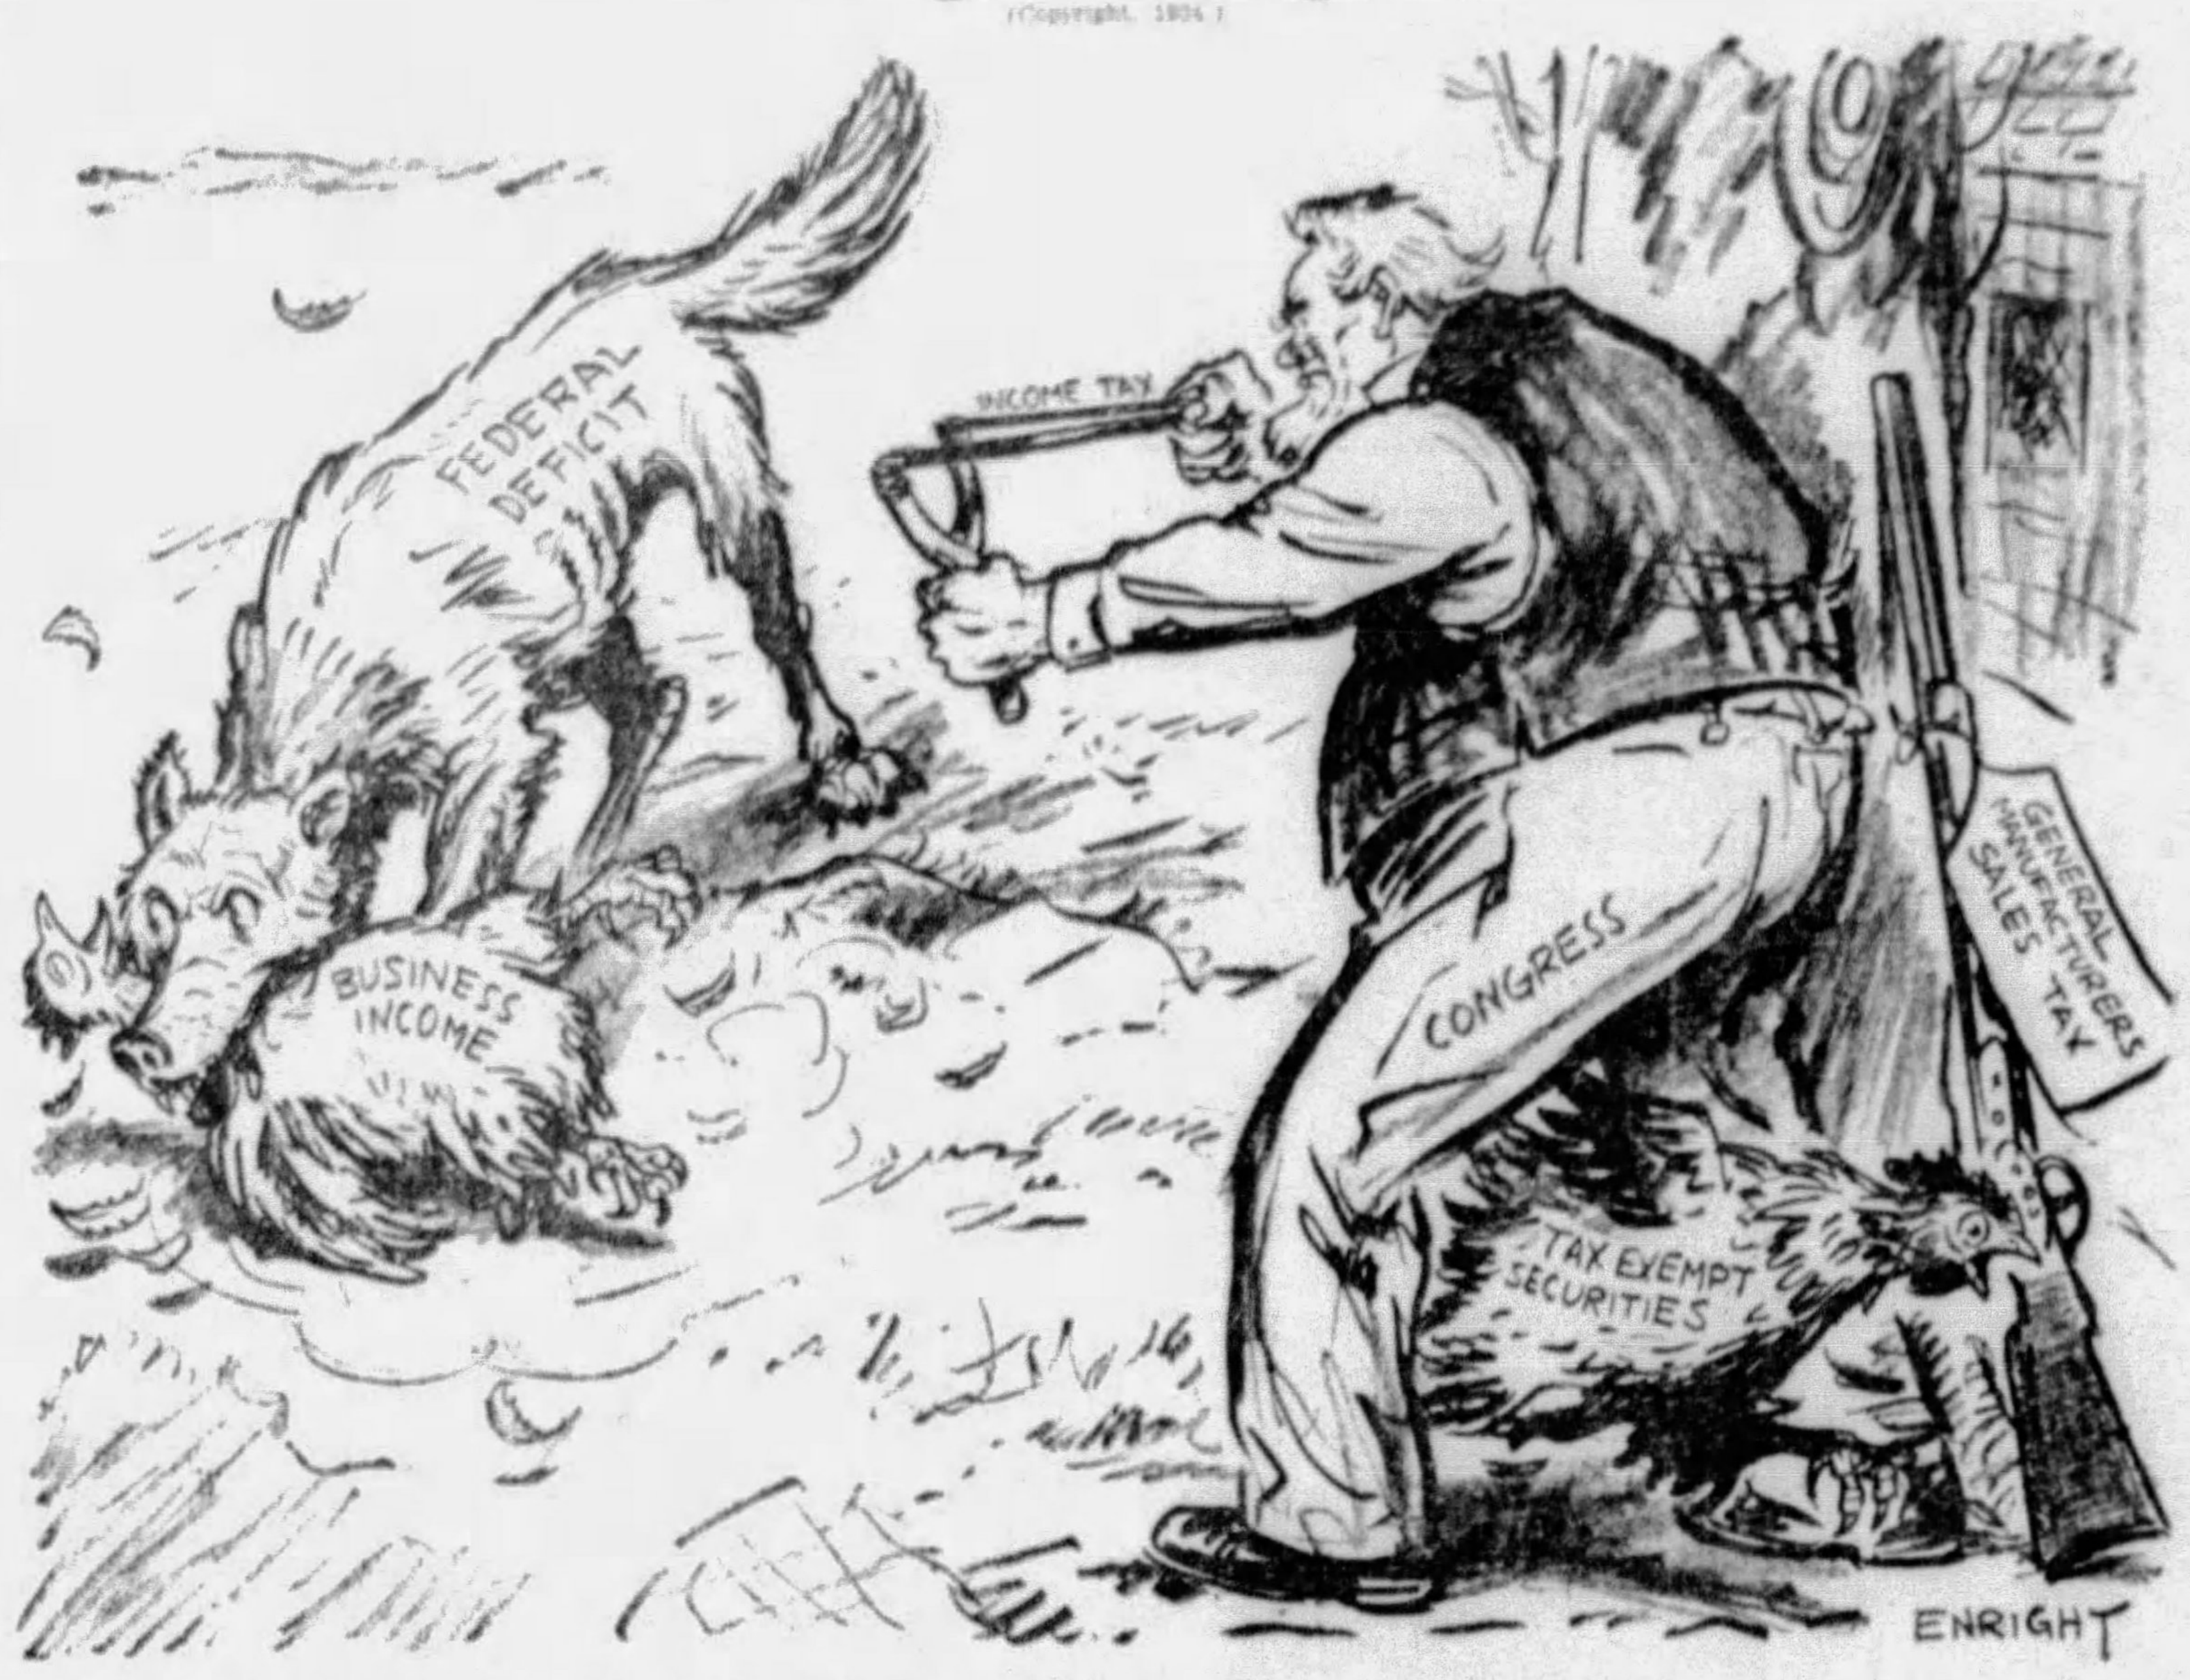
The effort proved to be needless. The public was already tax conscious—so painfully tax conscious that in one day public protest put an end to the campaign.

Of course, officialdom will not like that outcome.

In the official mind a tax is a tax—and if taxes go unpaid how will thousands of bureaucratic little politicians be able to collect their tax-exempt salaries?

Change Weapons!

(Copyright, 1934.)



Uncle Sam nowadays has two kinds of budget—and both kinds are out of balance.

The "extraordinary" budget, devoted to vast "recovery" measures, is being added to the public debt—and must some day be "liquidated."

But in addition, there is the current or "regular" budget which represents the "normal" cost of government—and taxes are depended upon to keep it in balance.

On July 1, 1935, some $500,000,000 of "special taxes" will expire, which means that Congress in January will impose a new $500,000,000 levy, perhaps more, for current expense.

Of these expiring taxes the most useful have been MANUFACTURERS' SALES TAXES disguised under other names.

It is now reported from Washington that "some members of Congress" would like to enact a GENERAL FEDERAL MANUFACTURERS' SALES TAX, and will do so if the Administration recommends such action.

Exactly that should have been done long ago.

As a first action in putting the Federal financial system in order Congress should ABOLISH the iniquitous income tax and ADOPT the equitable and practicable General Manufacturers' Sales Tax PERMANENTLY.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By Elsie Robinson

If I Could Have My Choice of What I'd Write—

If I could have my choice of what I'd write—

If, for one hour, the gift of splendid words were given to me and I could express—in undying phrases—the thing that had meant most to me in all my life, do you know what subject I'd choose?

Would I talk of the world's Beauty—that has been such a comfort and delight, since first I saw it, all a-glitter, beyond my young eyes? Or of Adventure—that has led my gypsy feet down many a strange and wonderful trail? Or of Happiness—or Courage—or Wisdom—or any of the other great dreams that haunt us, waking or sleeping?

No—it would not be of any of these that I'd be speaking. Ir, just for one hour, I could write in words so splendid that they'd never die, I would use that hour for a subject much nearer, much dearer than any of these.

I'd use it to send my thanks to you.

I'd use it to tell you what you've meant to me all these years.

To tell you how your faith in me has kept me whole, when—through cruel misunderstanding—my own friends failed me and left me broken—

To tell you how your need of me has made me strong, when the cowardice in me would have made me weak—

To tell you how the fineness that you, yourselves, didn't know you had—the courage and tenderness you never guessed you revealed—has kept me believing that life was worth the living, when I was ready to give up the fight and take the count.

It would be for all of that I'd be thanking you, if for just one hour I could really write as the great ones do . . . for all that and a thousand other favors you never dreamed you did.

Yes, I know. I've never seen you, and you never saw me. And you think of us as belonging in different worlds—me, in that mysterious world of the writers; you, in that humdrum world of those whose names will never be known, whose acts will never be recorded.

But you're wrong. We don't live in two different worlds, you and I. We live in the same world—so near that there's nothing that twists in your mind that doesn't twist also in mine—and nothing that turns, hungrily, in your heart, that doesn't turn in mine.

And so, though we've never seen each other—in some mysterious way, we ARE each other And if out of all the things that words might say, I could choose the one message that would mean most of all, I'd wish for just that—to tell you how close wou've grown, how dear you've been, how grateful I am for it all!

But it's finding a hand when you thought that you were reaching into the empty dark—

And hearing a voice when you thought they'd all forgotten—

And feeling the tears and laughter of another life, sharing itself with yours, when you thought your own life was done!

That's what you've meant to me, my dear—during all these years. Not just someone reading. Someone writing. But a hand through the darkness—and a voice through the silence.

And if this was all there was—if life had to end this hour, with nothing more accomplished, nothing dreamed, and I had to go up to the Timekeeper with the record all incomplete—I still would say—

Well, Boss, here I am. My own showing isn't so good—and I'm sorry for that. I've missed a lot of the show— and I'm sorry for that. And some of the going was sure tough! But still, it's all right. And if you can overlook the mistakes, I'm glad. For I've had something sweller than fun—finer than fame. I've had the Gang—and they were worth it all."

So—that's how I feel about you, Partner. And—thanks!

HOW TO KEEP HUSBAND

By Winifred Black

I saw them in the California apricot orchard the other day, the two young couples.

They had come from neighboring orchards to pick the apricots for the farmer who had been having trouble with his imported pickers.

They were two fine, healthy, handsome, light-hearted young couples and it was a joy to see them.

The brunette's husband was a strapping blonde, and a fine strapping fellow he was, too, to judge by his looks.

The blonde's husband was a handsome young fellow with shining dark eyes and smooth dark hair that would have been a good ad for any shampoo in the world.

The brunette was a wonderful worker, she was as quick as a cat and as competent as any half dozen ordinary pickers.

The bucket under her tree was full in no time—she held it up laughing and ran down the orchard to put the apricots in exactly the right box, exactly as they should be put.

She filled her pail quite rapidly—at first. But toward the end of the day she couldn't keep up at all. She did her best, but her best was not so very good.

Her husband hurried to fill his bucket and two or three times I saw him walk carelessly past his little wife and throw two or three dozen apricots into her pail.

Before the day was done both the blonde young man and the dark young man were doing their best to out-pick the pretty dark girl and they were both helping the little blonde to pretend to keep up.

But she didn't.

She was proud of her work and she had a right to be proud of it.

I shall be interested in a year or so from now to see which of those attractive girls has made the most successful marriage.

I'm afraid I would wager my money on the rather helpless little blonde, she makes her husband feel important and competent, and the other girl manages somehow or other to make her husband feel inferior.

And that, my dear girls, is the fatal mistake.

It ought not to be—but from my observation it is.

MARRY-GO-ROUND

By Helen Rowland

The Great Defense-Mechanism

A sense of humor is an asset to a man, but in a woman it is more often a liability. Because a sense of humor is like a gun — few women know how to handle it, without hurting themselves.

* * *

There are certain times in every man's life when the ability to see the amusing side of a serious thing will prevent him from making a fool of himself. Particularly, in his first and last love affairs, in his weaker moments, at his own wedding, and in the hearthside disagreements of marriage.

—AND SHE TURNED ME DOWN— WHAT A BREAK

When the thrills and throbs of puppy love are taken too seriously, they are apt to make a lifelong cynic of a man—and when his Indian Summer amours are too intensive, they are apt to make him ridiculous. But, if he can stand on the sidelines and "watch himself go by," his sense of humor will restore his balance and save his dignity.

* * *

Every man needs a sense of humor in those dangerous moments, when he is feeling blue or disappointed or lonely or sorry for himself. These are his "marrying-moods," when nothing else will save him from rushing into a foolish marriage or a dangerous entanglement, from which only a court fight and heart-balm will extricate him. ANY woman who holds out sympathetic arms looks like a "haven" to him!

* * *

A sense of humor (plus a couple of stiff "bracers") has carried many a trembling bridegroom down "the last mile" of his bachelorhood to the altar, with dignity and aplomb—and gotten him safely back to the door again, without a fainting spell.

* * *

But it is after marriage that a man most desperately needs a sense of humor to guide him safely through the shoals and serve as a defense-mechanism in domestic jars.

* * *

If a woman can't take a joke, she shouldn't take a husband. And if a man can't "see the funny side" when his wife folds the newspaper the wrong way, pinches the tooth paste from the top, jams the cork into the bottle or keeps him waiting half an hour while she puts on her complexion, he is due for a nervous breakdown or a sanitarium.

* * *

YOU TAKE YOURSELF TOO SERIOUSLY
YEAH

But, alas, a sense of humor in a woman is just about as attractive to the average man as a mustache. The cleverest men always pick wives who can't see through a joke unless you write it out and make a diagram.

* * *

Sometimes I think it was the American doughboy's sense of humor which heartened up the Allies and won the World War. Because there is nothing like a sense of humor to carry a man through a fight, a battle or the Armageddon of matrimony. Like a gun, you don't need it often—but when you need it, you need it badly!

STOCKHOLM, Sept. 7.

To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

These Swedes are so hospitable they don't give you time to write, or hardly even to read the papers.

They're the healthiest looking people you ever saw. And they haven't been in a war for so long that they haven't got any word in their language for repudiation.

OUR RHYMING OPTIMIST

By ALINE MICHAELIS

Memory's Fragrance

Sometimes I complain that I cannot forget,
I would thrust from my mind all old memories; yet,
What were life without laughter of dear, vanished days
And the sunlight of love which once brightened its ways?
All the past was not fashioned of music and song;
There was sorrow, sometime; there were trouble and wrong,
Yet the hazes of time have so mellowed those hours
That the whole when recalled, had the fragrance of flowers.
And that fragrance, adrift down life's age-shadowed years,
Is a talisman, barring the folly of fears,
Sometimes I have fancied forgetting is best,

Deport Criminals!

By DANIEL W. M'CORMACK

U. S. Commissioner of Immigration and Naturalization. (In a Radio Address Over the Network of the Columbia Broadcasting Company.)

IMMIGRATION as such is no longer a major problem.

With the adoption of the quota principle, immigration was reduced to approximately a quarter of what it had been up to that time. In 1931 immigration was still further reduced by strictly enforcing the "likely to become a public charge" in the immigration act.

As the result of this policy, immigration was cut down to in the neighborhood of 30,000 a year.

For the last three years, emigration has substantially exceeded immigration, nearly three aliens having returned to their native lands during these years for every one immigrant who has come to the United States.

THIS does not mean that our immigration laws are perfect. This is far from being the fact.

It is important that they IMMEDIATELY be changed to make it possible to rid the country of alien criminals who now escape deportation through taking advantage of the technicalities in the existing laws.

Today it is possible for a man with as many as 25 convictions, as long as they do not carry sentences of a year or more, to escape deportation.

Men who have been charged with murder, homicide, counterfeiting, debauching the morals of minors and, in fact, ALMOST THE WHOLE CATEGORY OF SERIOUS CRIMES, still escape the deportation net.

REMEDIAL legislation was proposed in the last Congress which would have enabled the immigration and naturalization service to deport such persons, but although approved by the House and Senate committees, it failed of passage in the closing days of the last session.

It will be reintroduced in the new Congress and better results are hoped for.

On the other hand, while the present law permits criminals to escape it is unduly harsh with respect to decent folk who have, either by an illegal entry or by some technical violation of the law, subjected themselves to the penalty of deportation.

WHILE we have proposed to Congress that laws be enacted which will enable us to deport the criminal aliens now able to evade deportation through the imperfections in the present law, we have also proposed to the Congress that a measure of discretion be accorded in the deportation of persons of good character who have not been convicted of any crime and whose deportation would result in cruel and unnecessary hardship to their innocent families.

In order that there should be no impairment of our policy of restrictive immigration, it has been provided in the case of any quota alien permitted to remain in the country that a deduction shall be made from the quota of his nationality.

Thus we will guard against any increase in immigration, as a result of the just and humane policy.

Human Side of the News

The United States Government Establishes an Island Prison From Which It Will Be Difficult to Escape

By Edwin C. Hill

UNCLE SAM has his Alcatraz Island, and Mussolini has Liparis. To the one has gone Al Capone, once rated America's Public Enemy No. 1, and to the other goes Leandre Arpinati, who only one year ago was rated Il Duce's right hand man. The idea of a federal prison on an island is the New Deal which the Roosevelt administration is handing out to desperadoes of the type of Dillinger and Machine Gun Kelly. Attorney General Cummings conceived the idea of isolating such vicious criminals on Alcatraz. Formerly the Army's military prison, the soldiers christened it "The Rock."

Such it is, 12 acres of hard stone, standing alone in San Francisco Bay, a mile and a half from the mainland. The prison buildings on Alcatraz are as modern as its safeguards, with even the ceiling of the dining room equipped with gas cylinders to be used against the convicts in the event of an outbreak. The currents are strong in the surrounding waters, and an expert swimmer needs an hour's time to negotiate the mile and a half from the rocky slope to the mainland.

Mussolini's Liparis Islands are not prisons in the sense that strong walls make a prison. They are seven volcanic rocks off the coast of Sicily, rather idyllic places, with vegetation and delightful climate. But they are as isolated as the tiny isles of the South Seas, having no connection with the outside world, save the twice-a-month visit of the steamer from Messina.

* * *

Masons' Grand Master Among Prisoners

SIGNOR ARPINATI, formerly a member of the Chamber of Deputies and Under Secretary of the Interior, joins there about 700 other exiles, persons who, by word, deed or thought, have offended against the sacred dictates of Fascismo. Arpinati is to serve five years because "in various circumstances he assumed an attitude in contrast to directions which should be followed by whoever has the honor of belonging to the Fascist party"

One of the first persons to be sent to Lipari by Mussolini was Domizio Torrigiani, grand master of the Masons of Italy. Francesco Nitti, nephew of the former Premier, who joined him later, made a sensational escape in 1929 along with Carlo Rosselli, a Roman professor, and Emilio Lussu, a decorated war hero.

Contradictory stories are told of the treatment of the prisoners on Lipari, but it seems well established that the punishment is far more mental than physical. The prisoners hire their own rooms, usually living three together. They receive 50 cents a day and have the liberty of the islands, except between the hours of 9 p. m. and 6 a. m., when they must remain indoors. Ever over their heads by day is the black smoke and by night the red glare of Stromboli, that most famous of volcanoes, which has been active for more than 2,000 years.

"The lighthouse of the Mediterranean" is on the northeasternmost of the islands, wher it rises grandly to a height of 3,083 feet. It is one of the wonders of the world, something which must be seen, such as the harbor of Rio, the Taj Mahal and sunrise in the Himalayas. A few weeks ago Stromboli was to be heard as well as seen. Two mighty thunderclaps warned the 1,800 inhabitants that the gods of fire were troubled, and for a time those on the mainland, 35 miles away, who had heard the explosions, were fearful lest streams of lava should pour down the vineyard-covered slopes, carrying away man, beast and vegetation.

Island prisons always bring to mind the penal colonies of France and Mexico, the one off the coast of French Guiana known as Devil's Island, the other in the Pacific called The Three Mary's. There is no question about these being places of punishment.

* * *

60,000 Sentenced To Devil's Island

IN 70 years France has sent 60,000 convicts to the terrific heat and the yellow fever of Devil's Island and two adjoining small dots in the ocean. Few sights are more horrible than the loading and departure of the old prison ship La Martiniere from La Rochelle. The cargo is mostly one of the cutthroats and incorrigibles.

An exception was Capt. Alfred Dreyfus, whose trial, conviction and subsequent exoneration of a treason charge made history.

Some of the elements of the Dreyfus case enter into the story of Benjamin Ullme, only recently returned from Paris after 25 years in the penal colony. Ullme, a young ensign, stole some military papers to get funds to satisfy the tastes of an expensive sweetheart. He demanded money from the government on the threat of selling the papers to a foreign power. He was trapped easily and as easily condemned to penal servitude for life.

Reports from France indicate that Ullme's reasoning has been affected by his prison ordeal. The wonder is that he did not go stark mad years ago. From 1908 until 1916 he was a "solitary" on "the Black Rock," talking to no human and seeing none but his guards. He saved himself from self-destruction or violent insanity only by talking to the trees of the jungle and to the sharks in the sea.

ISN'T IT SO?
